- 3210a. —.]—Where, after the admission by the trustee of a creditor's proof against bkpt.'s estate & that creditor's participation in a first dividend, it was ascertained that he had proved for & received more than he was entitled to, & upon an application to the ct. his proof was reduced:—Held: in the absence of any rule in bkpcy., the well-known principle of equity, that a beneficiary who has been overpaid is not entitled to receive any further payment out of the common fund, until the payments to the other beneficiaries are levelled up to the amount received by the overpaid beneficiary, was applicable with the result that the overpaid creditor was not entitled to participate in any future dividends in respect of his reduced proof without giving credit for the overpayment in respect of his original proof.

The mere fact that the trustee cannot recover either payments made to a creditor whose proof is subsequently expunged or overpayments made to a creditor whose proof is subsequently reduced, does not prevent the operation of that equitable principle in the case of a proof in bkpcy. Nor does the judgment of JESSEL, M.R., in Re Tail, Ex p. Harper (see No. 3210), contain any statement inconsistent with that application of the principle.—Re SEARLE, HOARE & Co., [1924] 2 Ch. 325; 68 Sol. Jo. 755; *sub nom. Re SEARLE, HOARE & Co., Ex p. 3375a. Deposit of securities—To secure joint debt of firm—Debts due under separate personal guarantees of partners.]—The general rule in bkpcy., that, when a creditor seeks to prove against his debtor's estate, he must give up or value any security which if not retained by him would go to augment that estate, presupposes that the security is for the particular debt for which he seeks to prove, & does not apply to a case where the security is for a different debt.

Where, therefore, two of the partners of a firm deposited with the bankers of the firm securities which belonged to them individually to secure a joint debt of the firm, & also gave the bankers their separate personal guarantees up to a limited amount to pay the joint debt of the firm, & the firm subsequently, as debtors, executed a deed of assignment for the benefit of their creditors, which provided that in the administration title to various bonds & shares, including certain rubber shares. In 1920 the firm sold the rubber shares without the knowledge or authority of deft., who was kept in ignorance of the sale till after the bkpcy. of the firm. On Feb. 16, 1922, a receiving order was made against the firm & they were adjudicated bkpt. In Feb. 1923, the trustee in bkpcy. of the firm rendered deft. a final account, which, after giving credit to deft. for the proceeds of the sale of the shares, showed a balance due from deft. In an action to recover that balance the trustee claimed that the rights of the parties ought to be adjusted under the mutual credits clause of 1914 Act, as at the date of the receiving order. The judge, in ordering an account to be taken, directed that the value of the shares, to be ascertained when the account was certified, that being the date when the shares ought to have been returned to deft., should be set off against the claim of the trustee:—Held: the brokers could not have maintained an action for their debt if they were not in a position to hand over the shares against payment; & the trustee in bkpcy. had no higher right: no question of set-off arose under the mutual credits clause of 1914 Act, the right of deft. being to a return of the shares in specie; & in the special circumstances of the case the order of the judge was correct.—*ELLIS & Co.'s TRUSTEE v. 3740a. —.—.]—Applt., the managing director of a co. which was insolvent, recovered judgment against the co. for repayment of money lent by him to the co. Shortly afterwards, the provisional liquidator of the co., which was subsequently, in Apr. 1925, ordered to be wound up, paid to applt. the amount for which he had recovered judgment, & in Apr. 1926, an order was made in the winding up upon applt. to repay to the liquidator that amount, on the ground that the payment to him by the liquidator was void as a fraudulent preference. In consequence of applt.'s non-compliance with that order, a bkpcy. notice was served upon him, & a receiving order made against him, the registrar refusing to allow applt. to set off against the amount he had been so ordered to repay to the liquidator the sum for which he had recovered judgment against the co.:—Held: applt. had not, at the date of the receiving order, any valid or effectual right of set-off in respect of the sum he had been ordered to repay to the liquidator.—Re A DEBTOR (82 of 1926), [1927] 1 Ch. 410; 136 L. 4665a. — Necessary before other side entitled to refer to contents.]—On June 29, 1923, resps., having received from bkpt. an order for goods, on the same day delivered them to bkpt. together with an invoice bearing the same date, which subsequently at bkpt.'s request was post-dated to July 10. On July 20, bkpt., although fully realising his insolvency, sent to resps. & to 107 other creditors cheques which were all post-dated to July 31 in settlement of their several accounts. On July 31 bkpt. gave notice to his creditors that he was about to suspend payment. Not one of those post-dated cheques was paid on presentation; but on July 30, the day preceding the act of bkpcy., bkpt. paid in cash to resps., who had no knowledge of bkpt.'s financial difficulties, the amount he owed them less discount. On Aug. 30, 1923, on a creditor's petition presented on Aug. 3, an order of adjudication was made against bkpt. Upon a motion by the trustee in bkpcy. for a declaration that the payment to resps. was a fraudulent preference under 1914 Act, s. 44 (1), resps. filed an affidavit in opposition, which contained statements which revealed a voluntary offer on July 30 on the part of bkpt. to resps. to pay the amount due to them in cash; & the question was then raised whether the trustee had the right, which he claimed, to read those statements as admissions by resps. of the absence of pressure & of the

entirely voluntary nature of the payment:—Held: (1) the practice in the Bkpcy. Ct., differing in this respect from the practice in the Ch. Div., was that where an affidavit had been filed by a resp. to an application, applt. was only entitled to refer to the contents thereof after resp. on opening his case had elected to read it; (2) where a bkpt. in imminent expectation of bkpcy. voluntarily pays a particular creditor with the result of giving him a preference in fact, & the reason for such payment is unexplained, a prima facie case of fraudulent preference is established; therefore, the trustee having proved a prima facie case of fraudulent preference & the creditors having withdrawn their affidavit in opposition, & there being therefore no evidence to the contrary, the trustee was entitled to succeed on his application.—Re COHEN, Ex p. TRUSTEE, [1924] 2 Ch. 515; 94 L. - In the course of his public examination debtor refused to answer a question on the ground that he might thereby incriminate himself. On the case coming on before the judge he interviewed debtor in his private room & on his return into ct. stated (1) that he was not satisfied that an answer to the question would result in further assets or secure rights for the creditors, & (2) that he was satisfied that there were serious personal reasons why it would be to debtor's detriment to answer the question in public:—Held: neither of the reasons given by the judge for declining to order debtor to answer the question was a sufficient reason.—*Re PAGET, Ex p. On Sept. 27 he committed an act of bkpcy. upon which a petition was presented on Oct. 8, & a receiving order was made against him on Oct. 24, followed by an adjudication on Dec. 12. After the date of the receiving order part of the furniture was sold by the co. to a bond fide purchaser for value without notice, by whom it was resold to another purchaser in the same position. On Feb. 3, 1919, the transfer of Sept. 20, 1917, was held to be fraudulent & void & an act of bkpcy., & the co. was ordered to deliver to the trustee all the property comprised in that sale. The value of the property having been found by the registrar, a further order was made against the co. to pay the amount of that value to the trustee. No payment having been made under that order the trustee claimed to recover the furniture or its value from the ultimate purchaser:—Held: the title of the trustee related back to the act of bkpcy. of Sept. 20, 1917, & neither the original nor any subsequent transferee could establish any title as against the trustee.—Re GUNSBURG, [1920] 2 K. By an order in 1895 after the dissolution of C.'s marriage, it was ordered that the trustees should set apart the whole of the income of the settled funds which was then payable to him, & apply it for the children of the marriage until majority. C. became bkpt. in 1904, & his youngest child attained twenty-one in 1910:—Held: the above order was an act or event antecedent to his bkpcy. by which C.'s interest in the whole income was determined for a substantial period, & a forfeiture took place at the time the order was made, & nothing passed to the trustee in bkpcy.—*Re CAREW'S TRUSTS, GELLIBRAND v. to the income of one-third share of the residuary estate of testatrix unless & until he should be or become bkpt. or should do or suffer some act or thing whereby such share of income should be wholly or partially assigned, charged or incumbered or until he should die, whichever event should first happen, & from & after his death or bkpcy. or the doing or suffering such act as aforesaid such share & the income thereof should be held upon trust for his issue. Shortly after the death of testatrix B. entered into a scheme for composition with his creditors, & he then signed an authority to the trustees of testatrix's will "until further notice" to pay to the trustee under the scheme "the income now due or to accrue due" to B. from her estate. It appeared that there had been no communication by B. to the trustee of the scheme for composition concerning the authority given to the trustees of the will until after these proceedings had been taken in the matter:—Held: in these circumstances the authority given to the trustees of the will did not operate as a good equitable assignment of B.'s interest in testatrix's estate & did not work a forfeiture thereof, inasmuch as in the absence of communication concerning the authority, the same remained simply a bare authority which was revocable.—*Re HAMILTON, FITZGEORGE v. - 5935a. — Bankruptcy at & after determination of prior life interest—Annulled after income payable.]—B. was bequeathed an interest during his life in the income of testator's residuary estate, & by his will testator directed that, if any beneficiary thereunder should become bkpt., such beneficiary should forfeit his share which should thereupon devolve as provided for in the event of his death. Testator died in 1910 & on Apr. 16, 1914, B. was adjudicated bkpt. On Dec. 14, 1925, B.'s life interest fell into possession, & on Apr. 7, 1926, he procured the annulment of his bkpcy. Between Dec. 14, 1925, & the date of the annulment the trustees received income in respect of the residuary estate, but dealt only with such part as did not include the income in respect of B.'s interest, no payment being made in respect of that by them:—Held: as after Dec. 14, 1925, the trustees received sums in respect of the income of testator's estate which they could have been asked to hand over to the trustee in the bkpcy. of B. before the annulment of his bkpcy., there existed something upon which the forfeiture could operate, the test being whether there was any actual income of the share which could be treated by the trustees as payable to, or retained for, or appropriated for, the residuary legatee, & the annulment was not in time to prevent the operation of the forfeiture clause.—*Re FORDER, FORDER v. - 5936a. "Unless he attempts to become bankrupt"—Whether applicable to bankruptcy in invitum or generally.]—Testator, by his will dated Dec. 21, 1911, devised & bequeathed his real & personal estate to his trustees upon trust to sell & convert with power to postpone, & proceeded: "Out of my estate I desire my trustees to pay to my son H. an annuity of £156 to be paid monthly, unless he attempts to assign it or to become bkpt. In these events it shall be entirely optional with my trustees to pay him the annuity, my wish & intention being that the money is to be for his personal use to keep him from want. If they think his conduct or circumstances deserves or requires it, I authorise them to increase the annuity to £260 per annum, payable as & on the condition stated." Testator then directed that the residue of the income of his estate should be paid to his wife during her life or widowhood, & that after her death or remarriage it should be applied for the maintenance of his daughter until she attained the age of twenty-five years, & that upon her attaining that age the whole of the residue of his property should be given to her. By a codicil to his will, dated Sept. 10, 1918, testator devised two freehold farms to his son H. for the term of his life or "until he shall do some act to effectuate a sale or mtge. thereof or which shall forfeit the same in the case of bkpcy.," in either of which events the farms were to fall back into & form part of his residuary estate. Testator died on Sept. 13, 1918, leaving his widow, his daughter, & his son H. surviving. On Nov. 3, 1911, a receiving order had been made against H. on a creditor's petition, the act of bkpcy. being the failure to comply with a bkpcy. notice, & on Nov. 24, 1911, he was adjudged bkpt. Testator made his will & codicil with knowledge of these facts. On Jan. 22, 1919, H. obtained his discharge, but his creditors had not been paid in full, & the bkpcy. had not been annulled. On a summons taken out by the trustees for the determination of the questions whether the legacy given to H. by the will had become forfeited by his bkpcy., & whether the freeholds devised to him by the codicil belonged to him or formed part of the residuary estate:—Held: (1) the words "unless he attempts to become bkpt." in the will must be read in their strict grammatical sense & as so read did not apply to a bkpcy. in invitum or bkpcy. generally, & therefore no forfeiture of the annuity had occurred on which the discretionary trust arose, & consequently the annuity was payable to the trustee in H.'s bkpcy.; (2) the words of devise in the codicil though phrased in words of futurity applied under the doctrine of Trappes v. Meredith, No. 5932, ante, to the past bkpcy. of H., & there was no principle upon which the ct. would be justified in holding that the doctrine was not applicable to legal estates, & consequently the devised freeholds had ever since the death of testator formed part of his residuary estate.—*Re EVANS, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. - 5958a. —.]—H., who had taken out a policy of insurance in deft. co. against third party risks, was involved in an accident whereby C. was seriously injured by H.'s motor car. C. commenced proceedings against H. for damages, but before obtaining judgment H. was adjudicated bkpt. & the official receiver was appointed the trustee in the bkpcy. The trustee informed the co., in reply to a question put by them, that he did not propose to take any part in C.'s action against H. H. subsequently purported for an agreed sum to release the co. from their liability under the policy to indemnify him in respect of any judgment obtained against him by C. Shortly afterwards C. obtained judgment against H. for damages for the injuries sustained by him. Subsequently H. committed a second act of bkpcy. & was adjudicated bkpt. for the second time, & a trustee was appointed. In an action the two trustees jointly for a declaration (inter alia) that deft. co. were liable to indemnify H. & or plifs. against the damages awarded to O. & that the agreement by which H. purported to release the co. was null & void:—Held: (1) the benefit of the indemnity vested in the trustee under the first bkpcy., notwithstanding that O.'s claim, being one in respect of a tort for which judgment was not obtained till after the commencement of the first bkpcy., was not provable in such bkpcy.; (2) the benefit of the indemnity having vested in the trustee in the first bkpcy., his right thereto could not be affected by any subsequent agreement between deft. co. & H.; (3) the trustee in the first bkpcy. was not estopped by his refusal to take part in C.'s action against H. from asserting his claim against deft. co.—*HOOD'S TRUSTEES v. He subsequently resided in Algiers & carried on business as a coal merchant there until his death. On a petition presented by him in his lifetime to the ct. in Algiers he was declared bkpt. by the French ct. after his death, & a "syndic" was appointed there to whom creditors' claims might be sent. The effect of the order on the evidence was to vest in the French "syndic" the whole of bkpt.'s estate, including assets accruing after the commencement of the bkpcy. In a subsequent creditor's administration action in England, K., an English creditor, was appointed administrator & after a grant of administration with the will annexed, proceeded to advertise for creditors. The French "syndic" now claimed that the assets in this country should be transferred to him, admitting that if his application was successful the costs of administration here would have to be deducted:—Held: a bkpcy. order having been made by a French ct. of competent jurisdiction the "syndic" was entitled to the whole of the assets wheresoever situate, & these must be handed to him after deducting the costs, charges & expenses of the administration proceedings here.—*Re BURKE, KING v. Deft. became tenant of a house in Ghent for a period of eight months from Apr. 1913, & employed clerks & other persons. The partnership incurred heavy liabilities, & by a decree of the Commercial Ct. at Ghent, dated Aug. 9, 1913, the partnership & its members were declared to be insolvent pursuant to an article of the Belgian Civil Code. The decree was pronounced by the ct. without notice to deft., but subsequently, in accordance with the recognised procedure, he was notified of the decree & appeared by solr. to show cause why it should be dissolved. It was, however, affirmed by the Ct. of Appeal. Pltf., trustee in the bkpcy., brought an action in England alleging that deft. was possessed of assets within the jurisdiction of the English cts. & claiming a declaration that all deft.'s assets had become vested in pltf. as trustee:—Held: (1) the decree of the Belgian ct. was valid inasmuch as deft. had submitted to the jurisdiction, (2) the proceedings were not contrary to natural justice, inasmuch as deft. had been afforded an opportunity of being heard; (3) subject to the decision of other issues not before the ct., there should be a declaration that pltf. was entitled to all the movable assets of deft., wherever situate, & to the appointment of a receiver.—*BERGEREM v. came from Germany. The bills of lading in respect of the goods were made out "to order" & the charges were paid by S., a forwarding agent employed by bkpt. The goods on arrival were stored at a wharf in the name, & for the account, of S. When a sale had taken place S. signed a delivery order which bkpt. handed to the buyers against payment for the goods. Between Aug. 3 & Sept. 7, 1927, pliffs. purchased a number of cases of vacuum flasks & paid bkpt. for them prior to the commencement of the bkpcy., the receiving order being made on Sept. 24. Bkpt., upon payment being made for the goods, handed to pliffs. delivery orders for the goods signed by S. & addressed to the wharfingers. These delivery orders had not been presented at the wharf at the date of the bkpcy., & when they were presented shortly afterwards the wharfingers, acting on S.'s instructions, refused to deliver the goods. The trustee in bkpcy. claimed that the goods were in the possession, order or disposition of bkpt. at the date of the receiving order & formed part of bkpt.'s estate under 1914 Act, s. 38 (c):—Held: pliffs. had not by their conduct in any way induced a belief that the goods were in the possession, order or disposition of bkpt. in such circumstances that he was the reputed owner thereof, & the trustee was not entitled to the goods as forming part of bkpt.'s estate.—*SIMEONS (C.) & Co. v. 6659a. ———.]—For some years before his bkpcy. a surveyor & assessment specialist with a staff of clerks had entered into contracts with clients for personal service in the latter capacity. Under these contracts he had to value his clients' properties for rating purposes & give expert evidence on their appeals, his remuneration being a percentage of the reduction of their assessments when obtained. He mortgaged these contracts & the sums to become due on completion thereof to a mtgee., who by special arrangement with the mtgor. gave no notice to the clients so as not to imperil the mtgor.'s business position, the mtgor. being allowed to collect the fees when due in his own name & hand them over to the mtgee. At the date of the mtgor.'s bkpcy., some fees (a) were due on completed contracts, but some fees (b) were still unearned. The trustee employed bkpt. & some of his staff to carry out the uncompleted contracts & earn fees (b):—Held: (1) though the work to be done under the contracts required a certain amount of technical skill on which bkpt.'s clients relied, it was nevertheless part of bkpt.'s business, so that the fees (a) due at the date of the bkpcy. were due to him "in the course of his trade or business" & being in his order & disposition by the consent of the mtgee. belonged to the trustee under 1914 Act, s. 38 (c); (2) the mtge. of fees (b) earned since the bkpcy. was inoperative against the trustee.—Re COLLINS, [1925] 1 Ch. 556; 133 L. The chattels consisted of cutting tables, work tables, machines, stools, etc. The agreement was determinable in the event (inter alia) of a receiving order in bkpcy. being made against the hirers, upon which all payments made by the hirers were forfeitable & the chattels were to be delivered to the owner. On Sept. 6, 1922, a receiving order was made against the hirers; on Sept. 21 they were adjudicated bkpt., & on Sept. 25 a trustee in the bkpcy. was appointed. On motion by the trustee for a declaration that the chattels formed part of the estate of bkpts. as being in their order & disposition with the consent of the true owner:—Held: there was no proof of a general custom of hiring out chattels such as were specified in the agreement, nor was such a custom recognised by the cts. 6858a. Judgment debt.]—S., a customer of bkpt., a stockbroker, became indebted to him in respect of Stock Exchange transactions in a sum for which bkpt., on Dec. 18, 1923, recovered judgment. Later, S. became similarly indebted to bkpt. in a further sum. On Jan. 15, 1924, bkpt. assigned both debts to W. to secure £500, & covenanted with him that, in the event of his refraining from giving notice of the assignment to S., he, bkpt., would, on payment of the debts or any part thereof, hand the cheque or other form of payment to W. On Feb. 27, 1924, bkpt. committed an act of bkpcy. In Mar. 1924, J., who acted as solr. for both bkpt. & W. in the matter of the assignment, on the instructions of both & without disclosing same, made an agreement with S. for the liquidation of the two debts, whereby S. undertook to pay the aggregate amount thereof by monthly instalments, the first instalments being allocated to the payment of the later of the two debts & the subsequent ones to the payment of the judgment debt; & S. further agreed to deliver promissory notes payable to bkpt. or order to cover the instalments allocated to the later debt. J. received the notes from S. & as agent of W., collected the amounts as they fell due on the notes & paid part thereof to W. & retained the balance. After payment J. returned the notes to S. to be cancelled. At that time neither J. nor W. nor S. had notice of any available act of bkpcy. On Sept. 18, 1924, a receiving order was made, at which date S. had paid & W. had received from J. sums amounting to £90 in respect of the later debt. gave notice to S. of the assignment. On Sept. 25, 1924, an order of adjudication was made, & on Oct. 7, 1924, appct. was appointed trustee. In Apr. 1925, W. died, & his exor. was made resp. to the motion by which a declaration was sought that the two debts were at the commencement of the bkpcy. in the order & disposition of bkpt. & property of bkpt. divisible amongst his creditors:—Held: (1) the earlier debt, which, admittedly, arose in the course of bkpt.'s business, was, notwithstanding its conversion into a judgment debt, none the less at the commencement of the bkpcy. a debt due in the course of his business & in the order & disposition of bkpt. & divisible amongst his creditors; (2) the agreement between bkpt. & S. & the deposit of the notes by bkpt. with W. having been effected after the commencement of the bkpcy., in the absence of knowledge on the part of either S. or W. of an available act of bkpcy., & the ct. inferring an agreement by W. with bkpt., in consideration of the deposit of the notes, not to enforce payment of the advance so long as S. paid the amounts as & when they fell due, constituted valid transactions for valuable consideration within 1914 Act, s. 45, & apart from such inference, the forbearance of W. on the strength of the deposit of the notes to sue & his acceptance of the instalments constituted sufficient consideration for the deposit of the notes; (3) even if the trustee was entitled to recover the instalments paid after the date of the receiving order, the amount paid before that date was a payment protected by sect. 45 (b); & the judgment debt formed part of the property of bkpt. divisible amongst his creditors, while the claim in respect of the other debt should be dismissed.—*Re WETHERED, Ex p. After retaining the £53 for fourteen days he paid it to the execution creditors. On Apr. 26 the sheriff made a third levy, but the goods seized being found on interpleader to belong to a third party, he finally withdrew & made a return of nulla bona on May 2. 6965a. "Any other petition"—Notice not given within fourteen days.]—A sheriff, on behalf of an execution creditor, levied an execution against debtor for more than £20, & received the money from debtor to avoid a sale. Within fourteen days of the payment the sheriff received notice of a bkpcy. petition on which an order would have been made had not debtor in the meanwhile filed his own petition on which a receiving order was made as a matter of course. Notice of this second petition was given to the sheriff more than fourteen days after the payment, but while the money was still in his hands pending the result of the first petition. The trustee in bkpcy. & the execution creditor both claimed the money :—Held : the words in 1914 Act, s. 41 (2), "or on any other petition of which the sheriff has notice," were not to be qualified by the addition of the words "within the said fourteen days" so as to permit the sheriff to pay the proceeds of the execution to the execution creditor because notice of the second petition on which the receiving order was made was not given within fourteen days of the receipt of such proceeds. The sheriff must hold, in the first instance, to see whether a receiving order would be made, & if he had notice of another petition, even after the lapse of fourteen days, then he must hold to see whether an order would be made on that other petition, or on any petition.—*LATTER v. In the meantime, however, a receiving order was made on Nov. 1, 1920, & petitioning creditors, the execution creditors, informed the official receiver of the sum of money being in ct. & of the terms of settlement so agreed as aforesaid. Thereupon the official receiver intervened, & on Nov. 1, 1920, gave notice in writing to the Paymaster-General of the Supreme Ct. of the receiving order, & this notice had the effect of preventing the order being acted upon. The trustee moved for a declaration that the deed of gift was void as against him:—Held: (1) the deed of gift was a voluntary settlement &, being made within two years of the bkpcy., was void; (2) the execution having been completed & the proceeds held by the sheriff for fourteen days, the trustee's title was barred, because, although the execution was not completed before the sheriff had been in possession for twenty-one days, the act of bkpcy. thereby created had not occurred within three months of the presentation of the petition & was not therefore available to establish the trustee's title.—*Re CHIANDETTI, Ex p. 7166a. —.]—To constitute a fraudulent preference three conditions must be fulfilled; (1) that the payment is made by a person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money; (2) that it in fact prefers one creditor over others; (3) that the dominant motive with which the payment was made was a desire to prefer that creditor to whom the payment was made. If a voluntary payment in fact gives a creditor a preference & the reason for such payment is unexplained, then a presumption of preference arises. Debtor was able to pay his creditors 2s. in the pound, but the transfer of the goods to applt. was arranged on a basis that the debt was worth 20s. in the pound & the goods were not of the class with which applt. was in the habit of dealing, & applt. knew that debtor was unable to pay his debts, & the transaction took place on the eve of bkpcy. when debtor must have known he had no chance of pulling round. The 1914 Act, s. 44. The effect of that sect. is not to render the personal liability of an agent to repay a debt, payment of which he has received on behalf of his principal, greater than his liability in a case where money has been paid to him for the use of his principal in circumstances which entitle the person paying it to recover it back, even though it should turn out that, in fact, the payment constituted a fraudulent preference within the sect.

M. being indebted to G. & also to a co. for the price of goods supplied, on Jan. 14, 1921, paid to C. & B., agents of G. & the co. & to the knowledge of debtor, authorised to receive the payment the sum of £1,500 in settlement of the amounts respectively owing to G. & the co. The agents in the ordinary course of their employment received that sum for the use of their principals & paid over part thereof to G. & the balance to the co., such payment being made in good faith, in the belief that the payment was a good & valid payment, in ignorance of the impending bkpcy. of debtor & long before any claim by the trustees in the bkpcy. On Feb. 11, 1921, debtor committed an act of bkpcy. by assigning his property in favour of his creditors, & on Mar. 12, 1921, a receiving order was made against him on which he was adjudicated bkpt. 7603a. — Employee of company—Refusal of company to pay—Termination of employment alleged.]—Bkpt., after his adjudication, entered into an agreement of service in writing for one year at a salary of £1,000, the agreement being signed in the name of a joint stock co., underneath which was the name of the managing director followed by the words, "managing director." An order was subsequently made by a registrar, under 1914 Act, s. 51 (2), that £300 out of a sum of £416 13s. 4d. due under the agreement from the co. &/or its managing director to bkpt. be forthwith paid by them to the trustee of the estate of bkpt. When the registrar made that order the only parties before the ct. were the trustee & bkpt. Neither the co. nor its managing director paid the £300, but alleged that nothing was due to bkpt. upon the ground that he had broken the agreement by absenting himself from his employment. The trustee then served a notice of motion in the High Ct. upon the co. & its managing director asking for a declaration that he was entitled to the £300 from resps. as forming part of the property of bkpt., & for an order for payment of that amount. The judge found that no dismissal had taken place nor had bkpt., by his conduct, given notice of his intention not to perform the contract which could be treated by resps. as an anticipatory breach. No point was taken as to whether the managing director was properly made a resp.:—Held: in the circumstances there must be a declaration & order for payment in terms of the notice of motion.—Re LAVEY, Ex p. 8104a. — Costs of carrying out order of court.]— Upon a motion by a trustee in bkpcy. to which bkpt.'s wife was resp. a declaration was made that certain furniture which was upon premises occupied by bkpt. & his wife formed part of the property of bkpt. divisible among the creditors, & the ct. ordered the wife to account on oath before a registrar for the furniture & to pay the taxed costs of & incident to the motion. At the end of the declaration & order a provision was inserted, at the request of, & by way of indulgence to, the wife that, with a view to the furniture being bought by or on behalf of the wife from the trustee at a valuation by an independent valuer to be appointed by the parties or in case of difference to be appointed by the judge, & the wife undertaking not to part with or dispose of the furniture, execution should not issue except by leave of the judge. The furniture was valued by a firm of valuers selected by the wife out of three firms suggested by the trustee, & bought by or on behalf of the wife at a price based upon the valuation. Upon the taxation of the trustee's solrs.' bill of costs, the taxing master disallowed as against the wife the fee paid by the trustee to the firm of valuers, upon the ground that the costs relating to the purchase of the furniture by or on behalf of the wife under the valuation did not come within the order, & were not costs of carrying it out. On a motion by the solrs. to review the taxation:—Held: the taxation must be reviewed & the fee for the valuation allowed as against the wife, inasmuch as it formed part of the costs of carrying out the order & was therefore within the rule that where costs of suit are given generally by decree at the hearing, the subsequent costs of working out the directions of the decree will be included.—*Re LAVEY, Ex p. Costs of transcript of shorthand notes of evidence.]—The trustee by motion applied against resp. to impeach certain transactions & gave formal notice by letter that he would read in support of the motion the transcript of the shorthand notes of the evidence given by witnesses at a private sitting. This motion was dismissed with costs. On taxing resp.'s bill of costs the taxing master disallowed part of the transcript as irrelevant to the motion & reduced counsel's fees accordingly. On motion for a review of taxation:—Held: having regard to the terms of the notice to read the transcript resp.'s solr. was justified in bespeaking & paying for the whole of the transcript, & it was his duty to supply the whole transcript to counsel, & accordingly, resp. was entitled to all the costs of & consequential upon so doing.—*Re MARKS, Ex p. them to pay $4 a week out of their respective salaries under 1914 Act, s. 51 (2). On Jan. 13, 1921, upon the application of the official receiver as trustee, under sect. 53 (1) of the Act, no trustee having been appointed, & it appearing to the ct. that bkpts., as partners, were then in receipt of at least $200 a week under a contract with the A. Co., the above orders were varied, & orders were made that during the continuance of the engagement of bkpts. at the A. each should pay weekly $25 out of his salary to the official receiver during the bkpcy., the first payment to be made on Jan. 15, 1921, with liberty to bkpts. to apply in the event of the employment with the A. Co. being determined. Appeals from these orders were dismissed by the Ct. of Appeal. Bkpts. having made default in payment of instalments under the orders, the official receiver as trustee applied for a committal of bkpts. for contempt of ct. under sect. 22 (4) of the Act. 8645a. ——— To entertain claim to enforce right adverse to deed—Creditor not entitled to benefit of deed.]—In 1922 applt. entered into the employment of debtor as manageress of his business, & as a condition of such employment she lent him a sum of £500 for the repayment of which he gave her a charge on his share & interest in his business. In 1924 debtor executed a deed of arrangement for the benefit of his creditors generally. The deed was expressed to be made between debtor of the first, the trustee of the second part, three named creditors of the third part, & "the several persons, companies, & partnership firms, being creditors of debtor, whose names & seals are set out & affixed to the schedule hereto, or who shall otherwise in writing assent to these presents, hereinafter called 'the creditors'" of the fourth part. Applt., who refused to consent to the deed, applied under the above sect. for a declaration that she was entitled as against the trustee of the deed to a charge on all the share & interest, with the exception of chattels, of debtor in his business, & for an order that the trustee should hand over & execute such documents as might be necessary for the purpose of transferring the share & interest to applt. The registrar in bkpcy. dismissed the application on the ground that he had no jurisdiction under the sect. to entertain it. On appeal:—Held: (1) the object of the sect. was to provide a trustee or cestui que trust under a deed of arrangement with a summary means of obtaining a determination of questions arising in the administration of the trusts of the deed similar to that provided by originating summons in the Ch. Div. under R. S. C. Ord. 55, r. 3; (2) applt. was not a creditor entitled to the benefit of the deed; creditors so entitled were those defined as such by the deed, & applt., not having assented to the deed, did not come within that category; (3) applt.'s claim was not for the enforcement intent & not the effect is to be looked at, & where the effect of a conveyance is merely to prefer one creditor over another, the intent to prefer not being an intent to defraud, there is no offence.—R. v. CREW, [1926] 4 D. L. R. 841; 46 Can. Crim. Cas. 123; 59 O. L. R. 201.—CAN.

8778a. -- .]—In 1904 debtor who was heavily indebted, & against whom bkpcy. proceedings were pending, signed an instrument under which a trustee was to receive the whole of debtor's income &, after making certain deductions, to distribute the balance among the creditors, & in consideration of the arrangement the creditors agreed that all proceedings in bkpcy. or otherwise were to be stayed & to accept payment of their debts by instalments & to release debtor from all claims or demands in respect of their debts. The instrument provided that no document executed by debtor should be registered under the above Act. A number of the then creditors including appct. assented to the instrument, which was never registered under the Act. The arrangement was carried out until the death of debtor, which occurred in Nov. 1918, appct. receiving pro rata amounts on his debt between Aug. 1905 & July 1917. The debt carried interest at 4 per cent. & the payments under the arrangement to appct. were not sufficient to cover the interest so that an amount exceeding the original debt was still owing to appct. In Feb. 1919, an administration order under 1914 Act, s. 130, was made upon a creditor's petition for the administration of deceased debtor's estate as being a person who had died insolvent, & the estate was being administered by the official receiver. At the time of debtor's death there was in the hands of the trustee under the instrument a sum of £465 8s. 3d. which the official receiver claimed on the ground that it formed part of the general estate of debtor, & the trustee paid the amount to him upon the terms that the official receiver was to be in the same position as he would have been if the money had remained in the trustee's hands. On a motion by appct. for a declaration that the £465 8s. 3d. was held by the trustee on behalf of the assenting creditors, including appct., was divisible amongst them, & that appct. was entitled to prove in the administration of the estate for the balance due to him from debtor after giving credit for all sums received or receivable under the arrangement :—Held : (1) the instrument was a deed of arrangement within 1887 Act, s. 4 (2), upon the ground that it was an assignment of property by debtor for the benefit of his creditors generally & also upon the ground that it was an agreement for a composition ; (2) not having been registered it was void under sect. 5 of the Act ; (3) as the instrument was void it created no trust for the benefit of the creditors, & the trustee under the instrument held the £465 8s. 3d. to the use of the official receiver as the representative of debtor, & was bound to repay it to him ; (4) as the only direction to apply the money received by the trustee was contained in the void instrument & all parties knew & acted upon the assumption that it was invalid, deceased debtor would not have been, nor was the official receiver as his repreundertakes to pay to the above trustee for the creditors £80 payable . . . (3) M. also undertakes to pay on his own account (certain creditors named therein) who shall be excluded from the list of the general creditors. I agree to these terms":—Held: the agreement was for the benefit of three or more creditors, made by a debtor who was at the date of the execution of the deed insolvent, & was a deed of arrangement within sect. 1 of the above Act, & was void owing to non-registration.—LANDSBERG v. MENDEL, [1924] W. N. 46.

8782d. Deed of arrangement made by insolvent debtor.—A debtor, who was insolvent, under a scheme for the composition of his debts, which amounted to about £150,000, entered into a deed of arrangement with his creditors under which he agreed to pay his trade creditors, including pltf.s, a composition of their claim, together with certain profits out of his business up to Apr. 30, 1926, & he covenanted to carry on that business up to that date, the creditors covenanting to release him from the full amount of his liability. Some of his creditors, whose claims amounted to £150 were not parties to the scheme or deed, & acting under legal advice, debtor did not register the deed. After paying his trade creditors, including pltf.s, a small portion of the composition, debtor sold his business & entered into another scheme of arrangement with his creditors, to which pltf.s. refused to be parties, & they sued for the original debt owing to them, less the amount which they had received under the composition:—Held: (1) the deed came within Deeds of Arrangement Act, 1914 (c. 47), s. 1 (1) (b), & not being registered, was void; (2) pltf.s, who had assented to the deed, were not estopped by such assent from denying the validity of the deed; (3) assuming that they were so estopped, debtor, by selling his business before Apr. 30, 1926, had not fulfilled the conditions of the deed under which he would be released from his original liability, & therefore pltf.s. were relegated to their original rights & were entitled to succeed on their claim. The authorities on the doctrine of estoppel as applicable to deeds of arrangement considered.—HUDDERSFIELD FINE WORSTEDS, LTD. v. TODD (1925), 134 L. T. 82; 42 T. L. R. 52.

- Particular purpose—Frau lent use for another purpose.]—A cheque was signed in blank by one of the partners in a syndicate, in the belief that the stamp of the syndicate would be subsequently affixed & the cheque used for the ordinary business of the syndicate. It was made payable to another partner, & was indorsed by a third partner, who believed the same as the drawer, as well as by the payee. The payee, in fraud of the other two partners, did not affix the stamp of the syndicate & used the cheque for the purpose of raising a loan from money-lenders, for which he gave a promissory note binding him to repay an agreed sum by monthly instalments. When one of the instalments fell due, the cheque was tendered in payment & was dishonoured upon presentation, & the money-lenders then sued the drawer & the indorser:—Held: the drawer & indorser were liable on the cheque, as there had been nothing to put plffs. on inquiry whether a fraud was being perpetrated by the payee, & as both defts., when signing the document, had intended that the document should be negotiated as a cheque, the cheque could not be regarded as a document given in escrow.—*GUILDFORD TRUST, LTD. v. The drawer when sending the bill to the co. for acceptance stated in his letter that as a condition of his doing the work for which the bill was drawn he should require it to be indorsed by the directors as well as accepted by the co. Accordingly the same two directors signed the bill also on the back, "Fashions Fair Exhibition, Ltd. A.B. & C.D., directors," & one of them when returning the accepted bill drew attention in his letter to the fact that it was duly indorsed by two directors of the co. as requested by you." In an action against A.B. & C.D. as indorsers of the bill:—Held: (1) they were personally liable, upon the ground that if the indorsement was to be treated as that of the co. it gave no greater validity to the bill than was already contained in the acceptance, & therefore under 1882 Act, s. 26 (2), the construction that it was the personal indorsement of defts. was to be adopted; (2) even if the indorsement stood by itself, as defts.' signature did not in terms say that they were signing on behalf of the co., the addition to their names of the word "directors" must be treated as a word of description only & not as excluding their liability; (3) the ct. were entitled to look at the surrounding circumstances under which the bill was signed, including the letters which passed between the parties on the subject of the indorsement, from which it was to be inferred that defts. by indorsing intended to guarantee the payment of the bill.—*ELLIOTT v. - 2049a. On bills drawn against confirmed credit—Bills not presented to bank.]—Applts., merchants at Calcutta, sold goods to merchants in London at c.i.f. price, payment by drafts against a confirmed credit, to be opened by the buyers. On shipment of the goods

applts. drew on the buyers bills payable to resps., who negotiated them with notice that they were drawn against a confirmed credit opened by the buyers with the E. Bank. Applts. handed to resps. with the bills the shipping documents, also a memorandum describing the bills as D/A, i.e., documents against acceptance, drafts. Resps. handed the documents to the buyers against their acceptances, which were dishonoured upon maturity. Resps. sued applts. as drawers of the bills:—Held: resps. were entitled & bound to treat the description of the bills as D/A drafts as a direction to hand the documents to the drawers on their acceptance, & applts. had no defence, set-off or counterclaim in respect of the loss of the rights which they would have had under the confirmed credit, if the documents had been handed to the E. 2096a. —.]—J. sold certain goods to C., Ltd., of which G. was managing director & in which he was largely interested. In payment for these goods J. drew a bill of exchange to his own order at three months for £450 upon C., Ltd., who accepted it, & it was indorsed by G. before J. had indorsed it as payee, & his name appeared below that of G. The bill was indorsed by G. in order to enable J. to discount it, & for no consideration moving from J. to G., who was to be under no liability to J. The bill was discounted by J.'s bank & was not met at maturity. An arrangement was subsequently made by which C., Ltd., paid £100 in cash to the bank in part satisfaction & the bank received two bills drawn by J. to his own order & accepted by C., Ltd., for £175 each at one month & two months respectively. These bills were indorsed by G. before they were signed by J. either as drawer or payee. They were afterwards indorsed by J., whose name appeared on the bills below that of G. The first bill not having been met at maturity, J. took it up & sued C., Ltd., & G. upon the bill & recovered judgment, & afterwards presented a petition in bkpcy. in the county ct. against G., founded on the judgment debt, upon which a receiving order was made against him. On appeal :—Held : (1) J. had authority under 1882 Act, s. 20, to fill in his own name as drawer & payee; (2) there was sufficient consideration passing from J. to G. to entitle J. to sue G. on the bill notwithstanding the order in which the signatures appeared on the bill; (3) by reason of the agreement between J. & G., G. could not have set up any defence against J. arising out of his own prior indorsement; (4) the judgment debt was a good petitioning creditor's debt & the receiving order was rightly made.—*Re GOOCH, Ex p. 2096b. —.]—In May, 1920, applts. sold to A. & Co. 19,000 cases of tinned soup at the price of 10s. per case, cash against delivery order. A. & Co., being unable to find the money, applied for financial assistance to resps., who undertook as between themselves & A. & Co. to find 75 per cent. of the money, there being then about 16,000 cases which had not been taken up. On Aug. 10, 1920, at a meeting between applts., resps. & A. & Co., it was agreed that resps. should indorse a series of eight bills of exchange, seven for £1,000 each & one for £117 odd, to be drawn by applts. on A. & Co. payable six months after date to applts.' order, & that applts., in consideration of the bills being duly indorsed by resps., should hand to resps. delivery orders for the balance of the cases. These bills were at once drawn by applts. on A. & Co. expressed to be payable to applts.' order, & were accepted by A. & Co. & indorsed by resps. Room was left above the name of resps. for the indorsement of the name of any person to whom applts. should direct payment. Resps. then handed the bills to applts. in exchange for the delivery orders. One bill having been discharged, applts. shortly before the remaining bills became due indorsed their name as payee on the bills above resps.' signature. Applts. duly presented the bills to A. & Co., who dishonoured them. They then gave notice of dishonour & claimed payment from resps., who denied liability. In an action by applts. to recover the amount of the bills against resps. as indorsers :—Held : (1) on the facts resps. must be taken to have intended to make themselves liable to applts. on the bills; (2) the bills, when handed to applts., were wanting in a material particular within 1882 Act, s. 20, by reason of the absence of any indorsement by applts. above the signature of resps., & applts. had implied authority to fill in their name as payees, as they did, over the name of resps.; & when so filled up, the bills became retrospectively enforceable.—*McDONALD (GERALD) & CO. v. 2416a. ——— Verbal agreement for acceptance of composition.]—Pltf. was the holder of a bill of exchange accepted by deft. for goods supplied. Before the bill became due deft. had made a verbal offer to his creditors to pay a composition in discharge of his liabilities. At a meeting of the creditors, which was attended by pltf.'s agent, the creditors passed a resolution accepting deft.'s offer. The resolution was reduced to writing & was signed by a number of the creditors, including pltf.'s agent, but not by deft. The creditors subsequently executed a deed assigning their debts to deft.'s solr. in consideration of deft.'s solr. paying the amounts owing to them under the composition. Pltf. was not a party to that deed. In an action by the holder of the bill against the acceptor, for the amount of the bill:—Held: upholding a contention of pltf., which was not raised in the cts. below, 1882 Act, s. 62, had not been complied with, as pltf. had neither renounced his rights under the bill in writing, nor delivered the bill up to the acceptor &, therefore, pltf. was entitled to recover the full amount of the bill.—*RIMALT v. - 93a. Room on borrower's premises.
Deft. co., in order to secure pltf. against loss on a certain contract & in consideration of pltf. giving further time within which to pay for the goods, set aside certain specified goods in two rooms on defts.' premises, which were locked up & the keys handed to pltf., no other goods being in those two rooms. The terms of the transaction were recorded in two letters written by deft. co. to pltf., one letter written before the keys were handed over, & the second letter subsequently. The second letter contained the words: "The goods to be locked up, the keys in your possession, & you to have the right to remove same as desired." The co. went into liquidation & the liquidator claimed that the transaction was invalid under Companies Act, 1908 (c. 69), s. 93 (1) (c), as being a charge created or evidenced by an instrument which if executed by an individual would require registration as a bill of sale. Pltf. brought an action claiming a declaration that the goods were in his possession, & that he was entitled to remove them:—Held: possession of the goods passed to pltf. by the delivery of the keys of the rooms in which they were locked up, notwithstanding that those rooms were on defts.' premises, inasmuch as defts. had conferred upon pltf. a licence to make the necessary entry in order to use the keys, which licence could not be revoked, & therefore the transaction was valid as against the liquidator, & pltf. was entitled to remove the goods.—*WRIGHTSON v. Letter assigning chattel in hands of third party—Or proceeds of sale—As security for overdraft.]—The owner of a motor car which was in the hands of deft., a motor engineer, for the purpose of repairs, & which he had instructed deft. to sell on his behalf when repaired, had an account at pltf.'s bank, which was overdrawn. Being requested by pltf. to give security for the overdraft he wrote to deft. a letter authorising him "to hold the car to the order of" the bank "or the proceeds when sold," & sent a copy of that letter to pltf. The letter was not registered as a bill of sale. The car having been sold & the price received by deft., pltf. claimed the proceeds:—Held: the letter in question created one entire charge upon the car & the proceeds which represented it, & the equitable assignment of the proceeds could not be severed from the assignment of the car itself; the letter

- was consequently a bill of sale & void for want of registration & for non-compliance with the statutory form.—NATIONAL PROVINCIAL & UNION BANK OF ENGLAND v. LINDSELL, [1922] 1 K. B. 21; 91 L. J. K. B. 196; 126 L. T. 319; 66 Sol. Jo. (W. R.) 11; [1921] B. & C. R. 209.

- 138a. Letter of trust on redelivery for realisation of pledged bills of lading.]—A limited co. pledged bills of lading with a bank to secure an overdraft. When it was time to sell the goods, the co. in accordance with the well-established mercantile practice obtained the bills of lading from the bank for realisation on the terms stated in the usual letter of trust given by the co. to the bank, to wit, that the co. received the bills of lading in trust on the bank's account & undertook to hold the goods when received & the proceeds when sold as the bank's trustees & to remit the entire net proceeds as realised:—Held: the letter of trust was not a bill of sale at all within the definition of 1878 Act, s. 4. Semle: if it had been so, it would on the evidence have been a document "used in the ordinary course of business" within the

This was carried out, & to secure the purchase price pltf. took from A. a seed grain mtge. on the crop to be grown:—Held: as A. did not require the whole of the wheat for seed, & as the price fixed had no relation to the value of the wheat but was fixed with reference to the debt owing by A. to pltf., the actual value being much less than the price agreed on, the transaction could not be considered a bona fide sale to A., & pltf.'s mtge. was invalid.—*LYNCH v. Pltf. accordingly received a cheque for £1,000 from defts., & after receiving it she executed the second bill of sale, which stated that the consideration for it was £1,000 paid to pltf. In an action by pltf. to restrain defts. from disposing of the furniture comprised in the second bill of sale, pltf. relied on 1882 Act, s. 8, & she contended that the real consideration was the payment off of the money-lender & the release of her furniture from the first bill of sale:—Held: the consideration for the second bill of sale was the loan of £1,000, & as a cheque was a good payment until dishonoured there was no need to state in the second bill of sale that the payment was by cheque, & therefore, as the consideration was correctly stated in the second bill of sale, the action failed.—*D'USEZ v. 228a. & grantor's creditors paid by grantee.]—(1) On June 24, 1925, the parties to a bill of sale for £1,000 entered into an agreement that the grantee should pay, as he then did, £600 to creditors of the grantor in satisfaction of their debt, that the existing bill of sale should be cancelled, & that the grantor should give to the grantee a new bill of sale for £1,600. The new bill of sale provided that "in consideration of £1,600 paid to" the grantor "by" the grantee "on June 24, 1925," the grantor assigned the chattels to the grantee:—Held: the new bill of sale truly set forth the consideration for which it was given, as required by 1882 Act, s. 8.

(2) A bill of sale provided that the grantor would pay the grantee the principal sum of £1,600 with the interest then due "on Dec. 24, 1925." A contemporaneous mtge. of other property, given as part of the same transaction & as a collateral security for the principal sum, provided as follows: "The mtgor." (the grantor of the bill of sale) "hereby covenants with the mtgee." (the grantee) "to pay to him on Dec. 24 next £1,600 with interest thereon, & it is hereby agreed & declared that (subject to the right of the mtgee. to require repayment of the principal on Dec. 24 next according to the foregoing covenant by the mtgor. or at any time thereafter) the principal money hereby secured shall be repaid by instalments of not less than £20" on specified dates; these provisions not being contained in the bill of sale:—Held: the bill of sale by being made contemporaneously with, & as part of the same transaction as, the mtge. containing that clause for repayment of the principal by instalments, was not made or given subject to a "defeasance or condition" within 1878 Act, s. 10 (3), & the fact that that clause was not contained in the body of the bill of sale or written on the same paper or parchment therewith did not avoid the registration of the bill of sale under that sub-sect.—*STOTT v. 237a. ———.]—Pltf., H., had a number of betting transactions with deft., W., a book-maker, since 1918. Pltf. lost various bets & paid his losses by cheques. He won other bets for which he was paid by various cheques. Eventually, pltf. obtained judgment against deft. for £692 10s. Execution was levied at the instance of the judgment creditor whereupon deft.'s wife, claimant in the interpleader proceedings which followed, claimed the goods seized, alleging that they belonged to her because her husband, the judgment debtor, had given her a bill of sale covering them to secure the repayment of a sum of £600 which she had advanced to him. The judgment creditor contended that the bill of sale was bad because it did not truly state the consideration. The bill of sale contained the words "In consideration of a sum of £600 now paid . . ." & the judgment creditor said that the £600 was not paid at the time of making the bill of sale, & therefore was not "now paid," as therein stated, but was paid some time later. It was therefore contended that the bill of sale was not a good bill of sale because the statement that the money was "now paid" was untrue. According to the evidence, deft.'s wife had borrowed the £600 from her mother to help her husband, & she handed the £600 over to her husband to pay his debts at 6 p.m., on the same day that the bill of sale was executed:—Held: there was evidence in the present case on which the county ct. judge could find that the £600 was "now paid" within the meaning of the statement in the bill; the bill of sale was executed, & the money was paid over by claimant at substantially the same time; the bill was therefore valid & the appeal must be dismissed.—*HENSHALL v. The furniture remained in the house, which continued to be occupied by the husband & wife. The deed was not registered under 1878 Act. Execution creditors under a judgment recovered in 1920 against the husband levied execution at the house. The wife claimed the furniture. In an interpleader issue between the wife & the execution creditors:—Held: the furniture was not in the possession or apparent possession of the husband within 1878 Act, s. 8, nor in his order & disposition or reputed ownership within Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (c. 75), s. 10.—*FRENCH v. One firm of solrs. acted for all the parties in this transaction. Subsequently the deed of gift was declared void under 13 Eliz. c. 5 as being in fraud of creditors. The furniture having been taken in execution by a judgment creditor the bill of sale holder claimed the furniture under the bill of sale. Interpleader proceedings were instituted in which the execution creditor alleged that the bill of sale was void under 1882 Act, s. 5, on the ground that the grantor was not the "true owner" of the furniture at the time of the execution of the bill of sale:—Held: until the deed of gift was set aside the donee thereunder was the "true owner" of the furniture, & as she had conveyed the furniture to a purchaser for value without notice before the deed of gift was set aside, claimant obtained a good title under the bill of sale.—*HARRODS, LTD. v. 880a. ———.]—In June, 1921, a bill of sale, which was duly registered, was given to secure £400 with interest at 24 per cent. per annum. An agreement was afterwards made by which the present claimant agreed with the grantor of the bill of sale to pay to the grantee £450 then owing thereon & to lend to the grantor a further sum of £550 upon having the payment of these sums, making together £1,000 with interest thereon, secured by a transfer of the £450 then owing on the bill of sale & the securities for the same. Subsequently, in Nov. 1921, a deed was made between the parties to the bill of sale & claimant, by which, in pursuance of the agreement & in consideration of £450 then paid to the grantee of the bill of sale by claimant, the grantee assigned to claimant the principal & interest secured by the bill of sale & all securities therefor, & the grantee also at the request of the grantor assigned to claimant the goods comprised in the bill of sale free from all equity of redemption under the bill of sale, but subject to a proviso for redempcomrs. were vested in pltfs. who had power under that Act to hold lands. Pltfs. claimed to be owners in possession of the foreshore between the new & the old wall. Deft. claimed under a conveyance of Apr. 1919 to be the freeholder in possession of a strip of land comprising part of this foreshore, & to be entitled as of right to excavate & remove shells & other drift even although, as pltfs. alleged, it deprived the new wall of protection & support, & exposed it to injury by the action of wind & water. The greater risk to the wall in consequence of deft.'s action was established by the evidence. In an action by pltfs. to restrain deft. from so removing the drift, & from trespassing on their land:—Held: (1) assuming the strip in question to be deft.'s freehold, pltfs. were still entitled to an injunction restraining him from so removing drift from the strip as to expose their wall & works & the lands protected thereby to greater risk of inundations of the sea; (2) pltfs. had established their statutory title under the Acts of 1792 & 1883 to the whole of the land taken & set out pursuant to s. 13 of the first Act, & had exercised specific acts of ownership over the foreshore; the possession of pltfs. & of deft. being at most doubtful or equivocal the law attached possession to the title; deft., therefore, was a trespasser, & must be restrained from excavating or removing stones, shingle, shell or soil from the particular strip of foreshore & from otherwise trespassing on same.—*CANVEY ISLAND COMRS. v. - damages, & not by way of penalty, the sum of £10 sterling for each day of delay & in deduction of the price stipulated in this contract, being excepted only the cause of force majeure &/or strikes of workmen of the building yard where the vessel is being built or the workshops where the machinery is being made, or at the works where steel is being manufactured for the steamer, or any works of any sub-contractor." As a result of the universal coal strike of 1912 the works from which defts. obtained their materials for other ships they were building got behindhand; the ship in turn to be built before pltf.'s occupied the berth that was intended to be occupied by pltf.'s much longer than otherwise she should have done, & consequently pltf.'s steamer was late in being laid down. The steamer having been delivered after the contract date, pltf. claimed damages:—Held: (1) the general dislocation of the business of defts. & those from whom they obtained materials operating indirectly on the completion of pltf.'s steamer, by preventing the completion of the vessel prior in turn, constituted a case of force majeure within the exceptions clause & excused defts. in respect of the delay so caused; (2) delay due to breakdown of machinery was, but delay due to bad weather was not, covered by the exception of force majeure.—*MATSOUKIS v. 230a. — Excess of cost of completion over contract price.—By a contract in writing dated May 12, 1916, deft. agreed to build for pltf. a house, subject to the conditions set forth in the schedule thereto, for the sum of £1,900. The conditions provided (inter alia) that deft. should begin the works immediately after possession of the site was given to him, & should regularly proceed with & complete the same within six months after the date of the plans being passed by the local authority, & that if deft. should suspend the works or should not proceed with them with due diligence, pltf. by his architect should have power to give notice to deft. requiring him to proceed, & on failure of deft. to comply with such notice for thirty days pltf. should be entitled to enter upon & take possession of the works & site & employ any other person to complete the works. On July 10, 1916, the plans were duly passed. On July 14, 1916, an order was made by the Minister of Munitions under the powers of the Defence of the Realm (Consolidation) Regulations, 1914, which provided that on & after July 20, 1916, no person should without licence from the Minister of Munitions commence or carry on any building or construction work. On July 21 deft. applied for a licence to proceed, & continued to work fairly well until Aug. 12, when he ceased to proceed with due diligence with the deliberate intention, as the ct. held, of ensuring that the licence should be refused & that he should thereby be enabled to put an end to the contract. On Sept. 9 pltf.'s architect gave him thirty days' notice to proceed with the works. On Sept. 30, before the expiration of the notice, the Minister of Munitions refused to grant the licence to proceed. In an action by pltf. for damages for breach of contract:—Held: deft. could not take advantage of the intervention of the Minister of Munitions, which was brought about by his own act, & the proper measure of damages was what it cost pltf. to complete the house substantially as it was originally intended & in a reasonable manner at the earliest moment he was allowed to proceed with the work, less any amount that would have been due & payable to deft. by pltf., had deft. completed the house to the roofing-in at the time agreed by the terms of his contract.—*MERTENS v. The builder finished his work, & the owner accepted possession of the house & paid two instalments of the account. Afterwards the outside walls began to crack, & it was discovered that the walls were off the plumb. In an action by the builder for the balance of his account, the owner averred that the defect in the walls was occasioned by the use of faulty materials in the construction of the concrete floors by the builder. The builder averred that the damage to the walls was caused by the use of unseasoned timber in the construction of the roof by the other contractor. Neither of these averments was established at the proof, but either of them might have been the cause of the cracking of the walls:—Held: breach of contract had not been established against pursuer, & he was entitled to decree for the balance of the contract price.—*CARRUTHERS v. 319a. — — —.]—A shipbuilding contract provided for payment of the price of the vessel by instalments, the first to be paid on the signing of the contract, the next when the keel was laid, & others at various stages in the progress of the ship's construction. She was to be constructed under the inspection of the purchasers' surveyor, to whose approval the quality of the material used & the workmanship were to be subject. Clause 6 provided that from & after payment by the purchasers to the builders of the first instalment on account of the price the vessel & all materials & things appropriated for her should thenceforth, subject to the lien of the builders for unpaid purchase-money including extras, become & remain the absolute property of the purchasers. After the first instalments of the purchase-money had been paid & the vessel had been partly constructed, a receiver was appointed in an action commenced by debenture-holders of the shipbuilding co. for enforcing their security :—Held : certain worked material lying in the yard ready to be incorporated into the hull of the vessel & approved by the purchasers' surveyor, had not been "appropriated for her" within the above clause so as to become the property of the purchasers.—*Re BLYTH SHIPBUILDING & DRY DOCKS CO., FORSTER v. arbitration clause.]—Building contractors assigned to a bank all money due & to become due to them under a building contract, which contained an arbn. clause, & the proper notice of the assignment was served on the building owners. Disputes having arisen regarding a claim by the contractors for compensation & extra payment, recourse was had to arbn. :—Held : (1) the arbitrator had jurisdiction to entertain the arbn., since the contractors' rights under the arbn. clause did not constitute a "legal" or "other remedy" for the debt within Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 136 (1), & were not passed & transferred to the bank by the assignment; (2) the arbitrator had to consider not merely the terms of the contract within the limits of the document, but also the application & enforcement of those terms, having regard to the whole legal position which the parties had created, including the relinquishment by the contractors themselves by the assignment of their right to claim the debt, & he must make his award in favour of the building owners.—COTTAGE CLUB ESTATES v. 388a. Clause restricting time for opening reference—“Until after completion of works”—Meaning of.—The form of building contract issued by the Royal Institute of British Architects provides, by condition 31 in the schedule thereto, that should the building owner not pay the builder any sum certified by the architect within the time limited by the contract, the builder is to be at liberty to determine the contract & recover from the building owner payment for all work executed. Condition 32 provides that in case any difference shall arise between the building owner & the builder as to the construction of the contract or as to any matter arising thereunder, such difference is to be referred to arbn., but that “such reference . . . shall not be opened until after the completion of the works.” During the progress of certain works which were being carried out under a building contract in the above form the building owner neglected to pay the builder a sum certified by the architect within the stipulated time, & thereupon the builder determined the contract under condition 31. The builder commenced arbn. proceedings while the contract works were still uncompleted, & the arbitrator made an award in his favour for the money due to him under the contract :—Held : the words “until after the completion of the works” in condition 32 meant until after completion of the whole of the works contracted for, & not merely until after completion of so much of the works as the builder was under the circumstances bound to perform; consequently the arbn. was premature & the arbitrator had no jurisdiction to make the award; or at all events the validity of the award was sufficiently doubtful to render it improper to enforce it summarily.—SMITH v. MARTIN, [1925] 1 K. B. 745; 94 L. J. K. B. 645; 133 L. T. 196, C. A.

e 1. ———.]—A contract for the construction of a covered way from the mainland to a lighthouse contained an arbn. clause, the first part of which referred all disputes, whenever arising, as to the contract & its execution to the employers' engineer, while the second part referred any dispute or claim arising after, or consequent on, the completion of the contract to another engineer. A dispute having arisen as to the rate payable for the removal of certain rock, the contractors refused to continue the work, & the employers took the work out of their hands. An action having been brought by the contractors for payment of sums alleged to be due under the contract & for damages :—Held : as the work was still in progress, the first part of the arbn. clause applied, it being immaterial that the work had been taken out of the hands of the pursuers, & action sisted to allow the arbn. to proceed.—CRAWFORD v. NORTHERN LIGHTHOUSES COMRS., [1925] S. O. (H. L.) 22.—SCOT.

PART XV. SECT. 4.

e 1. ———.]—A building contract contained a clause referring all disputes arising under the contract to the arbn. of the employers' engineer, who in fact superintended & directed the work :—Held : as the contractors had agreed

Under these certificates & documents pl'tfs. had to pay both the builders & the Board for the same material. In an action by pl'tfs. to recover the amount from deft. on the ground of negligence:—Held: as the certificates were only interim certificates, & as deft. on going into the figures with pl'tfs. had indicated to them that the amount paid to the Disposals Board was to be deducted from the final balance due to the contractors, deft. had not been guilty of

- 230a. ——— Insufficient surplus funds to carry out purchase.—Although a building society may transfer its mtges. either to an individual or to another building society, yet if it agrees to sell those securities to a purchaser & makes no stipulation as to what it is that the purchaser is to take under such agreement for sale, the only conclusion that can be drawn is that it agrees to transfer such benefits as it itself enjoys, & that it cannot do. Pltf. society was in liquidation, & in May, 1919, its liquidators entered into a contract with deft. society for the sale to deft. society of thirty-seven of the freehold & leasehold mtges. of pltf. society for £6,400. Deft. society having declined to complete, pltf. society issued a writ for specific performance. Subsequently the parties by agreement stated a special case for the opinion of the ct. as to, amongst other things, whether the contract was ultra vires deft. society, because it had not at the date of the contract surplus funds properly available for investment, & whether pltf. society could transfer the mtges. without the consent of the mtgors. Both these points were decided in favour of pltf. society:—Held: (1) although the contract might be intra vires in its inception, notwithstanding that deft. society had not sufficient surplus funds to carry it out, yet if at the time when an order was made for its specific performance deft. society had not sufficient surplus funds the effect of the order would be to require the society, which was not an investing society, to invest moneys which were not its surplus funds in a security in which it had no power to invest them; (2) a further effect of the order, if made, would be to require deft. society to borrow money to pay for the mtges.; & as its borrowing powers could not be resorted to except for borrowing for the purposes of the society, & as the purchase of the mtges. was not one of those purposes, the order would be an order requiring deft. society to do an ultra vires act; therefore no order for specific performance ought in the circumstances to be made; (3) having regard to the fact that the mtges. in question were building society mtges., pltf. society was not in a position to transfer to deft. society all the rights & benefits to which under them it was itself entitled, pltf. society was not ready & willing to perform its part of the contract, & consequently it could not enforce the contract.—*SUN BUILDING SOCIETY v. - 291a. —.]—A parish council being the duly constituted burial authority for the parish took from pltf., in consideration of a covenant to redeem the tithe rentcharges charged on the land being conveyed & on adjoining land retained by pltf., a conveyance of land "to hold the same . . . according to the true intent & meaning" of the Burial Acts. The land proved unfit & was never used for interments, & it was never fenced off or consecrated, nor did it adjoin any burial ground. The council agreed with pltf., with the approval of the parish meeting, to exchange the land for other land suitable for use as a burial ground:—Held: (1) the land first acquired by the council had never been "set apart for the purposes of interment" & was not therefore a "disused burial ground," so as to be subject to the restriction imposed by 1884 Act, s. 3; (2) the council had power to effect the exchange by virtue of the powers to sell land not required for interments & to buy land for the purposes of interment conferred respectively by 1852 Act, ss. 28 & 26, as extended by 1853 Act, s. 7.—*NICHOLL v. - 300a. Urinal.]—A borough council petitioned for a faculty to authorise the conversion of a consecrated churchyard, which had been wholly closed for interments by Order in Council, into an open space, & the laying out & maintenance of it as such. Authority was sought for laying out & maintaining part of the churchyard as a playground for children & for the erection upon it of urinals & a small toolshed:—Held: (1) the proposed urinals were "buildings" within 1884 Act, s. 2, & Open Spaces Act, 1887 (c. 32), s. 4, & the ct. had no jurisdiction to authorise their erection; (2) the proposed toolshed was necessary for the laying out & maintaining of the churchyard as an open space, & was not a "building" within the above Acts; (3) the facts proved justified the authorisation of games in the converted churchyard, but organised games, such as cricket & football, the laying out of tennis courts & the erection of swings & other structures should be prohibited. Faculty decreed, but not to issue until the council had made bye-laws embodying the above prohibitions & prescribing the hours during which the churchyard should be open to the public, so as to prevent any nuisance to the occupants of adjoining houses, & had carried a copy thereof into the diocesan registry for approval by the chancellor.—*BERMONDSEY BOROUGH COUNCIL v. Part I.—Who is a Common Carrier.

- 4a. —Defts., furniture removers & warehousemen, contracted to carry pltf.'s furniture from L. to H., the contract being subject to a condition that the contractors would not be responsible for loss or damage caused by fire. Part of the furniture, which was loaded on a motor lorry, was destroyed by fire, occasioned by the negligence of defts.' servants, the remaining portion being damaged by the fire. Pltf. sued defts. for the value of the goods damaged & destroyed:—Held: defts. were not liable, inasmuch as the condition that they would not be responsible for fire protected them from liability, since the clause would be of no effect unless it referred to fire caused by the negligence of defts., as, not being common carriers, they would not in any event be liable for loss caused by accidental fire.—*TURNER v. The goods, which were loaded on a motor van, were destroyed while in transit by fire, which was occasioned by the negligence of defts.' servants. Pltf. sued defts. for the value of the goods:—Held: as defts. were bailees only & not common carriers, &, therefore, not liable for an accidental fire, the condition must be construed as exempting them from liability for fire arising from their own negligence, as otherwise the condition would be of no effect.—*FAGAN v. In respect to luggage which did not fulfil these conditions, council were entitled to make such charge as they thought fit. Pltf., wishing to send a parcel of goods weighing some 50 lbs. to a customer, instructed his servant to convey it by one of defts.' tramcars. The servant did so, & in addition to paying his own fare paid 2d. for the parcel. When he arrived at his destination the servant claimed his parcel, but found that it had been lost. In an action brought by pltf. claiming damages:—Held: the provisions of sect. 42 of the private Act being inconsistent with one of the peculiar features of a common carrier, who was bound to carry all goods of the class which he proposed to carry, for all & sundry & irrespective of the fact that the goods were accompanied by a passenger, the London County Council were not common carriers of goods so as to be entitled to the benefit of Carriers Act, 1830 (c. 68).—*ROSENTHAL v. .]—A carrier who regularly receives for carriage upon terms limiting his liability may be under the obligations & subject to the liabilities of a common carrier in so far as the limitation of liability does not extend. He does not by limiting his liability assume for all purposes the position of a bailee for reward who is liable only for negligence of himself or his servants, unless the limitation of liability is so extensive as to be inconsistent with the profession or contract of a common carrier.

A consignor who tenders to carriers for carriage goods apparently harmless but in fact dangerous, whether the carriers are common carriers bound by the custom of the realm to carry goods provided they are safe & fit for carriage or whether they are a railway co. bound by statute to afford reasonable facilities for the receiving, forwarding & delivering of goods, must give warning of the danger; otherwise he impliedly warrants that the goods are safe & fit for carriage.

Forwarding agents delivered to a railway co. for carriage certain carboys containing a corrosive fluid & also certain bales of felt goods on the terms of consignment notes exempting the co. from liability in certain events & stating that they did not undertake to carry dangerous goods except on special conditions. The carboys were insufficient to contain the fluid, which escaped & injured the felt goods. The co. professed to carry the felt goods as common carriers. The owner of the felt goods claimed damages against the co., & the co. paid £437 in settlement of the claim. In an action by the co. against the forwarding agents to recover this sum as damages for breach of warranty:—Held: (1) the terms of the consignment notes did not prevent the co. from being, as they professed to be, common carriers of the felt goods; (2) the co. were therefore liable as insurers, & without proof of negligence, to the owner of the felt goods; (3) they were entitled to recover from the forwarding agents, as upon an implied warranty that the carboys were fit to be carried, the amount they had paid to the owner of the felt goods

560a. — Warning not heard by passenger—Passenger asleep.—Pltf. was a passenger on defts.' railway to G. by a train which arrived at that station while it was still daylight. Owing to the train being too long for the platform at G., upon its arrival there the hindmost carriage, in which pltf. was, stopped short of the platform. A porter shouted to the passengers to keep their seats, but pltf., who was asleep, did not hear him. On waking pltf. realised that he was at G. station, &

fearing that he might be carried on, got out in a hurry without looking to see what he was stepping on. There being a drop of five feet from the carriage floor to the ground, he fell & was injured:—Held: even if in the circumstances defts. were negligent, of which the ct. thought there was no evidence, pltf.'s act in getting out without looking where he was going was contributory negligence, & defts. were not responsible.—*SHARPE v. This voucher is only available by workman's train." The voucher, on presentation at the booking office, was exchanged for a ticket. One side of the ticket had on it (inter alia) the words: "See back. Workmen. By special cheap train for the 'working classes.'" On the other side were (inter alia) the words: "This ticket is issued subject to the bye-laws, rules & regulations of the Managing Committee," & "This ticket is issued subject to the conditions mentioned in the Managing Committee's Act (62 & 63 Vict. c. clxviii), & its use by the holder is to be taken as evidence of a special contract upon those conditions. The liability of the co. is limited to a sum not exceeding £100." The above-mentioned Act contained provisions as to the running of workmen's trains on the particular railway within twenty miles of London, & limited the co.'s liability to £100, subject to certain conditions. Pltf. was injured by a collision between his train & another train. In an action for damages defts. admitted negligence, but contended that the issue of the ticket created a special contract between themselves & pltf. whereby their liability was limited to £100. locked, & the third, a few feet beyond, was standing open. There was no artificial light in the passage, & the daylight was waning. Pltf.'s wife passed through the open doorway & immediately fell down a flight of stairs into the basement below, & was severely injured.—Held: the third doorway was a trap or concealed place of danger, & was a place to which pltf.'s wife might reasonably have been expected to go in the belief, reasonably entertained, that she was entitled or invited to do so.—KNOWLTON v. HYDRO ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION OF ONTARIO, [1926] 1 D. L. R. 217; 58 O. L. R. 80.—CAN.

sd. ——— Doors leading from—of carrier.—The public cannot assume that access is allowed through all the doors opening into or leading into or leading out of a waiting room. When the doors intended for public use are indicated, failure to put on the other doors notices that ingress through them is forbidden does not amount to negligence; on the contrary, the absence of any notice should put the public upon inquiry whether it should attempt to open these doors & to proceed further into a place where it has no business. But, even if failure to keep such doors locked may amount to negligence, the carrier will not be liable for an accident to a passenger where the cause of the accident was the passenger's own want of caution in proceeding beyond such a door in the dark & in a strange place.—CANADIAN NATIONAL RYS. CO. v. LEPAGE, [1927] 3 D. L. R. 1030; [1927] S. C. R. 575.—CAN.

p i. ————.]—The form of contract or shipping order used by a ry. co. in connection with the transportation of live stock provided that an attendant should accompany the shipment, but should not have the right to travel free or at a rate less than the ordinary fare, unless he had signed the special form of contract printed on the back of the shipping bill, which contained limitations as to claims for personal injuries sustained while travelling. In an action to recover damages for injuries during transportation, due to the negligence of the ry. co.'s servants:—Held: the fact that the attendant had not paid any fare was due to the fact that the ry. co.'s agent made no attempt to collect the fare, & the ry. co. was responsible for the omission; the attendant was a full-fare passenger & not a trespasser & was entitled to recover damages.—*STEWART v. sm. Passenger standing on platform of moving car.—A passenger who leaves his seat in a tramway car & goes on to the platform, while the car is in motion, is not necessarily guilty of contributory negligence should he meet with an accident while on the platform, the question depending in each case upon the particular circumstances.—BUCHANAN v. GLASGOW CORPN., [1921] S. C. 668.—SCOT.

that pltf. must be taken to have been aware of the conditions indorsed on the back of the ticket. On the further question whether the terms of the contract applied to the particular journey:—Held: although the ticket & the conditions on it had been drafted as applicable to a journey by a train coming under the co.'s private Act, & contained no reference to such a journey as pltf.'s by a special train to a destination beyond twenty miles from London, yet, in the case of a passenger in the position of pltf., the conditions were a plain intimation that one condition on which the contract was made was that the co.'s liability should be limited to £100, & pltf. could recover no more than that amount.—HEARN v. SOUTHERN RY. CO. (1925), 41 T. L. R. 305, C. A.

685c. Time limit for making claim.—Pltf. was received by defts. under a contract to be carried in one of their steamships. The contract contained a clause that the shipowners should not be liable for loss, damage or delay to a passenger or his baggage arising from the act of God, or from causes of any kind beyond the carrier's control, even though the loss, damage or delay might have been caused by the neglect or default of the shipowners' servants. A subsequent clause provided that no claim under the contract should be enforceable against the shipowners unless a written notice thereof was delivered to them within three days after the passenger should be landed from the steamer at the termination of her voyage. In the course of the voyage one of pltf.'s hands was injured by reason of the negligence of defts.' servants, but no written notice of any claim was given by pltf. within the time limited by the contract:—Held: (1) the clause relieving defts. from liability for the negligence of their servants was valid & enforceable, but applying the ejusdem generis rule, the clause did not absolve defts. from liability for pltf.'s injury; (2) as pltf. had failed to give any written notice of his claim within the time prescribed by the contract, he was not entitled to recover.—*JONES v. 851a. —.]—Pltf., who was a passenger with a ticket from Paris to London via Dover, & thence by the railway of deft. railway co., took an additional ticket from the second defts., the Pullman Car Co., for a Pullman car forming part of the train between Dover & London. The Pullman car ticket stated that the Pullman Car Co. accepted no liability for passengers' luggage, & that co. did all that was reasonably necessary to bring this condition to pltf.'s notice. At Dover pltf. took a seat in the Pullman car, but an official refused to allow her to take her suit-case with her & directed a porter to put it in the luggage vestibule at the end of the car. There was no evidence in whose employment the official was, or as to the exact relationship between the two deft. cos. On the arrival of the train in London the luggage was unloaded by the Pullman car officials, but pltf.'s suit-case could not be found. In an action against both cos.:—Held: as a railway co. contracted as insurers of passengers' luggage except where the loss was caused by the passenger's own default, the railway co. were liable, but as there was no evidence that lack of care, if any, by the Pullman Car Co.'s officials in unloading had contributed to the loss, the Pullman Car Co. were not liable.—*EHINGER v. - 954a. Side entrance to—Refusal to re-open.—In deciding an application for the provision of reasonable facilities under 1854 Act, s. 2, & of reasonable facilities & conveniences under 1921 Act, s. 16 (1), the ct. must be satisfied that in refusing such facilities & conveniences the railway co. are acting without due regard to the proper discharge of their obligations, & the facility or convenience asked for will not be ordered where it is only for the benefit of a special class of persons who form a small proportion of the travelling public. Where it is sought to restore a former convenience & conditions have changed, there is nothing in the fact that it was afforded before, & the question will be decided on its merits. Therefore where an application was made for an order for the re-opening of a subsidiary side entrance to the station of the Midland Ry. Co. at N. which had been closed in pursuance of a general policy of "closed" stations adopted by the co., & it was shown that only 16 per cent. of the passengers using the station, who were mainly season & weekly ticket holders, would be likely to use such entrance, & that no general public inconvenience existed, the ct. refused to make any order.—*NOTTINGHAM CORPN. v. 1043a. Amount fixed so as to allow rebate to be made.]—Coal was conveyed from two collieries over the lines of three railway cos. at a charge equal to the rate by an alternative route. A through rate was ultimately fixed at a sum of 2d. per ton in excess of the original charge, in order to allow one of the cos. to make a rebate of that amount in accordance with its practice with respect to other coal traffic. The new rate having been withdrawn, an application was made for a through rate equal to the original charge:—Held: (1) the question of rebate had been rightly excluded in fixing the amount of the through rate; (2) the Railway Comrs. had power to apportion the rate in such a way that part of it would be finally handed over to the trader. —GLENAVON GARW COLLIERIES, LTD. v. the same rates as if their traffic used that station, while two of their competitors, whose respective works at B., ten miles from S., were also connected by private sidings with defts.' railway, received a rebate of 2½d. per ton off the B. station rates on traffic similar to that of appcts. Appcts. called no evidence. The railway co., while submitting that the onus of proof had not shifted on them under 1888 Act, s. 27 (1), called evidence & put in tables based on the Pidcock principle with the object of showing that the value of the private siding services rendered to appcts. at S. was in excess of the amounts included in their rates for station terminals at that station & also of the value of the respective private siding services rendered to appcts.' competitors at B. after allowing for the rebate:—Held: without deciding whether the onus had shifted to the railway co., but inclining to the view that it had, the Pidcock principle had been properly applied in the dissection of the respective rates, & there was no preference of appcts.' competitors.—PRENTICE BROTHERS, LTD. v. 1219a. Injunction—Rate quoted but not actually made.]—Appcts. were owners of a bonded warehouse situated in Trafford Park, Manchester, in close proximity to, but not on, the premises of the Manchester Ship Canal Co. The latter co. also owned a similar warehouse within their dock area at Manchester. A large consignment of cigarettes was conveyed over the Ship Canal to appcts.' warehouse, & was thence consigned to London over the railways of resp. cos., who charged a rate of 107s. per ton in two-ton lots, this being the ordinary Manchester town rate, whereas for similar traffic consigned from the warehouse of the Ship Canal Co. they quoted a rate of 54s. 6d., the latter being the Liverpool to London rate, which was governed by competitive shipping rates. Upon a complaint that the Manchester Ship Canal Co. were being unduly preferred the above difference in rates was sought to be justified by the railway cos. on the ground that, the ports of Manchester & Liverpool being in competition, the lower rate was necessary in order to secure for Manchester in the public interest traffic which otherwise would go to Liverpool, & that the only practical way in which to distinguish between goods consigned from Manchester Town & Manchester Port respectively was to draw a line between goods on the premises of the Ship Canal Co. & those which had passed out of the control of that co.:—Held: (1) both rates were properly charged under the circumstances, & the difference between them was justified; (2) where a railway co. quotes a rate constituting an undue preference & asserts a right & intention of charging the same the ct. has jurisdiction to interfere by injunction without waiting till such charge is actually made.—*PORT OF MANCHESTER WAREHOUSES, LTD. v. 1237b. —What is a fixed rate.]—A rate which bears a fixed relation to an ascertainable standard is a fixed rate, though it may vary in actual amount from time to time, & such a rate should be continued after the appointed day, if made under an agreement for valuable consideration, under 1921 Act, s. 34.—*CARDIFF COLLIERIES, LTD. v. 1237c. —.]—Held: although a fixed quarterly allowance when distributed over a fluctuating quarterly traffic yielded a varying tonnage charge, nevertheless inasmuch as sums payable under an agreement & ascertainable with reference to a fluctuating standard may be considered as fixed by that agreement, the charges payable by appcts. under the agreement in question were special charges fixed by a subsisting agreement for valuable consideration & should be continued under 1921 Act, s. 34.—*R. & W. SECT. 6.—EXCEPTIONAL RATES AND FARES (Vol. VIII., p. 207).

1323a. Under 1921 Act—Meaning of "standard" & "exceptional."—The expression "standard" as applied to charges in Part III. of the above Act is the correlative or complementary term to "exceptional," & there being therefore no other alternative, every chargeable rate, fare, or charge for conveyance must necessarily be included in one or other of the above categories. Railway cos. are therefore required, under sect. 30 of the above Act, to submit to the Rates Tribunal forms of schedules for standard season tickets & workmen's fares.—Re STANDARD CHARGES SCHEDULES (1923), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 147.

SECT. 7.—OWNER'S RISK RATES (Vol. VIII., p. 207).

1323b. Conveyance of goods by passenger train at owner's risk—Application for reduction of rate—Difference in risk negligible—Whether ground for two scales.]—Appcts. were consignors of gramophone records in the form of flat discs by passenger train. Resps. conveyed these discs at full parcels scale, but under owner's risk conditions. Appcts. claimed that since the discs were conveyed at owner's risk, a reduction should be made from the full parcels scale. It was admitted that when packed by the manufacturers the risk of breakage in transit was negligible. Resps. contended that in the case of goods carried by passenger train the difference between the owner's risk rate & the co.'s risk rate was not intended as a measure of the difference of risk :—Held : the difference in the risk to the railway cos. under the two sets of conditions being negligible, on the analogy of 1921 Act, s. 46 (3), there was no ground for directing that there should be two scales, but the discs, when properly packed, should be carried at co.'s risk, & when not properly packed, at owner's risk. "Properly packed" means packed according to reasonable regulations made by the railway cos., the question of reasonableness to be settled by the Tribunal in case of difference.—BRITISH MUSIC INDUSTRIES FEDERATION v. CALEDONIAN RY. CO. (1922), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 121.

1323c. Grounds for ordering.]—Revised scales of rates based on the "zone" principle for the carriage of parcels by passenger train at co.'s risk & owner's risk respectively were put into force by resp. cos. in Nov. 1918, & were subsequently twice increased in 1920 by uniform percentage additions in accordance with directions of the Minister of Transport. In May, 1923, new & reduced scales for the above traffic were introduced, whereby the above increases of 1920 were reduced in unequal proportions in order to remove what resp. cos. considered to be anomalies between the co.'s risk & owner's risk scales, with the result that the reductions made in the charges under the owner's risk scale were considerably less than those made in the charges under the co.'s risk scale. Upon an application under 1921 Act, s. 60, to reduce the rates for parcels containing sausages, etc., consigned by passenger train at owner's risk :—Held : looking to the circumstances in which the above percentage increases had been recommended & imposed & subsequently continued by 1921 Act, s. 60, the railway cos. were not entrusted with them for any purpose connected with the adjustment of relationships between scales of charge but for the purpose of meeting increased expenses, & in the absence of special circumstances the proper practice was to give equal reduction to all ; taking the above owner's risk scale of Nov. 1918, & not that of 1914, as sought by appcts., as a basis of calculation, the owner's risk rates by passenger train on appcts.' above traffic should not exceed those in force in Sept. 1920, as reduced, by 25 per cent.—SAUSAGE MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCN. v. 1326a. — Charges imposed by Ministry of Transport.]—Appcts. claimed reductions in the charges made by resps. for the detention of ordinary wagons & sheets, which were in the case of wagons 3s. per day for the first two days after the expiration of the free periods allowed for loading & unloading & thereafter 5s. per day, & in the case of sheets 6d. & 1s. for the like periods. These charges had been imposed on & after Jan. 1, 1920, by an order of the Minister of Transport, made in accordance with a recommendation of the Rates Advisory Committee, with the object of diminishing wagon detention & causing traders to exercise more diligence in loading & unloading them. The charges in force in 1913 had been 1s. 6d. per day for wagons & 3d. per day for sheets after the free periods then given. Appcts. also claimed that in reckoning the above periods Saturday should be treated as half a day. Resps. contended that the charges complained of were reasonable, & also that it was not open to the ct. to reverse the policy of the Minister of Transport in making a differentiation between the first two days following the free periods & subsequent days :—Held : (1) the ct. had jurisdiction to modify the charges complained of ; (2) having regard to the value of wagons & sheets as compared with 1913, the loss of profit to the railway cos. arising from detention, the standing & overall charges & the extra expenses of shunting & occupation of siding involved, the charges of 3s. per day for wagons & 6d. per day for sheets, while on the high side, were not unreasonable, but the additional charges of 2s. & 6d. per day upon wagons & sheets respectively after the expiration of the first two days beyond the free periods were no longer justified, & should be discontinued, & the existing arrangements with regard to Saturdays should not be interfered with.—BRITISH HAY TRADERS' ASSOCN. v. Defts. were contractors who were interested in one of three local building schemes which were started about the same time, involving a large increase in the goods traffic consigned to P. (2) The ct. will not infer that station terminals are being paid simply because a siding rate & a station rate are the same in amount. It is only open to the ct. to do so when comparable traffics are passing from the station & the siding under such rates.—*DIXON (T. & M.) LTD. v. LONDON, MIDLAND & SCOTTISH RY. SECT. 12.—REDUCTION OF RATES (Vol. VIII., p. 217).

1377a. Who may apply for—Trader "Interested"—Warehouseman & forwarding agent.]—Appcts., who were warehousemen & forwarding agents at Trafford Park, Manchester, & who had unsuccessfully applied to the Railway Comrs. in respect of an alleged undue preference founded on the same facts, applied for a reduction in a rate of 106s. 7d., formerly 107s., charged upon cigarettes consigned in two-ton lots from their Trafford Park warehouse, which was near to, but outside, the Manchester Docks, to King's Cross, London, upon the ground that the corresponding rate from Liverpool was 54s. 6d., provisionally reduced to 50s. The lower rate was also charged on similar traffic consigned from Manchester Docks, while the higher rate was the ordinary Manchester town rate. Appcts. contended that where traffic as to which the conditions were in all respects alike is sent from two places A. & B. in the same district to the same destination, the same railway co. shall not charge a higher sum from A. than from B., unless the distance of the destination in the case of A. is greater than the distance in the case of B., provided that the rate in the case of A. is a productive rate. They admitted that conditions could not be treated as in all respects alike, if in the one case there was competition which did not exist in the other. Resps. objected that appcts. were not interested traders within 1921 Act, s. 60, & that the rate complained of, which was the ordinary Manchester town rate, was reasonable:—Held: (1) while something in the nature of a direct interest must be shown, the interest of appcts. in the above charges was sufficiently direct to entitle them to prosecute these proceedings; (2) in deciding what was a reasonable rate to be charged to appcts., regard should be had to the following considerations: (a) that it was not enough for a trader to show that without a reduction in rate he could not carry on a particular branch of his business; (b) that when railway cos. declared that in their own interests they could not grant facilities or reductions in rates, it would not be right for that ct. to compel them to adopt such a course of business unless appcts. showed that the railway cos. were mistaken; (c) that it was not intended by 1921 Act to establish the principle of equal mileage rates for all places & the consequent adoption of exceptional rates based on competition by water or road as the standard for all rates whether such competition existed in other places or not, & therefore that the existence of a low exceptional rate, not being in fact an undue preference, while a fact to be considered, was not alone a sufficient ground for ordering the reduction of a rate for goods in competition with those having the benefit of the low rate; (3) applying the above principles & taking all the circumstances into account, appcts. should be allowed a rate of 72s. 6d. subject to any general revision of rates.—PORT OF MANCHESTER WAREHOUSES, LTD. v. 1377b. Grounds for ordering—Necessity for prima facie case.]—Confectionery in bottles & jars was carried by the railway cos. originally at co.'s risk, & subsequently under certain agreed packing conditions. In 1920 the cos., without making any reduction in rates, refused to carry confectionery packed as above except at owner's risk, owing to the heavy proportion of claims against them for damage. They continued to carry confectionery not contained in bottles & jars at co.'s risk. Upon an application for a reduction in the rates for confectionery when contained in bottles & jars:—Held: (1) an appct. for a reduction in rates must make a prima facie case for the same; (2) such a case had been made upon the above facts; (3) the cos. were not precluded from making special conditions by reason of the fact that they for some time had carried the above goods without conditions; (4) while certain losses in respect of confectionery not contained in bottles & carried at co.'s risk were borne by the cos., which losses did not arise in the case of confectionery in bottles carried at owner's risk, the saving to the cos., e.g. 4 or 5 per cent., was not sufficient to justify a reduction in rate.—MANUFACTURING CONFECTIONERS' ALLIANCE, INCORPORATED v. The ordinary class rate was 88s. 2d., less 12½ per cent. Similar traffic was being carried to the same destination from places forty or fifty miles away at approximately the same rate as that offered:—Held: the rate should be 45s. Qu.: whether the Tribunal ought to take into account the possibility that an experimental rate will result in bringing a large future traffic.—MARSH v. GREAT EASTERN & GREAT WESTERN RY. COS. (1922), 17 Ry. & Can. Tr. Cas. 129.

1377e. — Removal of flat-rate additions imposed by Minister of Transport.]—Upon applications to remove certain flat-rate additions to the rates on appcts.' traffic which had been imposed by the Minister of Transport in exercise of his powers under Ministry of Transport Act, 1919 (c. 50), s. 3 (1) (c):—Held: (1) the ct. would not assume that the Minister was wrong in imposing such flat-rate additions; (2) it was not competent to the ct. to remove such flat-rate additions on the ground that the reasons given in support of their imposition by the former Rates Advisory Committee were not applicable to appcts.' traffic; (3) the rates on appcts.' traffic were not excessive, notwithstanding that the percentage increase resulting from such flat-rate additions was greater on traffic carried at low mileage rates than on that carried at higher mileage rates, & that larger reductions in rates had been given to blast furnace than to appcts.', i.e., coal, traffic.

(4) A rate is not necessarily excessive because a railway co. are not handing back on balance to the traders all the savings that they are making in reduced expenses.—MONMOUTHSHIRE & SOUTH WALES COAL OWNER'S ASSOCN. v. 1377f. Reductions granted to other interests.]

—Upon an application for the removal of a flat-rate increase of 2d. per ton, being part of a larger increase which originally had been imposed on appcts.' traffic in coal, coke & patent fuel in accordance with a second general revision of rates directed by the Minister of Transport which had since been voluntarily reduced by resps., the following grounds were relied upon by appcts. in support of their case: (1) that a greater proportionate reduction in rates had been given to the traffic of certain admittedly necessitous industries than to their traffic; (2) that their traffic, & in particular their short distance traffic, had increased in density since the above increase in rates, thereby producing an exceptional profit for resps.; & (3) that they apprehended in the future an intensive foreign competition which a reduction in railway rates would assist them to meet:—Held: (1) the reductions in rates granted by resps. to the traffic of other industries were justified & did not establish a case of hardship or injustice to appcts.; (2) while it was doubtful as to how far the increase in coal traffic had resulted in increased profit to resp. cos., the period of prosperity in appcts.' trade which was mainly due to the abnormal European political situation was passing away; (3) in an application for a reduction of a rate under 1921 Act, s. 60, the onus lay upon an appct. to show the existence of some element of unfairness or of hardship amounting to unfairness, & appcts. had not discharged that onus by alleging that a reduction in rates would assist.—MINING ASSOCN. 1377g. Abolition of free storage facilities.]—Appets., the owners of a warehouse at Trafford Park, Manchester, claimed that a rate of 10s. 11d. per ton for sugar from Liverpool to their private siding at Trafford Park, being the same amount as the corresponding rate from Liverpool to resp. co.'s Oldham Road station at Manchester, should be reduced by an amount equal to the cost incurred by resps. in providing terminal accommodation & services, including twenty-eight days' free warehousing, at their Manchester station. No sugar had been consigned by rail to appets.' warehouse, nor was there any evidence that any trader desired to consign sugar to it. Prior to the war resps. had given fourteen days' free storage at Manchester for sugar in view of similar free accommodation provided by competing water-carriers from Liverpool to Manchester. This facility having been withdrawn by resps., they had lost as a result a large part of their sugar traffic from Liverpool to Manchester, & therefore, as from Nov. 1923, had restored the above free storage for an extended period of twenty-eight days:—Held: the ct. had no jurisdiction to abolish the facility of free storage, there was no evidence that the 10s. 11d. rate to Trafford Park was unreasonable or excessive, & there was no presumption that the rate when compared with the corresponding rate to Oldham Road station was unreasonable, because the latter included free storage at that station.—PORT OF MANCHESTER WAREHOUSES, LTD. v. - 34a. ——— Distributing coal & making loans to poor & deserving inhabitants.]—Testator, a native of F., a small village, bequeathed his residuary estate to trustees upon trust to set aside £800 as a "Coal Fund," the income whereof was to be used for the purchase of coal to be distributed among such poor & deserving inhabitants of F. as a committee should think fit, & to hold the rest of his residuary estate as a "Loans Fund" & to apply the capital & income thereof, under the direction of the committee, "in making loans to poor & deserving inhabitants of the parish of F. in manner hereinafter provided." No loan was to exceed £100, repayable within nine years at longest. No interest was to be charged & no borrower to have more than one loan. Only one-sixth part of the fund was to be lent in any one year, & the borrowers were to be inhabitants or residents of F. not above the age of thirty-five years. Testator directed that "all surplus money forming part of or arising from the 'Loans Fund' over & above £500 & not required for loans shall be invested by the trustees under the direction of the committee, but all investments purchased shall be from time to time sold for the purpose of advancing the produce thereof in loans if & when required":—Held: (1) the will displayed a general charitable intention & contained an immediate & effective gift of the whole of the residue to charity, displacing the claim of the next of kin; (2) the question of accumulation beyond the period allowed by law did not arise, the possibility of a surplus hereafter not impairing the validity of the immediate gift to charity; (3) the doctrine of cy-près could be at once applied, if necessary, to any surplus income after the period allowed by law for accumulation had expired.—*Re MONK, GIFFEN v. all the residue & remainder of my estate not otherwise disposed of by this my will to: (a) such institution, society or nursing home, or nursing homes, or similar institutions as assist or provide for persons of moderate means such as clerks, governesses & others who may not be able or eligible to benefit under the National Health Insurance Act, Old Age Pensions, or other Act of a like character to have either surgical operations performed together with medical treatment or medical treatment alone on payment of some moderate contribution; (b) the Royal National Lifeboat Institution; (c) the Lister Institute of Preventive Medicine; (d) & such other funds, charities & institutions as my exors. in their absolute discretion shall think fit; & I direct that such residue shall be divided amongst the legatees named in the paragraphs (a), (b), (c), & (d) lastly hereinbefore contained in such shares & proportions as my trustees shall determine." It was admitted that the objects under (b) & (c) were charitable. On the question whether the residue was validly disposed of by the will or failed in whole or in part for uncertainty:—Held: (1) the objects included under paragraph (a) were charitable since the means of the recipients would necessitate their being unable without the bounty of testator to procure the treatment of which they might stand in need; (2) the objects specified under heading (d) being for such indefinite charitable & non-charitable objects as the exors. should think fit were not exclusively charitable, & therefore though a trust for charitable & non-charitable indefinite purposes indiscriminately failed by reason of uncertainty, this trust being of a part of a fund for charitable purposes & another part for non-charitable indefinite purposes the ct. could ascertain what the parts were.—*Re CLARKE, BRACEY v. classical drama, & stimulating the art of acting:—Held: the trust was a good charitable trust, on the ground either that the objects were for the advancement of education or that they came within the class of purposes beneficial to the community other than by way of the relief of poverty or the advancement of education or religion referred to by LORD MACNAGHTEN in Income Tax Special Purposes Comrs. v. Pemsel, [1891] A. C. 531.

(2) At the time when a donation of £70,000 was made to the charity, part of which was applied by the charity in the purchase of a site for the theatre, no annual subscription had been received, but within only nine days of that time the first annual subscription was received. On the subsequent sale of the site, the question arose whether, in those circumstances, the consent of the Charity Comrs. was required to the sale by the charity:—Held: notwithstanding that in the inception of its formation it was contemplated that the charity should be supported by annual subscriptions as well as by income from endowment, & notwithstanding that there was an interval of nine days only between the donation & the first of the annual subscriptions, the charity was not at the time when the donation was received a mixed charity within 1853 Act, s. 62; & as it was, therefore, not exempted from the jurisdiction of the Charity Comrs., their consent to the sale by the charity was required.—*Re SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL TRUST, LYTON (EARL) v. 75a. —.—Testator by his will, wherein he described himself as a Clerk in Holy Orders, gave all his property to the Public Trustee upon trust for investment. He then directed that the income should be paid to the Bishops of the dioceses of St. D. & B., the rector of L. & the vicars of two other parishes & their successors, together with a layman appointed by the conference of each of those dioceses, whom he nominated administrative trustees. After stating that his wife left her interest in certain property to him to be used as he wished, but for preference for Church purposes, testator, in expressed accordance with her wish, by clause 3, devised all he should die possessed of as a fund for assisting the education of candidates for Holy Orders in the Church of England, to be administered by the trustees. Clause 12 contained the following proviso: “If for any sufficient reason, whether disendowment may or may not have taken place, the trustees decide that the interests of the Church could be better served by any changes in the method of administering, or even in the object to which the fund is applied under my will, such change or changes may be made with the several consents expressed by a majority of the Diocesan Conferences of B. & St. D.”:—Held: the objects to which the trustees were, by clause 12, empowered to change the application of the fund were not other than charitable objects & were religious objects in the interests of the Church as an organisation existing for the instruction & edification of the public, & the gift in clause 3 was a valid charitable gift.—*Re WILLIAMS, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. He also thereby gave directions as to the management of the fund. Later in the will he directed the payment of a further sum of £2,000, in the events which happened, "to the aforesaid Sporting Fund" to be held upon the same terms as the former legacy:—Held: the gifts were gifts for the purpose of promoting the physical efficiency of the army, & were valid charitable gifts.—*Re GRAY, TODD v. At the date of the will, & of testator's death, there was established under statutes of the Commonwealth of Australia a repatriation fund for Australian soldiers generally, but there was no repatriation fund, or similar fund, for New South Wales soldiers:—Held: (2) the gift created a valid charitable trust; (3) the trustees of the Commonwealth statutory repatriation fund were not trustees of the charity, & the settlement of a scheme had been rightly directed.—*VERGE v. 215a. — Of Jews to Palestine—Gift to Jewish National Fund—Valid.]—A summons asked whether deft. co., the Jüdischer Nationalfonds, Ltd., or some other & what co. was referred to in the devise & bequest in the codicil to testator's will of the residuary estate to the Jewish National Fund, & whether the same was a valid charitable gift. By a codicil to his will made in 1919 testator who died shortly after declared: "whereas it is my desire that members of my family shall make their home in Palestine working & living on the land, I give, devise, & bequeath all the residue of my estate subject as aforesaid to the Jüdischer Nationalfonds w. ch is one of the instruments of the Zionist Organisation, for the purpose of purchasing land there, & enabling such members of my family as are in a direct line of descent from my father, who may desire, to settle in Palestine subject generally to the regulations & conditions that may be necessary for the common weal":—Held: the co. was beneficially entitled to the fund to be applied by them so far as was necessary for the purpose indicated by testator, & as to the balance for the general purposes of the co.—*Re ROSENBLUM, ROSENBLUM v. 691a. ——— Fund deposited in names of bishop & two archdeacons—Income not drawn upon—Date of deposit coinciding with creation of new diocese.]—On June 29, 1888, money was deposited in a bank in the names of the Bishop of Wakefield & two archdeacons. In May, 1888, the Diocese of Wakefield was newly formed, & H. was enthroned on June 25, 1888, as first bishop of that diocese. The income of the fund so deposited was not drawn upon, & the fund with £900 accumulated interest was found intact by the exors. of the archdeacon, who was the survivor of the three persons in whose names the money had been deposited. The fund was not contributed to by those in whose names it was deposited:—Held: in such circumstances the exors. of the archdeacon who was the survivor were not beneficially entitled to the fund, but the fund was one subject to charitable trusts.—*PEASE v. 702a. “Missionary purposes”—Valid—Court entitled to regard missionary work of legatee.]—Testatrix bequeathed her residuary estate “for missionary purposes” to J.:—Held: (1) the ct. could admit evidence that testatrix had often met J. at conferences of Christian workers & discussed religious subjects with him, & that before she made her will she had sent him considerable sums of money to aid him in the work in which he was so engaged, which was that of pastor of a church belonging to a body created solely for evangelistic purposes; (2) having regard to that evidence, the gift was not void for uncertainty but was a good charitable gift.—*Re REES, JONES v. The masonic temple was to be used for masonic ceremonies, & smaller rooms for lodge meetings, business & meetings of a social but not political character. Upon a summons to ascertain whether the legacy was valid or not:—Held: (1) the decisions in the "tomb cases" were inapplicable; (2) the whole income of the fund being charged with a trust, at the discretion of the trustees, for a primary object which was invalid, the ct. was not entitled to control this discretion, & institute an inquiry at chambers as to the amount of income necessary to be applied for maintenance & upkeep of the temple, so that the gift of the balance would be valid; (3) as the primary gift was not sufficiently defined, the whole legacy was void for uncertainty.—Re *PORTER, PORTER v. - 1041a. — Condition subsidiary to main charitable object—Performance of condition likely to defeat main charitable ob’ct—Condition dispensed with.]—Testatrix, who died in 1889, bequeathed £1,500 towards an endowment for a proposed evangelical church at B., provided certain conditions were carried out. An action was commenced for the administration of her estate, & on the further consideration thereof on Nov. 3, 1891, it appeared that amongst other conditions, which mainly related to the conduct of the services, it was made an “abiding condition” that the black gown should be worn in the pulpit, unless there should be an alteration in the law rendering it illegal. It further appeared that in compliance with the conditions a church had been erected at B. & the other conditions laid down by testatrix fulfilled, except the condition as to wearing a black gown, which condition was held by the judge to be a continuing condition, but not an illegal one; & accordingly, the fund was carried over to the credit of the action, the separate account of “the £1,500 endowment fund for the proposed B. church,” with liberty for the incumbent & all persons interested to apply as to the capital or income thereof. This petition was presented by the present incumbent asking that under a scheme or otherwise the fund in ct. might be transferred to the Ecclesiastical Comrs. Evidence was adduced that the use of the black gown in the pulpit was practically unknown in the diocese of the new church, & that its use was calculated to alienate the congregation & to defeat the main objects of testatrix, namely, the teaching & practice of evangelical doctrine & services :—Held : the condition requiring the wearing of a black gown in the pulpit was subsidiary to the main charitable object, namely, the endowment of an evangelical church at B., & as the performance thereof had been shown to be impracticable the condition might be dispensed with & the fund be transferred to the Ecclesiastical Comrs. as part of the endowment of the church so erected as aforesaid.—*Re ROBINSON, WRIGHT v. A petition was presented to the ct. craving approval of a scheme for the funds to be transferred to nine trustees, of whom seven should be nominated by the existing executive committee, & the remaining two by two local shipowners' associations, with power to assume new trustees from time to time, but vacancies among the trustees appointed by the shipowners' associations to be filled by persons nominated by these bodies. The ct. sanctioned the scheme, being satisfied that in the

including two for charitable purposes, & £100 to her exor., she left in blank the name of her residuary legatee. She left no written directions as to the charities to be benefited:—Held: (1) no good charitable trust was declared, the exor. having a discretion to devote the residue to objects & purposes other than charitable; (2) the trust for those objects & purposes was too indefinite for the ct. to execute, & there being no direct gift to the exor., the added words "to be at his own disposal" were not sufficient to enable the ct. to hold that the exor. took the residue beneficially, & he held it as trustee for the next of kin.—Re CHAPMAN, HALES v. Testator constituted one of his exors. residuary legatee & died in 1880. The University accepted the bequest on the terms & for the purpose specified, & published the dictionary in 1892. After all payment had been made in connection with the publication there remained over a surplus of £1,151 14s. 10d. Consols & £220 derived from income & sales of the dictionary. Upon a summons by the University asking how this surplus should be applied:—Held: in the absence of any general charitable intention to be gathered from the terms of the bequest there was no room for the application of the doctrine of cy-près, & there was a resulting trust for testator & those claiming under him of the surplus moneys.—Re STANFORD, CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY v. Not exempt—Gift of land to mixed charity at date of determination of question by commissioner—Not mixed charity at time of donation.]—In order that a donation or bequest may come within the provision in 1853 Act, s. 62, exempting from the jurisdiction or control of the Charity Comrs. a donation or bequest made to a "mixed charity"—i.e. a charity maintained partly by voluntary subscriptions & partly by income from endowment—it must be a donation or bequest to a charity which is already, at the date of gift, a mixed charity. It is not sufficient to bring the donation or bequest within the exemption for the charity to become a mixed charity between the date of gift & the determination by the ct. of the question of exemption.

Land within the registered area was conveyed to a charity which at the time, although possessed of other income-bearing land, was not also maintained by any voluntary subscriptions. After the application for registration & pending the determination of the question of exemption by the ct., voluntary subscriptions were received & the charity became a mixed charity:—Held: the land not having been given to a charity which at the date of gift was a mixed charity, was not exempt from the jurisdiction or control of the Charity Comrs., & a restriction must be entered on the register against a disposition of the land without their consent.—*Re CHILD VILLIERS' APPLICATION, VILLIERS v. time & resp. was to advance money to pay for them; the trader was to sell the goods & to pay the proceeds to the credit of resp. at his bank; resp., after deducting the amount which he had advanced & one-third of the gross profits, was to pay the remaining two-thirds to the trader. In 1921 the trader became bkpt., & applt. was appointed assignee in the bkpcy. At the time of the bkpcy. a large sum advanced under the agreement had not been repaid, & the trader had in his hands goods purchased under the agreement, & the proceeds of other goods so purchased. Resp. claimed a charge on the above assets in respect of the advances not repaid:—Held: as the agreement did not, either contractually or otherwise, create any right of the lender in either the goods or their proceeds, it did not amou. to an equitable assignment so as to entitle resp. to the charge claimed.—*PALMER v. 607a. For breach of warranty by assignor—Against claim for instalments due under assigned agreement—Judgment obtained for damages for breach of warranty.]—The owner of a business sold it to deft. on terms of payment by instalments, & then assigned the benefit of the agreement to pltf. Before notice of assignment was given to deft., the latter obtained judgment against the assignor for damages for breach of warranty on the above sale. In an action by pltf., as assignee, against deft. for payment of instalments due under the assigned agreement, deft. claimed to set off the amount of the judgment. Pltf. contended that deft.'s right to damages in respect of the breach of warranty had merged in the judgment, & that the latter could not be set off against his claim:—Held: the set-off was valid.—*LAWRENCE v. - 53a. ———— Claim by member for proportion of—On winding up of club.—A limited co. was registered with the object of carrying on a proprietary club, & by the articles H. was appointed governing director for life & the management of the club was vested in her. In 1915 H. granted a lease of premises to the club which was carried on there. In 1918 a subscription of four guineas a year for country members & five guineas for town members was charged, & as from Jan. 1, 1919, an entrance fee of five guineas was imposed. From 1917 to Mar. 25, 1919, a notice stating that the club would be carried on permanently was exhibited by H. On Mar. 11, 1919, H., without notice to the executive committee, issued a writ for arrears of rent, & on recovering summary judgment closed the club. The co. then passed a resolution for voluntary winding up & a liquidator was appointed. A., who was a member of the club, claimed to prove as creditor for general damages & a proportion of her subscription for 1919, B., another member, claimed general damages, the return of her entrance fee & the proportion of her subscription for the current year :—Held : A. & B. were entitled to prove, not only for the proportion of their subscriptions of which they had lost the benefit for the current year, but also in respect of damages for the loss of the amenities of the club, & in the case of B. to a return of the entrance fee ; & the damages should be assessed in the case of A. at £7, which included the proportion of her subscription for 1919, & in the case of B. at £14, which also included the entrance fee & proportion of her subscription.—Re CURZON SYNDICATE, LTD. (1920), 149 L. - 272a. — — —.]—An assocn. with four branches was formed to obtain subscriptions from the members of each branch & to lend to members out of the fund so formed money on interest. Each fund, with its accretions of interest, was divided up periodically among the members ratably at a period of the year which differed in each branch. The assocn. & its branches all consisted of more than twenty members. The assocn. was not registered under any Act. Disputes having arisen, a resolution was passed by the members for the dissolution of the assocn., & an action was brought by three members suing on behalf of all members other than defts. against defts., who were the treasurer & secretary of the assocn., claiming administration of the assets of the assocn., an account of the subscriptions received by defts. from members & of their application thereof, payment of the amount found due & other relief. The action was resisted on the ground that the assocn. was illegal & that no relief could therefore be given:—Held: (1) the assocn. was rendered illegal by 1908 Act, s. 1 (2), as being an unregistered assocn. of more than twenty persons carrying on a business having for its object the acquisition of gain; (2) the ct. was not debarred from affording relief to the members asking for

Pltf., in reliance upon a prospectus issued in Sept., 1920, by deft. co., hereinafter called "the Trust," applied for & had allotted to him subject to the terms of the prospectus four £100 7½ per cent. profit sharing deposit notes of the Trust. It was stated in the prospectus that the notes would be paid off at 105 per cent. by four annual drawings, & under the heading "Earlier payments," that the Trust retained the right to pay off at 105 per cent. all or any of the outstanding notes at any time on giving three months' previous notice in writing, but that in the event of the sale of the Trusts' R. B. estates, further referred to in that prospectus, which according to the construction placed upon the prospectus by the ct. was not confined to a sale under a certain option of purchase referred to later in the prospectus, but included a sale to anybody, whomsoever, the Trust would set aside out of the proceeds of sale a sum sufficient to redeem all the notes then outstanding, & the holders would be given an option of being then paid off in cash at 105 per cent. or of retaining their notes till the date of drawing. Each of the notes, which was in the form of the specimen note referred to in the prospectus, provided that the Trust would, as & when the principal sum of £100 became payable in accordance with the conditions indorsed thereon, pay to pltf. the sum of £105, & was expressed to be subject to & with the benefit of those conditions, which repeated the provisions contained in the prospectus for the redemption of the notes by drawings & the option retained by the Trust to pay off the notes on notice, but did not refer to the promise by the Trust contained in the prospectus as to earlier payments in the event of the sale of the Trust's R. B. estates. The option to purchase referred to in the prospectus having lapsed & the Trust having contracted to sell the R. B. estates without having given notice to pltf. that his option to be paid off or to retain his notes had thereby become exercisable, & the Trust having repudiated their liability to perform their promise contained in the prospectus, pltf. brought an action to have the said liability of the Trust established & for an injunction to restrain them from dealing with the proceeds of sale without in the first place setting aside a sum sufficient to pay off the outstanding notes:—Held: pltf. was entitled to the relief claimed on 1589a. *Statement by agent—That application purely formal.]—E., acting as agent of pltf. co., represented to deft. that the co. owned valuable rights over certain mines in China, & deft. agreed to go to China & investigate & make a report upon the properties, & he signed an application form for 2,000 £1 shares upon a representation by E. that the application was purely formal, & deft. paid £250 on allotment upon a representation by E. that the payment was for an option on 250 shares to be bought by deft., if he so desired, on his return from China. The shares were allotted to deft. at a meeting at which E. was in the chair, but no notice of the allotment was sent to deft. Deft. went to China & pltf. co. alleged that he returned to England without obtaining any information. Deft., on the other hand, alleged that E.'s representations were false & that the mining rights were valueless. In an action in which pltf. co. in liquidation claimed (inter alia) £1,750 for unpaid calls on the shares, the trial judge held that as deft. intended only to take an option on the shares & had never contracted to take them the action failed:—Held: although E. was an agent of pltf. co. to come to an agreement with deft., yet by reason of E.'s fraudulent use of the application form signed by deft. the latter could not be treated as having agreed to take the shares, & the decision of the trial judge must be affirmed.—HUMPHREY & DENMAN, LTD. — Board equally divided.—Under an art. equivalent to Table A, art. 22, the extrix. of a deceased member of a co. had the right to be registered as a member, subject to the directors' absolute discretionary right to decline such registration. At a board meeting of the two directors to consider the extrix.'s application for registration, one director proposed & the other opposed registration. The board being equally divided, & there being no casting vote, the proposal was not carried, & the secretary was instructed to write to the extrix.'s solrs, accordingly & to return all the documents, namely, a transfer by the extrix. to herself, certificates & registration fee:—Held: the board's right of declining registration required to be actively exercised by a vote of the board ad hoc, & the mere failure to pass the proposed resolution for registration was not a formal active exercise of the right to decline; the extrix.'s absolute right to registration therefore remained intact, & the register must be rectified accordingly. — Re HACKNEY PAVILION, LTD., [1924] 1 Ch. 276; 93 L. "the directors may decline to register any transfer of a share made by a shareholder who is indebted to the bank"; (57.) "the directors may deduct from the dividends payable to any shareholder all sums of money due by him to the bank on account of calls or otherwise." In Nov. 1924, the registered holder of two shares assigned them in writing to resp. as security for money due; he executed no transfer but deposited the share certificate with resp. In May 1925, the bank, which had no notice of the assignment, obtained judgment against the shareholder for money due from him, & seized the shares in execution. There was no evidence that the shareholder's liability to the bank existed at the date of the assignment:—Held: the bye-laws gave the bank no lien on the shares for the debt to them, & resp. was entitled under the assignment to a charge in priority to the bank's rights under the execution.—*BANK OF N. 3059a. .]—(1) The manner in which the work of a co. is to be distributed between the board of directors & the staff is a business matter to be decided on business lines. The larger the business carried on by the co. the more numerous & the more important the matters that must of necessity be left to the managers, the accountants, & the rest of the staff.

(2) In ascertaining the duties of a director of a co., it is necessary to consider the nature of the co.'s business & the manner in which the work of the co. is, reasonably in the circumstances & consistently with the arts. of assocn., distributed between the directors & the other officials of the co.

(3) In discharging those duties, a director (a) must act honestly, & (b) must exercise such degree of skill & diligence as would amount to the reasonable care which an ordinary man might be expected to take, in the circumstances, on his own behalf. But, (c) he need not exhibit in the performance of his duties a greater degree of skill than may reasonably be expected from a person of his knowledge & experience; in other words, he is not liable for mere errors of judgment; (d) he is not bound to give continuous attention to the affairs of his co.; his duties are of an intermittent nature to be performed at periodical board meetings, & at meetings of any committee to which he is appointed, & though not bound to attend all such meetings he ought to attend them when reasonably able to do so; & (e) in respect of all duties which, having regard to the exigencies of business & the arts. of assocn., may properly be left to some other official, he is, in the absence of grounds for suspicion, justified in trusting that official to perform such duties honestly.

(4) A director who signs a cheque that appears to be drawn for a legitimate purpose is not responsible for seeing that the money is in fact required for that purpose, or that it is subsequently applied for that purpose, assuming, of course, that the cheque comes before him for signature in the regular way, having regard to the usual practice of the co. A director must of necessity trust to the officials of the co. to perform properly & honestly the duties allocated to them.

Before any director signs a cheque, or parts with a cheque signed by him, he should satisfy himself that a resolution has been passed by the board, or committee of the board, as the case may be, authorising the signature of the cheque; & where a cheque has to be signed between meetings, he should obtain the confirmation of the board subsequently to his signature.

The authority given by the board or committee should not be for the signing of numerous cheques to an aggregate amount, but a proper list of the individual cheques, mentioning the payee & the amount of each, should be read out at the board or committee meeting & subsequently transcribed into the minutes of the meeting.

(5) It is the duty of each director to see that the co.'s moneys are from time to time in a proper state of investment, except so far as the arts. of assocn. may justify him in delegating that duty to others.

(6) Before presenting their annual report & balance sheet to their shareholders, & before recommending a dividend, directors should have a complete & detailed list of the co.'s assets & investments prepared for their own use & information, & ought not to be satisfied as to the value of their co.'s assets merely by the assurance of their chairman, however apparently distinguished & honourable, nor with the expression of the belief of their auditors, however competent & trustworthy.

(7) It is not the duty of a director of a big insurance co. to supervise personally the safe custody of the securities of the co. It would be impracticable, on every purchase of securities, for actual delivery thereof to be made to the directors, or, on every sale, for the delivery to the brokers of the securities sold to await a meeting of the board or of a committee of directors. The duty of seeing that the securities are in safe custody must of necessity be left to some official of the co. in daily attendance at the office of the co., such as the manager, accountant, or secretary.

(8) A co.'s stockbrokers, however respectable & responsible they may be, are not proper persons to have the custody of its securities except on such occasions when, for short periods, securities must of necessity be left with them; but immediately such necessity ceases the securities should be lodged in the co.'s strong room or with its bank, or placed in other proper & usual safe keeping.

(9) A director is not responsible for declaring a dividend unwisely. He is liable if he pays it out of capital, but the onus of proving that he has done so lies upon the liquidator who alleges it.

Art. 150 of the co.'s arts. of assocn. provided (inter alia) that none of the directors, auditors, secretary or other officers for the time being of the co. should be answerable for any loss, misfortune, or damage which might happen in the execution of their respective offices or trusts, or in relation thereto, unless the same should happen by or through their own wilful neglect or default respectively:—Held: (10) an act, or an omission to do an act, is wilful where the person who acts, or omits to act, knows what he is doing & intends to do what he is doing, but if that act or omission amounts to a breach of that person's duty, & therefore to negligence, he is not guilty of wilful neglect or default unless he knows that he is committing, & intends to commit, a breach of his duty, or is recklessly careless in the sense of not caring whether his act or omission is or is not a breach of his duty; (11) the immunity afforded by art. 150 was one of the terms upon which the directors held office in the co., & availed them as much on a misfeasance summons by the Official Receiver under 1908 Act, s. 215, as it would have done in an action by the co. against them for negligence; (12) upon the evidence & in accordance with the principles enunciated above, none of the resp. directors, other than the managing director, was liable.

(13) The measure of the auditor's responsibility depends upon the terms of his engagement. There may be a special contract defining the duties & liabilities of the auditors. If there is, then that contract governs the question. The arts. will, however, be looked at if there is no special agreement, because the auditors will presumably have taken their duties upon the terms, among others, set out in the arts. That is not to say that auditors can set aside a statutory obligation. No agreement or art. of assocn. can remove an imperative or statutory duty.

(14) Sect. 113 does not lay down a rigid code. The duty imposed on the auditors by it is not absolute, but depends upon the information given & explanations furnished to them, so that there is abundant scope for discretion. Art. 150 is not in conflict with the sect. The onus lies upon the auditors, who would not be excused for total omission to comply with any of the requirements of the sect., or for any consequences of deliberate or reckless indifferent failure to ask for information on matters which call for further explanation.

(15) An auditor is not justified in omitting to make personal inspection of securities that are in the custody of a person or co. with whom it is not proper that they should be left, whenever such personal inspection is practicable.

(16) When an auditor discovers that securities of the co. are not in proper custody, it is his duty to require that the matter be put right at once, or, if his requirement is not complied with, to report the fact to the shareholders, & this whether he can or cannot make a personal inspection.

Auditors should not be content with a certificate that securities are in the possession of a particular co., firm, or person unless the co., etc., is trustworthy, or, as it is sometimes put, respectable, & further is one that in the ordinary course of business keeps securities for its customers. In all these cases the auditor must use his judgment.

Where the auditors did not personally inspect the securities of the co. in the hands of the stockbrokers of the co. & accepted from time to time the certificate of the brokers that they held large blocks of such securities, & did not either insist upon those securities being put in proper custody or report the matter to the shareholders:—Held: (17) they committed a breach of duty, but, inasmuch as throughout the audit the auditors honestly & carefully discharged what they conceived to be the whole of their duty to the co., such negligence was not wilful, & art. 150 applied to exonerate them from liability.

Where the auditors after a full investigation in which they were misled & deceived, & their reports to the board suppressed, by the chairman of the co., (a) described large sums of money left in the hands of the co.'s stockbrokers & lent to the general manager of the co. as "Loans at call or short notice," "Loans" or "Cash at hand & in bank"; (b) failed to discover that the co.'s stockbrokers, in order to reduce their indebtedness to the co. for the purposes of the audit, made purchases, on behalf of the co., immediately before the close of the co.'s financial year, of Treasury Bills which in fact never came into the possession of the co. & were sold immediately the new financial year had opened:—Held: (18) they were not guilty of any breach of duty as auditors.

3157a. — Presumption of authority.]—Pltfs. were a firm of fruit brokers. Defts. & the P. Co. were two cos. engaged in the fruit trade. M. was a director of both cos. By art. 28 of the arts. of deft. co. the directors were empowered to "delegate any of the powers for the time being vested in the directors." The arts. also incorporated Table A. M. purported to make on behalf of defts. an agreement with pltfs. that in consideration of pltfs. advancing a sum of money to the P. Co., pltfs. should have the right to sell on commission all the fruit imported both by defts. & the P. Co., & that pltfs. should be entitled to retain the proceeds of sale of defts. fruit as well as of that of the P. Co. as security for the advance. M. had no authority from defts. to make such a contract. Pltfs. requiring confirmation of the agreement by deft. co., the secretary of defts. wrote a letter purporting to confirm the agreement on behalf of defts., & pltfs., treating that as a sufficient confirmation, made the advance. The secretary had no authority to give such confirmation. Defts. subsequently repudiated the agreement as made without their authority. At the time that they made the advance pltfs. had no knowledge of the terms of defts. arts. or that they incorporated Table A:—Held: whether the agreement was to be treated as having been made by M. as an ordinary "director" of deft. co., or by the secretary as "agent," or by the two combined. pltfs. were not entitled to assume that any authority to make it had been delegated to them by the board, because (1) although a person who contracts with an individual director or servants of a co., knowing that the board of directors has power to delegate its authority to such an individual, may in certain circumstances assume that power of delegation has been exercised & that he may safely deal with the individual in question as representing the co., he cannot rely on the supposed exercise of such power if he did not know of the existence of the power at the time that he made the contract; (2) there was something so unusual in an agreement to apply the money of one co. in payment of the debt of another that pltfs. were put upon inquiry to ascertain whether the person or persons making the contract had any authority in fact to make it; (3) even if pltfs. had known of the existence of the express power of delegation, they would not have been entitled to assume that it had been exercised in favour of M. or the secretary to any greater extent than was to be inferred from the positions which M. & the secretary respectively occupied or were held out by the co. as occupying.—*HOUGHTON & Co. v. Art. 129 of the arts. of assocn. provided that, subject to the rights of holders of debentures & preference shares, the net profits of the co., after providing for a reserve fund & for depreciation, "shall be divided by way of dividend among the members in proportion to the amount paid on the ordinary shares held by them respectively, but so that the dividends upon the ordinary shares for any year shall not exceed the aggregate rate of 5 per cent. per annum. The surplus of the net profits of the co. after payment of such dividends & the amount necessary to make up dividends for past years to the rate of 5 per cent. per annum shall be applied" for the benefit of the town or its inhabitants as therein mentioned. The co. from time to time over a number of years issued ordinary shares. From 1904 to 1917 no dividend was paid on the ordinary shares, & it was only since 1923 that a full dividend of 5 per cent. had been paid. There were now profits available for payment of arrears of dividend, after payment of the dividend for the current year, but not sufficient to pay the whole of the arrears:—Held: the fund available should be distributed ratably among the shareholders according to the respective amounts of the arrears of dividend payable on the shares held by them respectively.—*FIRST GARDEN CITY v. A debenture trust deed created a general floating charge over all its undertaking & assets both present & future, but reserved to the co. power to create in priority to that charge such mtges. or charges as the co. should think proper "by the deposit of any dock warrants, bills of lading, or other similar commercial documents, or upon any raw materials, or finished or partly finished products & stock for the purpose of raising money in the ordinary course of the business of the co." — Due registration—Particulars of property charged insufficiently entered.]—A co. with the object of securing payment of its overdraft at pltf. bank “demised” to the bank a certain leasehold factory with all the movable “plant used in or about the premises” for a term of about 996 years. The bank sent the indenture to the registrar of companies for registration under 1098 Act, s. 93. In the particulars required to be filed pursuant to that sect. the instrument was described as a mtge. of the leasehold premises, no mention being made of the chattels. The registrar entered the description of the instrument in the register in similar terms, identifying it by its date, & omitting all mention of any charge on the chattels. Subsequently the sheriff, in execution of a judgment recovered by deft. against the co., seized certain chattels of the co. upon the mortgaged premises, including certain motor vans. The bank claimed the goods in question under their mtge., & obtained from the registrar a certificate “that a mtge. or charge dated”—specifying the date & the parties to the instrument—“was registered pursuant to Cos. Act, s. 93.” On an interpleader issue to try the title of the bank as against the execution creditor:—Held: as the certificate identified the instrument of charge, & stated that the mtge. or charge thereby created had been duly registered, it must be understood as certifying the due registration of all the charges created by the instrument, sale was prepared, but was not executed:—Held: the agreement to give security had not created an equitable mtge., which, not being within the definition of “mtge.” in Cos. Act, 1908, s. 130 (11), was not rendered void by that sect. by reason of non-registration.—NEW ZEALAND SAWMILLING CO., LTD. v. HOON HAY QUARRIES, LTD., [1925] N. Z. L. R. 73.—N.Z.

Act, 1910, of Barbados, as a public co., in order to carry on testator's business & to divide the profits of it between members of his family entitled under his will to share them; the managing director had a preponderating voting power. Upon a petition for winding up by shareholders who were not directors, it appeared that the directors had omitted to hold general meetings, or to submit accounts, or recommend a dividend, & that they had laid themselves open to the suspicion that their object in so omitting was to keep petitioners in ignorance of the co's. position & affairs & to acquire petitioners' shares at an under-value:—Held: the power to wind up the co. under sect. 127 (vi) of that Act [which was identical with 1908 Act, s. 129] was not confined to cases in which there were grounds analogous to those mentioned earlier in the sect.; & in the circumstances of the case, regard being had to the domestic character of the co., petitioners were entitled under that provision to a winding-up order.—*LOCH v. Creditors to the extent of £300,000, including one whose claim amounted to about two-thirds of the co.'s whole indebtedness, had assented to the voluntary winding up, & petitioner, who was a creditor to the extent of £5,000 only, was the sole creditor who objected to the co. being wound up voluntarily:—Held: although as a general rule the co. would have regard to the wishes of a majority of creditors, the circumstances were of such a special character that an exception to the general rule should be made, & a winding-up order pronounced.—*BOUBOULIS v. — Judgment after winding up—Right of company to recover money from third party based on company's liability to judgment creditor—No ground for not staying execution.—The manager of a co. fraudulently & without authority accepted bills of exchange in the co.'s name, & upon those bills the co. was sued to judgment by the holders. After the commencement of the action the co. went into voluntary liquidation. The co. subsequently recovered judgment in an action against a third party for damages for having wrongfully facilitated the commission of the above fraud, & for having thereby rendered the co. liable on the bills. The judgment creditors in the first action then sought to attach under a garnishee order the money so payable to the co. by the third party. On an application by the co. to stay the garnishee proceedings:—Held: where a judgment is recovered against a co. which is in voluntary liquidation the invariable practice of the ct. is to stay execution of the judgment unless there are very exceptional reasons for exercising its discretion otherwise, & the fact that the only right of the co. to recover the money claimed from the garnishees was based upon the co.'s liability to the judgment creditors was not such an exceptional circumstance as to take the case out of the general rule.—*ANGLO-BALTIC & MEDITERRANEAN BANK v. 903. For the paragraph in the original volume substitute the following paragraph:—

—————.]—By the Lanchester Inclosure Act, 1773, the moors & commons of the manor of Lanchester, Durham, were divided & allotted. The Act provided that the lord of the manor & his assigns should have, hold & enjoy all mines & minerals within & under the allotments, with full & free liberty of searching for, draining, winning & working the mines & minerals by any ways or means then in use or thereafter to be invented as fully & freely as he might or could have had, held, used & enjoyed the same in case that Act had not been made without paying any damages or making any satisfaction for so doing; & also that the annual rental of a certain allotment to the justices should be applied in or towards the compensation of those allottees whose allotments were damaged by the exercise of the lord's mining rights, & that any deficiency should be made up by means of a rate levied upon all the allottees:—Held: (1) the case was governed by the decision of the Ct. of Appeal in Consett Waterworks Co. v. Ritson, No. 901, ante, which was a decision on the identical question arising on the construction of the same Act & in the same circumstances, & although the reasoning upon which that decision was founded had been disapproved of by the House of Lords in Butterknowle Colliery Co. v. Bishop Auckland Industrial Co., No. 905, post, the decision itself had not been overruled & was therefore binding upon the ct., & defts. had a right to work the mines so as to let down the surface of the land without paying damages or making any compensation to pl'ts.; (2) (YOUNGER, L.J.) the decision at which the Ct. of Appeal had felt itself compelled to arrive in deference to authority binding upon it might quite well have been reached on the construction of the Act itself apart altogether from the decision by which it was bound.—*CONSETT INDUSTRIAL & PROVIDENT SOCIETY, LTD. v. - 62a. —.]—The Board of the Railway Comrs. for Canada made an order directing a railway co. to construct a subway so that, owing to the increased traffic the existing roadway should be lowered & pass under the railway instead of crossing it on the level, & ordering that detailed plans be filed for the approval of the chief engineer of the Board :—Held : (1) the subway was not part of the undertaking of the railway, so as to enable the co. to take possession of land under Expropriation Act, R. S. C., 1906 (c. 143), for the purpose of the railway proper, & the lowered road still remained part of the road belonging to the municipality; (2) detailed plans must be detailed plans of what was actually lodged as the general plan, & it was not within the liberty of the co. to enlarge the scope of the original plan & provide for a new access to the subway & the taking of land. Detailed plans were only to show the precise way in which the construction was to be made.—BOLAND v. CANADIAN NATIONAL RY. CO., [1927] A. C. 198; 95 L. J. P. C. 209; 136 L. T. 197, P. C.

- 116a. Land not bona fide intended to be taken for purpose.]—Appls. had statutory power to acquire compulsorily land required for the purpose of making or extending streets, also land required for "carrying out improvements in or remodelling any portion of the city." In connection with the extension of a street, they resolved to acquire resps.' land for the latter purpose. They had previously been restrained from acquiring the land for the extension, on the ground that it was not really required for that purpose, but that its purchase was desired because of its probable increase in value. No plan for improving or remodelling the area was considered or proposed, & evidence as to proceedings in the council showed that applts. were endeavouring to give a new form to the transaction previously decided upon, rather than considering whether resps.' land was required for improving or remodelling :—Held : the evidence sustained the lower ct.'s conclusion of fact that applts. were exercising their powers for a purpose differing from those specified by the statute, & they had rightly been restrained from acquiring resps.' land.—*SYDNEY MUNICIPAL COUNCIL v. 274a. By construction of bridge.] Resps., a county council, were empowered by a private Act to build a bridge across a navigable river giving access to a wharf, which was resorted to by sea-going vessels & was also used for the storage of goods. The bridge, when built, constituted an obstruction to the navigation & interfered with access to the wharf, so that goods destined for the wharf had to be transhipped from sea-going vessels into barges below the bridge, & the owners of the wharf had to acquire a new wharf below the bridge. The owners of the old wharf, i.e., the freeholders, & a mtgee., & the occupiers, who were tenants at will, claimed compensation under the following heads: depreciation of freehold value of the old wharf; cost of the new wharf; damage through loss of traffic; damage through extra cost of handling traffic at the new wharf; damage to river sailing-barge traffic; damage through total stoppage of dumb craft with goods for overseas; damage through loss of storage rents:—Held: claimants were entitled to compensation only under the first head, & were not entitled to compensation under the other heads.—*HEWETT v. 650a. —Acquisition of land & appointment of arbitrator under Public Health Act, 1875 (c. 55).—A land co. was the owner in fee simple of certain land through which a sewerage board, under Public Health Act, 1875 (c. 55), after duly serving on the co. notice of intention to do so, carried a sewer & a rising main. Subsequently an agreement in writing was entered into between the parties regarding what had been done. Differences having arisen regarding the compensation to be paid by the board to the co., recourse was had to arbn. The arbitrator was appointed under Public Health Act, 1875, & before entering on the arbn. made the statutory declaration under that Act. Having considered the disputes he made an alternative award in the form of a special case for the opinion of the ct. If the ct. was of opinion that compensation was to be assessed solely under Public Health Act, 1875, he awarded the co. £5,090; if the arbitration was under Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (c. 57), & the basis on which compensation was to be awarded was to be governed by the principles in s. 2 of that Act, he awarded the co. £2,148.—Held: as the land had been acquired under powers conferred by Public Health Act, 1875, before the agreement between the parties was entered into, it had been acquired compulsorily, & as there was nothing in the agreement which affected the primary basis of the value of the land nor any other matter, including the appointment of the arbitrator expressly under Public Health Act, 1875, which was inconsistent with the rules laid down by s. 2 of the Act of 1919, that Act applied to the arbn., & the co. should be awarded £2,148.—THURROCK, GRAYS & TILBURY JOINT SEWERAGE BOARD v. 773a. Award of lump sum was the owner of certain land with regard the acquisition of which an arbn. was 1 under Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (c. 57). He claimed £17,362, & before the hearing of the arbn., the President of the Air Council made an unconditional offer of £10,000. The sum awarded to claimant by the official arbitrator in respect of his interest in the land & the consequential damage thereto was £11,415. In dealing with the costs the arbitrator directed the Council "to pay £100 towards the costs of claimant." Claimant applied to the ct. by motion for the award to be remitted to the arbitrator on the ground that he had, in making the above order as to costs, not properly exercised the discretion conferred upon him by sect. 5 (4) of the above Act:—*Held: in awarding the lump sum of £100, the arbitrator had in terms awarded to claimant part of his costs of the arbn. within sect. 5, & as it seemed reasonably clear from the Act that, when a sum was awarded by the arbitrator in excess of the amount offered by the authority but less than the sum which claimant had offered to accept, the arbitrator had an absolute discretion as to the costs, the motion to review the award failed.—BRADSHAW v. - 17a. ———] — Pltfs. were an English limited co. of engineers & merchants. Part of its business was transacted in Russia, & for the purpose of that business pltfs., through their London bankers, deposited moneys & Russian Treasury Bonds with the Petrograd branch of the Banque de Commerce de l'Azoff-Don. Having done so, pltfs. took out two policies of insurance to insure themselves against loss or damage to the insured property "directly caused by fire, rioters, civil commotions, war, civil war, revolutions, rebellions, military or usurped power. . . ." No claim was to attach under the policy (inter alia) "for confiscation or destruction by the Govt. of the country in which the property is situated." In Dec. 1917, during the currency of the policy, the Banque de Commerce was occupied by soldiers & sailors of the Red Guard, & by the Bolsheviks, purporting to act under the authority of an executive committee of the Commissaries of the People. They demanded & obtained control & possession of the bank & everything contained in it, including the insured property. Two actions were brought claiming for losses under the policies, & the question arose with regard to the recognition of the Soviet Govt. as a sovereign power:—Held: on the information then available, the act of the military in seizing the insured property was an act of confiscation by the Govt. of Russia which was in existence at the material time, & had since been recognised by His Majesty's Govt. as the de facto Govt. of Russia, & was not an act of a usurped authority; therefore the claim failed by reason of the clause which provided that no claim was to attach under the policy ". . . for confiscation or destruction by the Govt. of the country in which the property is situated."—*WHITE, CHILD & BENEY, LTD. v. for $50,000; both debentures assigned the uncalled capital of the co., & were, as the ct. held, valid according to the law of Queensland. In Dec. 1886 the Q. Co. made a call of $50 a share payable in four instalments, in Feb., Apr., June, & Aug. 1887. The co. had many shareholders domiciled in Scotland & some in England. On Oct. 20, 1887, an order was made for winding up the co. in Queensland, & on June 14, 1888, a similar order was made in England. On Feb. 24, 1887, the A. Co., a co. domiciled in Scotland, commenced proceedings in Scotland to recover from the Q. Co. large sums entrusted to them for investment. Immediately after the institution of the action the call moneys due under the call made by the Q. Co. as above, from shareholders resident in Scotland, were arrested by the Scotch process called arrestment on the dependence of the action. Proceedings in this action were restrained by the High Ct. in England on Feb. 24, 1888, on the motion of the English liquidator of the Q. Co., but the order was expressly made without prejudice to the security, if any, upon the amounts payable by the Scotch shareholders in the Q. Co. which the A. Co. had acquired by their proceedings, & the amounts received from the Scotch shareholders were directed to be carried by the liquidator to a separate account. On Sept. 6, 1889, an order was made in the Queensland winding up allowing the claim of the A. Co. for £12,662 4s. 5d. The U. Bank, whose claim against the Q. Co. had been allowed for £74,000, but who had valued their security at £31,000, took out a summons claiming that the liquidator should pay over to the bank all the moneys in his hands representing proceeds of the said call. The A. Co. claimed to be paid in priority out of the money received from Scotch shareholders. The evidence stated that, according to the law of Scotland, the arrestment had the effect of attaching the fund in favour of the creditor obtaining it, & upon the decree being pronounced in the suit the security would become complete, & that such an arrestment operated as an assignment of the fund duly intimated; that an admission of the sum due in the winding up of a co. was for this purpose equivalent to a decree; & that, according to the law of Scotland, in order to create a competent security over incorporeal personal property, the assignment thereof must be duly intimated to the debtor:—Held: without deciding the point whether the maxim "Mobilia sequuntur personam" made the assignment of the calls by the Q. Co. domiciled in Queensland valid in Scotland, the case was governed by the principle that, if a transfer of personal property is carried out validly according to the law of the country where the property is situated, it cannot be made invalid by anything in the law of the assignor's domicile; & as the evidence proved that the arrestment operated as an assignment by the Q. Co., completed by intimation according to the law of Scotland, that assignment could not be made invalid by the prior assignment, which could only have effect by the law of Queensland.—*Re QUEENSLAND MERCANTILE & AGENCY CO., Ex p. 639. To the cross-reference before this case add "No. 1981a."

639a. —.]—Pltf. was received by defts., a British co., under a contract made in Detroit, to be carried in one of their steamships from New York to Southampton. The contract contained a clause that the shipowners should not be liable for loss, damage or delay to a passenger or his baggage arising from the act of God, or from causes of any kind beyond the carrier's control, even though the loss, damage or delay might have been caused by the neglect or default of the shipowners' servants. It was further provided that all questions arising under the clause should be decided according to English law. A subsequent clause provided that no claim under the contract should be enforceable against the shipowners unless a written notice thereof was delivered to them within three days after the passenger should be landed from the steamer at the termination of her voyage. In the course of the voyage one of pltf.'s hands was injured by reason of the negligence of defts.' servants, but no written notice of any claim was given by pltf. within the time limited by the contract:—Held: the language of the contract showed that it was the intention of the parties that it should be wholly governed by English law; the clause relieving defts. from liability for the negligence of their servants, though void by the law in force in Detroit, was valid & enforceable, by English law, but, applying the ejusdem generis rule, the clause did not absolve defts. from liability for pltf.'s injury.—*JONES v. The co. had a branch in London & in most of the capitals of Europe, the branch in Paris being its head office for Europe. The general manager of the London branch had no general authority to issue policies in this country. Certain life policies signed by the president & secretary of the co. & countersigned by the general manager for Europe, were issued in London to German nationals before the outbreak of the war. The policies were not under seal. The policy moneys were expressed to be payable in London, but all premiums were payable either at the central office in New York or at the office where the insurance was payable, & proofs of death were to be furnished at the New York office. An indorsement on the policy provided that it should be construed according to English law:—Held:

But the ct. has no jurisdiction to maintain a suit against a resp. who at the time of his citation or of the institution of the suit is resident out of the jurisdiction. Statute of Citations, 1531 (c. 9), s. 2, which forbade the ecclesiastical cts. to cite any person out of the diocese where he was inhabiting or dwelling, must be taken to have limited the jurisdiction & not only the power of service of the ecclesiastical cts.; & Matrimonial Causes Act, 1857 (c. 85), which permits service within or without His Majesty's Dominions, cannot extend the jurisdiction.—*GRAHAM v. Before she was ready to leave, L. brought an action against the master in the Turkish ct. on the ground that the ship was about to be removed without security having been given. By order of the Turkish ct. the ship was arrested, & as the master had no evidence of what had been done in London & L. took an oath that security had not been given, the Turkish ct. awarded L. £23,890. Pltfs. replied that the judgment was obtained by proceedings contrary to natural justice. The action in France was brought by the sellers against the buyers for cancellation of the contract, & for damages, & the ct. made an order appointing an expert to go to London to examine the goods, compare them with the samples delivered, hear & take down in writing all evidence, & make a full report in writing to the French ct. It was proved in the English action that the expert appointed made a hurried & incomplete examination of the goods, refused to look at certain documents or to hear the evidence of pltfs. & their witnesses, & ultimately made a biased & erroneous report to the ct.:—Held: there being evidence that according to French law the ct. was not bound by the expert's report but could reject it, & that pltfs.' case had been properly argued before the French ct., & their evidence heard, there was no defect in the proceedings, & there being no fraud proved, the judgment in the French action was valid & could not be impeached, & was a complete defence to the English action.—*JACOBSON v. Garnishee proceedings—Payment of debt situate in England—Recognised by international law.]—Judgment having been recovered against a foreign corpn., who submitted to the jurisdiction, a garnishee summons was issued to attach a debt due from a London bank to the foreign corpn.:—Held: the judgment creditors were entitled to have an order nisi made absolute, inasmuch as payment under a garnishee order operated as a discharge of the amount paid & was recognised by international law as having that effect, & consequently there was no real risk of the garnishees being obliged to pay the debt over again to the foreign corpn., & there was, therefore, nothing inequitable in making the order absolute.

The debt in this case is situate in England, & is discharged in whole or in part by payment under a garnishee order in England, which is not mere procedure & is recognised in international law (BANKES, L.J.).—SWISS BANK CORPN. v. 1307b. ———.]—Defts., a co. incorporated in Russia, had a branch office in London, & had registered O. as their agent to accept service of any judicial process that might be issued against them. In 1918 defts.' business & its assets were by revolutionary legislation transferred to the Soviet Govt. In 1923 an action was brought in England to recover a debt alleged to be due from defts. to pltfs., the writ being served on C., & in default of appearance judgment was signed against defts. Pltfs. having obtained a garnishee order nisi to attach a debt due to defts. from third parties in England:—Held: as the debt owing from the garnishees to defts. was governed by English law, payment by the garnishees of the amount of the judgment debt would be a discharge pro tanto of the debt due from them to defts., & it must be assumed that the Soviet Govt. would follow the ordinary rules of international comity & admit the validity of that payment, & the garnishee order ought to be made absolute.—SEDGWICK COLLINS & CO. v. 1309a. ——— Rights of mortgagee of ship under French hypothèque—Claim for necessities.]—According to French law, the mtgee. of a ship under a French hypothèque, although he has not the same right of property as that given by Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (c.60), in respect of an English mtge., has a right to arrest the ship in the hands of a subsequent owner. His claim, however, is postponed to that of a necessities man.

On a motion to determine priorities between English claimants, in respect of necessary repairs effected upon a French ship & claimants under a French hypothèque upon the ship:—Held: as the rights under the hypothèque must be determined according to French law, which gave greater rights than those given by English law to a necessities man who had merely the right to sue in rem, the claim of the necessities men, according to the lex fori by which the question of priorities must be determined, was postponed to the claim of the mtgees.—THE COLORADO, [1923] P. 102; 92 L. - 1378a. ———.]—In respect of a collision in the Red Sea the owners of the J. issued a writ in the Egyptian cts. against the owners of the M. & obtained bail. Shortly afterwards the owners of the M. instituted a cross-action against the owners of the J., also in Egypt. In Oct. 1927, the owners of the M. issued a writ in personam in England against the owners of the J., who entered appearance under protest & set down a motion to set aside the writ. In Dec. the owners of the M. discontinued their cross-action in Egypt :—Held : if the cross-action had still been pending the owners of the M. might have been put to their election, but as they had already elected there was no justification for staying the action in England, merely because they were defts. to an action in another country in respect of the same subject-matter.—THE JANERA, [1928] P. 55; 97 L. Before the action in America had been brought to trial pl'tfs. issued a fresh writ in rem in England, & on Feb. 27, 1926, re-arrested the ship in the Thames. On Mar. 4 defts. served notice of motion to set aside the writ & all subsequent proceedings in the English action. The American action was discontinued on Mar. 8 :—Held : having obtained bail & so released the ship from any further claim in respect of the particular damage alleged, pl'tfs.' subsequent discontinuance of the action in America after the re-arrest in England did not cure their breach of good faith in instituting proceedings in England & causing the ship to be arrested again, & the writ & all subsequent proceedings must be set aside.—THE GOLAA, [1926] P. 103; 95 L. - 1383a. ———.]—On June 13, 1922, a British steamer & a Finnish steamer were in collision in the river Maas, Holland. After the collision the Finnish owners threatened arrest in a Dutch port. The owners of the British steamer who were anxious that the litigation should take place in England, reluctantly instructed their agents in Holland to provide bail, & although no proceedings were begun, documents in identical terms in the nature of bank guarantees to provide bail if proceedings were commenced within three months were exchanged on July 29 between the owners. On Sept. 6 the Finnish vessel came within the jurisdiction of the English cts., & an action was commenced, & the ship arrested & bail given under protest at the suit of the owners of the British ship. At that time no proceedings had been begun in Holland, but on Sept. 14 an action was commenced in Holland by the Finnish owners. The Finnish owners moved that the writ & all proceedings in the action by the British owners should be stayed, on the ground that their action was oppressive because it required the Finnish owners to give bail in two cts., & was inequitable as a breach of faith of the agreement in Holland :—Held : no legal proceedings having been commenced when the writ was issued in England, & there being no arrest & no bail given prior to the writ now sought to be set aside, there was nothing to debar the British owners from carrying on proceedings in England.—THE JUNO (1922), 128 L. 58a. Crown cannot seize subject's property without compensation—What amounts to seizure.]—Assuming that the Crown has no right at common law to take a subject's property for reasons of State without paying compensation, that rule can only apply, if it does apply, to a case where property is actually taken possession of or used by the Govt., or where, by the order of a competent authority, it is placed at the disposal of the Govt., & a mere negative prohibition, though it involves interference with an owner's enjoyment of property, does not, merely because it is obeyed, carry with it at common law any right to compensation.—FRANCE FENWICK & Co. v. 348a — In proceedings under Patents & Designs Acts.]—Appcts. applied by originating summons under Patents & Designs Act, 1907 (c. 29), s. 29, as amended by Patents & Designs Act, 1919 (c. 80), s. 8, for an inquiry as to the remuneration proper to be paid to them for the user by a Govt. department of the patented invention of which they were the registered owners. In the course of the proceedings, preliminary to hearing of the motion, orders were made in which the litigation was treated, with the acquiescence of both litigants, as subject to the ordinary rule as to costs, & on two occasions orders were made requiring appcts. to give security for costs. After the hearing had proceeded for some time appcts. withdrew their claim in view of a prior trial of the invention found to have been made on behalf of the Govt. which, by virtue of the proviso to Patents & Designs Act, 1919, s. 8, entitled the Govt. to make use of it thereafter without payment. On the question how the costs ought to be borne:—Held: (1) under that part of Patents & Designs Act, 1919, which authorised proceedings against a Govt. department, there was no express mention of costs, & the authority to deal with them was derived from the general jurisdiction of the ct., & the ct. had, therefore, no authority to depart from the common law rule that the Crown neither paid nor received costs, unless the special circumstances of the particular case justified it in so doing; (2) having regard to the orders that had been made before the hearing of the motion, & particularly to the two orders for security for costs, the ct. would infer an agreement between the parties that each of them should be treated as ordinary litigants as regarded liability for costs.—Re LETTERS PATENT No. 139,207, Re CARBONIT AKT., [1924] 2 Ch. 53; 93 L. Deft. in an action in the K. B. Div. for arrears of rent took out a summons to set aside the writ, on the ground that he was a member of the staff of the German Embassy, & filed two affidavits in support of his application. Pltf. applied for leave to cross-examine deft. upon his affidavits. The judge ordered deft. to attend for cross-examination. On appeal the A.-G. attended at the request of the Foreign Office, & on the invitation of the ct. informed them that deft. had been appointed a member of the staff of the German Ambassador under the style of consular secretary, & had been received in that capacity by the British Govt.:—Held: (1) the statement of the A.-G. was binding on the ct., & deft. was entitled to diplomatic privilege; (2) (LORD DUNEDIN) apart from that statement, the order for the cross-examination of deft. would have been justified.—*ENGELKE v. 499a i. — Under Indemnity Act, 1920 (c. 48)—Basis of assessment.—A distillery requisitioned during the war, owing to a fire while it was in the Govt.’s possession, could not be used for distilling for nearly three years after Jan. 19, 1919, at which date the prohibition against distilling was suited to their purposes. These premises were taken by the Govt. under powers conferred by statute for the defence of the realm. Claimants, having tried & failed to acquire premises temporarily, took the only reasonable course; they bought other premises, fitted them for use as a garage, & transferred to them all the appliances of their business which they thus continued to carry on as well as they could. When the Govt. retired from possession of the original premises claimants sold the substituted premises. They alleged that the difference between the amount they had expended in acquiring the substituted premises & fitting them for use as a garage on the one hand, & the sum they received on the sale of the substituted premises on the other hand amounted to £3,429. They claimed this sum as an item of "direct loss or damage incurred or sustained by reason of interference with" their "property or business" within sect. 2 (1) (b) of the above Act:—Held: "direct loss or damage" may include consequential damage, & the item claimed could not be entirely excluded as indirect loss, but the amount to which claimants might be entitled in respect thereof must be assessed by the War Compensation Ct.—*A. & B. By their petition of right suppliants alleged that the Shipping Controller had no lawful authority to impose a condition or to exact the payment, which suppliants had paid under protest, & that the Shipping Controller thereby became liable to repay the money to suppliants as money had & received to their use. The petition of right was not brought within one year from the termination of the war or within one year from the exaction of the money. The Crown demurred to the petition, on the ground that the case if founded on the alleged tort of the Shipping Controller was barred by the above sub-sect., & if based on an alleged breach of contract, the proceedings not having been brought within the prescribed time failed under proviso (b) of that sub-sect. right would not lie against the Crown for tort, for the King could do no wrong. Suppliants contended that they were entitled to waive the tort & to sue for money had & received by the Shipping Controller & now in the hands of the Crown, & that their claim so grounded was not a proceeding for or in respect or on account of any act of the Shipping Controller, & therefore was not within the terms of the Act:—Held: the allegation that suppliants' money had been extorted from them by the wrongful act of the Shipping Controller was an essential part of suppliants' case, from which the claim for money had & received arose; & as such act was one to which the above sub-sect. applied, the petition of right was barred by that sub-sect.—*BRISTOL CHANNEL STEAMERS, LTD. v. On a petition of right to recover back the money so paid:—Held: (1) the imposition of the condition was illegal, & the payment was not a voluntary payment; (2) the petition of right was barred by the above sub-sect.; it was not open to suppliants, by waiving the tort of the illegal exaction & suing for money had & received, to bring the case within par. (b) of the proviso to the sub-sect., for the case fell within the exception to the proviso as being one in which a claim for compensation could have been brought under sect. 2 (1) (b); (3) (BANKES & SARGANT, L.JJ.) suppliants failed to bring the case within the proviso upon the further ground that the contracts referred to in paragraph (b) are limited to express contracts, & do not include the fictitious contract to repay money improperly extorted, the implication of which arises upon a waiver of the tort.—*BROCKLEBANK, LTD. v. 526d. ———.]—Transfer of liabilities incurred by Shipping Controller to Board of Trade—Whether action maintainable against Board of Trade.]—(1) Pltfs. in 1922 brought an action against the Board of Trade for money had & received. The money which it was sought to recover was alleged to have been wrongfully extorted from pltfs. in 1919 by the Shipping Controller under colour of his office, & it was alleged that, on pltfs. electing to waive the tort, he would have been personally liable to refund the money as having been received to their use. By Ministry of Shipping (Cessation) Order, 1921, it was provided that the office of Shipping Controller should cease to exist, & that "All . . . liabilities . . . incurred by the Shipping Controller . . . shall be transferred to the Board of Trade." The "Board of Trade" is the name given by statute to an unincorporated committee of the Privy Council. On an application to strike out the writ on the ground that the Board of Trade, as a department of the Crown, could not be sued:—Held: the intention of the Order was to transfer to the Board of Trade as a Govt. department the personal liabilities, if any such there were, of the Shipping Controller for any wrongful acts committed by him in his office, & the Board was liable to be sued in respect of those acts notwithstanding that it was an unincorporated body.

(2) Although the Board of Trade may in the above-mentioned circumstances be sued as a Govt. department, service of the writ must, unless the solr. to the Board accepts service on their behalf, be effected upon the individual constituent members of the Board personally.

(3) Where an official of a Govt. department wrongfully extorts a sum of money from a subject for the use of the Crown & the injured party waives the tort:—Qu.: whether he can sue the official personally as for money had & received, or whether his only remedy is not by petition of right against the Crown.—*MARSHAL SHIPPING CO. v. 534a. ———.]—A British ship lying in a neutral port & laden with a cargo of timber belonging to neutrals of another country was requisitioned during the war by the British Govt. & brought home with her cargo to England without the consent & against the protest of the cargo owners. The timber was then requisitioned by the Controller of Timber Supplies on behalf of the Board of Trade avowedly under Defence of the Realm Regulations, 2B & 2JJ. The owners of the cargo made a claim in the War Compensation Ct. for compensation & contended that it should be assessed under Indemnity Act, 1920 (c. 48), s. 2 (2) (iii.) (a), on the ground that in the circumstances they would but for the Act have had a legal right to compensation:—Held: (1) the regulations did not apply to a seizure of goods of a neutral brought into England against his will; (2) the requisition of the timber was justifiable as an exercise of the royal prerogative right of angary & was, therefore, made "in exercise of" a "prerogative right to His Majesty" within s. 2 (1) (b) of the Act, & inasmuch as that right involved the obligation to pay full compensation to the owner of the property seized, claimants "would have had apart from" the Act a valid claim for compensation by petition of right, & the Crown admitting that such a claim constituted "a legal right to compensation," compensation was to be assessed according to the principle laid down in s. 2 (2) (iii.) (a) of the Act.—COMMERCIAL & ESTATES CO. OF EGYPT v. BOARD OF TRADE, [1925] 1 K. B. 271; 94 L. J. K. B. 50; 132 L. T. 516, C. A.

Legal effect expressly excluded.]
By successive arrangements made before 1913 between an American firm & an English co. the American firm were constituted sole agents for the sale in the United States & Canada of tissues for carbonising paper supplied by the English co. The greater part of these tissues was manufactured for this English co. by another English co. By an arrangement made between the American firm & both English cos. in 1913 the English cos. expressed their willingness that the existing arrangements with the American firm, which were then for one year only, should be continued on the same lines for three years & so on for further periods of three years, subject to six months' notice. This document, after setting out the understanding between the parties, including several modifications of the previous arrangements, proceeded as follows : " This arrangement is not entered into, nor is this memorandum written, as a formal or legal agreement, & shall not be subject to legal jurisdiction in the law cts. either of the United States or England, but it is only a definite expression & record of the purpose & intention of the three parties concerned, to which they each honourably pledge themselves, with the fullest confidence—based on past business with each other—that it will be carried through by each of the three parties with mutual loyalty & friendly co-operation. This is hereinafter referred to as the ' honourable pledge ' clause." Disputes having arisen between the parties, the English cos. determined this arrangement without notice. Before the relations between the parties were broken off the American firm had given & the first-mentioned English co. had accepted certain orders for goods. In an action by the American firm for breach of contract & for non-delivery of goods :—Held : (1) the arrangement of 1913 was not a legally binding contract ; (2) at the date of the arrangement of 1913 all previous agreements were determined by mutual consent ; (3) the orders given & accepted constituted enforceable contracts of sale.—*ROSE & FRANK Co. v. A letter was sent to the co. enclosing a copy of the Order & stating “an agreement is being prepared & will be submitted shortly for signature,” but no agreement was ever executed. Two days later the co. wrote to the Minister of Public Works that the terms of the Order were satisfactory & adding, “but in order that all will be quite clear our understanding is that we are to assign our insurances & policies to the Govt., & that the temporary buildings now being constructed are to be replaced by permanent buildings of the same kind as the original”:—Held: the letter of the co. to the Minister did not contain an unqualified acceptance of the terms set out in the Order in Council.—*HALIFAX GRAVING CO. v. sz. Delivery of goods—Before time laid down in order.]—Applt. sent an order on June 7 to resp. to send him on hire a binder, to be delivered on or about Oct. 1. The order contained a term that it was not to be binding on resp. until received & ratified in writing or by actual delivery of the goods to applt., & that the order might be cancelled by applt. giving notice to resp. by registered letter at least thirty days prior to date for delivery, with a proviso that if prior to that date or six months thereafter applt. ordered a binder from any other person, resp. might by registered notice revive the order, & deliver the binder within thirty days. An agent of resp. was told by applt. that he wished to cancel the order, as he was buying a harvester, & the agent notified resp., but no notice was given by applt. to resp. On Sept. 2, resp. forwarded by rail a binder to applt., & wrote him stating that the binder had been forwarded per rail. The machine arrived, & applt. refused to take delivery, but admitted he had received the letter:—Held: the letter did not amount to a ratification of the order, contract to be prepared by the vendor’s solr.,” & do not import a binding agreement between the parties.—LOCKETT v. NORMAN-WRIGHT, [1925] Ch. 56; 94 L. J. Ch. 123; 132 L. T. 532; 69 Sol. Jo. 125.

& a delivery on Sept. 2 did not necessarily imply a delivery pursuant or referable to the stipulation in the contract for delivery on or about Oct. 1, & there was no acceptance of the order.—BLACKETT v. CLUTTERBUCK BROTHERS (ADELAIDE), LTD., [1923] S. A. S. R. 301.—AUS.

. ——— “Subject to a proper contract to be prepared by the vendor’s solicitors.”—By a document of July 10, 1922, the purchasers agreed to purchase certain freehold land & a nursery from the vendor “subject to a proper contract to be prepared by the vendor’s solrs.” & acknowledged having paid £240 “as deposit & in part payment of the said purchase-money.” Completion was fixed for Nov. 2. The purchasers signed the document & the vendor added & signed a receipt for the deposit confirming the sale. A proper contract was subsequently prepared by the vendor’s solrs., approved by the purchasers’ solr., executed by the vendor, & tendered to the purchasers for execution. The purchasers, however, refused to sign it, declined to proceed with the transaction, & claimed the return of the deposit:—Held: the document of July 10, 1922, was only conditional, & did not constitute a firm contract, & the purchasers were in the circumstances entitled to recover the deposit.—*CHILLINGWORTH v. 845a. — Parol warranty to let for certain purposes.]—Pltf., in an action for damages for breach of warranty in connection with the letting to him of certain premises, alleged that as a basis of negotiations which culminated in an agreement in writing whereby defts. agreed to let & pltf. agreed to take the premises in question, defts. verbally warranted to let the premises for dancing purposes. Defts. had no power to let the premises for such purposes without the consent of the superior landlord, & such consent was never in fact obtained. Pltf. took possession under the agreement & expended considerable sums in alterations, & now claimed to recover the amount of such expenses less the sums received by him during his possession of the premises. There was no fraudulent misrepresentation:—Held: pltf. had failed to establish the alleged parol agreement, & even if the evidence had established that before the contract was entered into pltf. had asked whether the premises could be let for dancing & had been answered in the affirmative, it would only have been evidence as to the subject-matter of the contract & could not control, vary, or add to the terms of the written contract.—*CRAWFORD v. 859a. — What amounts to—Reconstitution of action.]—Defts. on Jan. 9, 1924, agreed to sell a quantity of wood to a partnership firm. The firm, being in financial difficulties, formed a limited co., & duly notified defts. On July 9 it was orally agreed that the new co. should give defts. a cheque & three bills in respect of the indebtedness of the old firm, & that defts. should supply to the new co. the goods sold under the contract of Jan. 9, & accept the new co. as buyers of the goods. The new co. subsequently gave to defts. the cheque & three bills, but defts. did not deliver the goods under the contract of Jan. 9 to the new co. The two partners in the old firm then brought an action against defts. for breach of the contract of Jan. 9. To that action defts. put in a defence signed by counsel in which they pleaded, in par. 3, that it had been agreed by the contract of July 9 that the new co. should give defts. on the following Monday a cheque &

three drafts, & that debts. would supply to the new co. instead of to the old firm the goods sold under the contract of Jan. 9, & accept that co. as buyers of the goods. The pleadings were then amended & the action was reconstituted, the partners in the old firm being struck out & the new co. substituted as pl'ts., & the cause of action was stated to be a breach of the agreement of July 9. - 1178a. — — —.]—In cases under Stat. Frauds the general principle has been, not that the legislature has avoided contracts which are not made in accordance with the forms prescribed in the Act, but merely that those contracts shall only be proved in that particular way. In every single case under Stat. Frauds, except in the case of contracts relating to an interest in land, it has been held authoritatively that part performance of a contract which is within the terms of the Act is not sufficient to preclude the party who has made the part performance, or who has received a part performance, from taking advantage of the Act (ATKIN, L.J.).—Re A BANKRUPTCY NOTICE, [1924] 2 Ch. 76; 93 L. After pliffs. had delivered the first four plates of the series, they called on deft. to pay for them, but he refused to do so till the entire set was published & delivered:—Held: the words "to be sent to me as published" made it clear that the contract was an instalment contract, & not an indivisible contract for the entire set, & the fact that the price of each plate was stated to be ten guineas, while there was no mention of the price of the whole set, showed that each instalment was to be paid for separately.—

1459a. —.]—S., a customer of bkpt., a stock-broker, became indebted to him in respect of Stock Exchange transactions in a sum for which bkpt., on Dec. 18, 1923, recovered judgment. Later, S. became similarly indebted to bkpt. in a further sum. On Jan. 15, 1924, bkpt. assigned both debts to W. to secure £500, & covenanted with him that, in the event of his refraining from giving notice of the assignment to S., he, bkpt., would, on payment of the debts or any part thereof, hand the cheque or other form of payment to W. In Mar. 1924, J., who acted as solr. for both bkpt. & W. in the matter of the assignment, on the instructions of both & without disclosing same, made an agreement with S. for the liquidation of the two debts, whereby S. undertook to pay the aggregate amount thereof by monthly instalments, the first instalments being allocated to the payment of the later of the two debts & the subsequent ones to the payment of the judgment debt; & S. further agreed to deliver promissory notes payable to bkpt. or order to cover the instalments allocated to the later debt. J. received the notes from S. & as agent of W., collected the amounts as they fell due on the notes & paid part thereof to W. & retained the balance. any element of turpitude in it the parties to the contract are in pari delicto, & if one of the parties to the contract has been defrauded, no action for damages can be maintained by the party defrauded, even though the contract is not of a criminal nature.

The secretary of a charity fraudulently represented to P. that he or the charity was in a position to undertake that P. would receive a knighthood if P. made a large donation to the funds of the charity, & undertook that the title would be conferred if the donation was made. P., relying upon those representations & in the belief that the secretary was authorised by the charity to give the undertaking, made a large donation to the funds of the charity. As P. did not receive the knighthood he brought an action against the charity & its secretary to recover back the money he had paid as money had & received or as damages for deceit or breach of contract:—Held: a contract for the purchase of a title, however the money is to be expended, is an improper & illegal contract, as being against public policy, & as P. knew that he was entering into an improper & illegal contract he could not recover back the money he had paid from the charity as money had & received, nor recover damages from the charity or its secretary, nor claim to repudiate the contract as being still executory & recover back the money paid.—*PARKINSON v. Pltf. submitted the land to the Board, but before the sale he had resigned his position on the council. Under the above Acts pltf., as a member of the council, could be called upon to advise the Board in connection with purchase of land within the municipality. In an action by pltf. to recover from deft. commission on the sale:—Held: the private interest of pltf. under his agreement with deft. had a tendency to interfere with the proper discharge by pltf. of his public duty, & the agreement was illegal & void as being against public policy.—WOOD v. LITTLE, [1922] V. L. R. 11; 29 C. L. R. 564; 27 Argus L. R. 400.—AUS.

Pltf. carried on business as the “Turf Register,” which in a prospectus issued by him was called a “society”; but he was the sole proprietor of the business, though he described himself in the prospectus as secretary. In consideration of a subscription, & of a commission on the amounts recovered, he undertook to collect for the subscribers betting debts which, under the provisions of the Gaming Acts, were not recoverable. It was agreed between him & deft., in the terms of the prospectus, that in consideration of pltf. putting up all the necessary disbursements for the institution & conduct of legal or other proceedings, the net profits accruing directly or indirectly was to be equally divided between claimant & the society. Pltf. brought an action to recover the amount of debts alleged to have been wrongfully collected by deft. in breach of the agreement:—Held: the agreement was illegal & void, being contrary to public policy, & pltf. could not recover.—*FORD v. London, to be shipped from Smyrna by steamer to London during Sept. 1922. Smyrna at the date of the contract was in the occupation of the Greeks. On Sept. 9, 1922, it was taken by Turkish forces & shipment became impossible, with the result that the sellers did not ship any of the goods. The buyers claimed damages, & the dispute went before arbitrators, who stated a case for the opinion of the Ct. under Arbn. Act, 1889 (c. 49), s. 7. The sellers said that they were excused from performance on the grounds (1) that the contract became illegal when the port of shipment came under Turkish control, as a state of war at that time existed between England & Turkey; & (2) that a state of circumstances had arisen which made the contract impossible of performance & that differed totally from the conditions with reference to which the contract was made:—Held: mere impossibility of performance did not discharge a party where performance was not naturally impossible, unless such a state of affairs had arisen as displaced the fundamental basis of the contract; in the absence of any strike, war or force majeure clause, the buyers were entitled to damages for failure of the sellers to deliver.—*SARGANT (W. 3183a. ——— Ship ordered to leave port—
Subsequent permission to return & load.]—
A charterparty of an Italian ship provided that 216 running hours, Sundays & holidays excepted, weather permitting, should be allowed the charterers for loading & discharging, & that the lay days should commence from the time the steamer was ready to receive or discharge her cargo, the captain giving six hours' notice to the charterers' agents, berth or no berth. The exceptions clause excepted "restraint of princes, rulers & people." The ship arrived at Batoum, & notice of readiness to load was given,
& the lay days began to run. Owing, however, to a dispute between the Russian & Italian Govts. the ship was ordered by the port authorities to leave Batoum & also Russian waters, & accordingly the ship went to Constantinople. Subsequently permission was obtained to load the ship at Batoum, & she returned after being absent from the port a little over a fortnight. The owners subsequently claimed demurrage from the charterers, on the basis that the lay days continued to run during the period the ship was absent from Batoum:—Held: interference by the Russian Govt. did not amount to such an illegality as to excuse the performance of the contract.—*CANTIERE NAVALE TRIESTINA v. —Pltfs., a London bank, on telegraphic instructions from a bank in Warsaw, which was acting for a Polish co., paid to defts. £2,000 on account of a sum of over £4,000 owed by the Polish co. to defts. The Warsaw bank then wrote a letter of confirmation, but plts.

mistook the letter for a direction to pay defts.
a further sum of £2,000 & did so. Afterwards the Polish co., believing the sum paid off to be £2,000, told the Warsaw bank to arrange for the payment of another £1,000, but the instructions accordingly sent by the Warsaw bank to plts. were lost in transmission & were never received. On discovering the facts plts. were willing to credit defts. with the above-mentioned £1,000 & brought an action to recover £1,000, the balance of the £2,000, as money paid under a mistake of fact:—Held: (1) there was no such mistake of fact as entitled plts. to maintain that the amount claimed was money paid to their use, & the action failed; (2) plts. had been negligent as between themselves & defts.—

4534a. ———.]—By certain military regulations officers in the Royal Air Force were on demobilisation entitled to a gratuity varying in amount according to circumstances. If their names were on a certain list, called the Emergency List, they were only entitled to a gratuity at a lower rate than if they were not on that list. Deft. was a demobilised officer of the Royal Air Force. Plffs., who acted as Govt.'s agents for the payment (inter alia) of gratuities to demobilised officers of that force, in ignorance of the fact that deft. was on the Emergency List, but also in forgetfulness of the regulation which provided that the gratuities of officers on the Emergency List should be paid at the lower rate, & not appreciating the materiality of an officer being on that list, paid deft. his gratuity at the higher rate to which he would have been entitled if he had not been on that list. More than a year afterwards, & before notice of the mistake, deft. spent the money. In an action to recover back the excess payment as money paid under a mistake of fact:—Held: plffs. could not recover on the grounds that plffs.' mistake was not a mistake of fact causing the payment; & that as deft. had been led by plffs.' conduct to believe that he might treat the money as his own, & in that belief had altered his position by spending it, plffs. were estopped from alleging that it was paid under a mistake.—*HOLT v. 4590a. To bank named by principal—Money returned by bank to agent.]—Pltfs. in London sold to a New York co. a quantity of Belgian francs to be delivered to defts. as the purchasers' agents in Brussels on Dec. 31, at a price to be paid in dollars on the same day in New York, & the purchasers instructed defts. to pay the francs when received to the C. Bank. On Dec. 30 bkpcy. proceedings were commenced against the purchasers in New York & a receiver was appointed, & on the same day the purchasers cabled to pltfs. not to pay the francs to defts., as they, the purchasers, were unable to complete their contract. Before that cable arrived pltfs. had already paid the francs to defts., & defts. had paid them to the C. Bank. Pltfs. then requested the C. Bank to return them, & the C. Bank returned them to defts., with an explanation that they did so for the purpose of cancelling defts.' payment to them. In these circumstances defts. claimed that, the money having been returned to them, they were entitled to hold it on behalf of their principals, & refused to pay it over to pltfs., who brought an action to recover the francs as being money had & received by defts. to their use:—Held: (1) as at the time pltfs. paid the francs to defts. the purchasers had already repudiated their contract, although pltfs. did not know that fact & consequently had not accepted the repudiation, pltfs. were under no legal obligation to pay, & having paid under a mistaken belief of legal liability, they would have been entitled to recover the money back if they had discovered their mistake before defts. had paid it to the C. Bank ; (2) the effect of the money being returned by the C. Bank was to restore pltfs. to the same position as that which they occupied before defts paid it away, & that position was unaffected by the fact that before redemand of the money by pltfs. the trustee in bkpcy. of the purchasers had directed defts. not to part with it, & defts. in compliance with that direction had credited the purchasers with it in their books ; (3) defts. were bound to repay it to pltfs.—BRITISH AMERICAN CONTINENTAL BANK v. Part X.—Personal Contracts.

4907. Add. Annotation:—Refd. Public Trustee v. Elder, [1926] Ch. 776.

4908a. ———.]—The element of personal confidence which renders a contract unassignable is not confined to cases where the purchaser relies on the personal skill of the vendor or manufacturer, or where the manufacturer relies on the personal idiosyncrasies of the buyer with regard to his requirements or with regard to his performance to the covenants other than his obligation to pay. Where the ability of the buyer to pay is the subject-matter of personal confidence, the contract is just as much taken out of assignability as where the manufacturing skill of the seller is the subject-matter of the buyer's personal confidence.

Defts. entered into a contract with H. to supply him with 10,000 tons of coal, the delivery of which was to be extended over two years. H. had been carrying on the business of a coal merchant for some years, the business consisting of carting coals from defts.' depots round the streets of a certain district & there selling it to the working classes by weight in relatively small quantities, it being a regular practice to give short credit. H. assigned the contract to pltf., who up to the time of the assignment had no experience of the coal trade:—Held: there was that degree of difference between H.'s & pltf.'s knowledge of the business, which, having regard to the nature of the business, constituted an element of personal confidence in the matter personal to H. which made the contract unassignable.—COOPER v. MICKLEFIELD COAL & LIME CO., LTD., COOPER v. RAYNER (1912), 107 L. T. 457; 56 Sol. Jo. 706.

- 16a. Dramatic work—No “first publication” within 1911 Act, s. 1 (3)—Owner entitled to substituted copyright under 1911 Act, sched. 1.]—Under Dramatic Copyright Act, 1833 (c. 15), a foreign author dwelling outside British territory was entitled to secure dramatic copyright within the British Empire of the first performance of his play given in this country. By an agreement in writing dated June 30, 1898, G., the author & sole proprietor of the right to perform a certain play, granted to pltf. the sole & exclusive right to perform, or have performed, the play in Great Britain & Ireland. On Sept. 22, 1898, G.’s agent wrote to pltf. stating that the play had been first performed in Great Britain on a certain date & at a certain place:—Held: a copy of the letter of Sept. 22, 1898, the original having been lost, was admissible as evidence in a copyright action between pltf. & third parties who claimed a right to produce cinematograph films of the play under an agreement for value with G., dated Sept. 6, 1919, to prove that the first performance of the play took place in this country as stated in the letter since, (1) being written by G.’s agent, it constituted an admission by G., a person who, although not named on the record, had a substantial interest in the result, & (2) it constituted an admission by defts.’ predecessors in title.

(3) An entry in the register of first performances of dramatic productions at Stationers’ Hall is admissible in evidence as a public register. If such an entry is incorrect, the party producing a certified copy of it may be precluded from relying on it as prima facie proof of a right to produce or reproduce the play to which it relates, but it can be regarded by the ct. as corroboration of other evidence of title.

(4) 1911 Act, s. 1 (1) (a) & s. 1 (3), which provide that copyright shall subsist in every dramatic work if it has been first published in His Majesty’s dominions, but that the performance in public shall not be deemed to be publication, prescribe conditions for the future, but do not inflict them on past events so as to destroy existing right.

(5) Where the owner of dramatic copyright possessed [by assignment] the sole right to perform, or permit the performance of, a certain play before 1911 Act came into operation he acquired, by sect. 2 (1) (b), coupled with sects. 24 & 35 of the Act, & sched. 1 to the Act, the right to the cinematograph & film rights of that play also.

An American corpn. made a film & sent a negative & two positives of it to an English co., who made further copies of the film & handed them to another English co., who let them to a British exhibitor. The American corpn. & the two British cos. were inter-working organisations linked together by complex agreements, & they all three shared in part of the receipts from the exhibition of the film by the exhibitor. The exhibitor in exhibiting the film, infringed pltf.’s copyright:—Held: (6) the American corpn. & the two British cos. had actively directed, counselled or aided the infringement by the exhibitor, & had infringed pltf.’s rights within 1911 Act, s. 2 (1), the operative effect of which sub-sect. is extended & not limited by sect. 2 (2) & (3).

(7) Where an infringement of copyright is proved under 1911 Act, s. 2 (1), the question of knowledge of infringement by the infringer does not arise except possibly with reference to the exemption from penalties for infringement provided by sect. 8 of the Act.—*FALCON v. 43a. — Letter written by manufacturer to trade customer.—(1) A letter written by manufacturers to a trade customer, offering their goods at a low price if the customer agrees to take such goods exclusively from them, is an "original literary work" within 1911 Act, s. 1 (1), & the writers are entitled to copyright therein. Such a letter is not contrary to public policy as being in restraint of trade.

(2) The publication of the letter by rival manufacturers, together with a covering letter of criticism, is not "fair dealing" within sect. 2 (1) (i) of the Act.—BRITISH OXYGEN CO. v. LIQUID AIR, LTD., [1925] Ch. 383; 95 L. J. Ch. 81; 133 L. T. 282.

43b. — Single sentence.—Pltf. had, since 1925, dealt with the treatment of the human face, & had advertised extensively in connection with that treatment. He claimed to have the copyright in a slogan in connection with those advertisements. The phrase was, "Beauty is a social necessity, not a luxury." Sometimes there were variations in the words used. Sometimes the words "youthfulness," or "good looks," or "youthful appearance" were substituted for "beauty." In May 1926 deft. inserted an advertisement containing the phrase "A youthful appearance is a social necessity." Some years before 1925 an advertiser had used a similar phrase, "Beauty is a modern necessity":—Held: (1) the only originality, if any, in pltf.'s phrase consisted in the substitution of the word "social" for the word "modern," & pltf.'s phrase was not an original composition; (2) although copyright might subsist in an advertisement, to quote a piece of a sentence from a literary work was too small a matter to afford ground for an action for infringement of copyright; (3) the doctrine de minimis non lex curat applied, & the matter in which copyright was claimed was too small for the ct. to attach any importance to it.—SINANIDE v. which carried on the business of supplying cutter-crush machines & type & other materials used therewith, issued a catalogue consisting for the most part of a number of words which illustrated the products of the several sizes & shapes of type supplied by the co. & customers ordered a particular class of type by referring to such words. Nearly all the words were selected by the managing director of the co. In 1922 defts., who were carrying on a similar business, circulated price lists which were practically copies of the price lists of pltf. co., the words used in pltf. co.'s catalogue & price lists to indicate the style of type being copied in defts.' price lists without alteration. Pltf. co. commenced proceedings for an injunction to restrain infringement of copyright in their catalogue & passing off of goods which were not their goods as being their goods. On the question of copyright defts. contended (inter alia) that pltf.'s catalogue was a design or collection of designs capable of registration under Patents & Designs Acts, 1907 (c. 29), & 1919 (c. 80), & not the subject of protection under 1911 Act:—Held: on the question of copyright the contentions put forward by defts. failed, & an injunction restraining infringement of the copyright of pltf. in their catalogue was granted.—MASSON SEELEY & CO., LTD. v. 85a. Programmes.—Pltf. were a limited co. formed to acquire the Postmaster-General's licence for the establishment & working of broadcasting stations, & to carry on any other business ancillary, incidental, or conducive thereto. Under the terms of their licence & a supplementary agreement pltf. were required to transmit efficiently every day a programme of broadcast matter to the reasonable satisfaction of the Postmaster-General. They were not allowed to alter their memorandum as to objects without his written consent. He might revoke their licence if they failed to transmit satisfactory programmes, & within one month from their ceasing to hold the licence they were bound to pass a special resolution for voluntary winding up. Their profits from all sources beyond a 7½ per cent. cumulative dividend on their paid-up capital belonged to the Postmaster-General. Nine months after the licence, with the approval of the Postmaster-General pltf. began publishing the Radio Times every Friday, including therein the advance daily programmes for the ensuing week Sunday to Saturday. These programmes gave the day & hour of each performance, the artist's name, appropriate headings for items or groups of items, & translations of unfamiliar foreign titles of songs or music. The preparation, arrangement, & editing of the actual programmes involved considerable time, skill, labour & expense, although the preliminary work of fixing the days & hours, engaging the artists, & choosing the items had all been done some time beforehand. Defts. having selected & copied numerous items from a set of advance programmes so published, pltf. sued for in-

Pltf. composed music for an opera which was an adaptation of an old play. Defts. prepared an orchestral score from the same source, records of which they offered to the trade. Pltf. complained that defts. were passing off these records as records of pltf.'s music :—Held.: defts. had borrowed from pltf.'s work in a way which was more than mere coincidence, & had infringed pltf.'s copyright.—*AUSTIN v. These sketches were shown by the author to defts. with defts.' name upon them with the view of being used by them for advertisement purposes. At the suggestion of defts. the colour of the costumes of the figures was changed from mauve to green & yellow; the colour of the lettering of defts.' name was also changed from red to green & yellow. Defts. ordered a number of the sketches so altered at a price which gave the author a very considerable profit. Subsequently defts. obtained a number of the sketches from sources other than pltfs.' Neither pltfs. nor the author had registered the sketches as designs under the above Act. In an action by pl'tfs. for infringement of copyright :—Held : (1) under 1911 Act, s. 5 (1) (a), def'ts. were the first owners of the copyright in the original sketches, as the sketches were ordered by, & were made for, them for valuable consideration & were "engravings" within that sub-sect. ; (2) the sketches were designs which were capable of being registered under Patents & Designs Act, 1907, & as they were used or intended to be used as models or patterns to be multiplied by an industrial process, 1911 Act, by reason of sect. 22, did not apply to them, & as the sketches had not been registered as designs under the Act, of 1907 pl'tfs. could not succeed.—*CON PLANCK, LTD. v. superfluous, & there is nothing in the sub-sect. which cuts down the liability under sect. 2 (1) of the Act, in respect of an infringement of copyright.

Defts., who were the occupiers of a dancing hall, engaged on the terms of a written agreement a band to provide music therein. The agreement provided that the band should not, in the music played, infringe any copyright, & should be liable for damages & costs caused by any infringement. There was also a notice posted in the hall that “only such music as may be played without fee or licence is allowed to be played in this hall.” On one occasion the band played certain music, the copyright of which belonged to pltfs., without pltfs.’ licence; but defts. did not know, & had no reasonable ground for suspecting, that this infringement would take place. In an action by pltfs. for damages & an injunction:—Held: on its true construction, the agreement between defts. & the band constituted the latter the servant of defts., & not independent contractors; the band on the occasion in question were acting in the course of their employment; defts. were liable under 1911 Act, s. 2, for the infringement of copyright; & pltfs. were entitled to damages & an injunction.—PERFORMING RIGHT SOCIETY, LTD. v. - 694a. ——— Sale must be of work represented to be unaltered.]—Pltf., the author of two original drawings, sold the copyright to defts. Defts. afterwards published & sold two drawings, which were made by alterations of pltf.'s original drawings, but which had titles different from the titles of pltf.'s drawings. Defts. did not in any way expressly represent that the drawings made by such alterations were pltf.'s. Pltf. brought against defts. a passing-off action in which she alleged that her work had a distinctive character & could be recognised without bearing her name, & she claimed an injunction & penalties under sect. 7 of the above Act:—Held: to satisfy the sect. there must be a selling or publishing in conditions under which, to the knowledge of the seller or publisher, there was made either expressly or by necessary implication a representation that the author was the author of the work in the form in which it was sold or published, & since, although there was in many of pltf.'s productions a measure of distinctiveness, the mere seeing of defts.' productions did not necessarily suggest the inference that they were the unaltered work of pltf., the action failed.—PRESTON v. - 340a. ———.]—Trade Union Act, 1871 (c. 31), s. 14, & sched. 1 (6), gives every member of a trade union a right to inspect the books of the union, "under proper conditions." That right entitles a member to inspect them by a skilled accountant, but the accountant should not be objectionable to the union on personal grounds, & should undertake not to disclose the information obtained by him except to his client. The fact that the trade union officials believe that the member desiring to inspect the books by an accountant is acting malâ fide, & for purposes hostile to the union, does not give them an implied discretion to refuse the inspection. The onus of establishing that the right of inspection should not be exercised lies on the trade union.—DODD v. AMALGAMATED MARINE WORKERS' UNION. [1924] 1 Ch. 116: 93 L. J. Ch. 100; 129 L. - 935a. — — — — — Pltfs. were by statute entrusted with the control & management of part of the navigations of the Rivers Ouse & Foss, in Yorkshire, with power to charge such tolls, within limits, as the corpn. deemed necessary to carry on the two navigations in which the public had an interest. In 1888 the corpn. entered into two agreements with the firm of H. L. & Sons. By the Ouse agreement the corpn. covenanted to allow the firm, their successors & assigns, the right to carry cargoes on the Ouse in consideration of the annual payment of £600 in place of the authorised dues & charges, with a proviso that there should each year be refunded to the firm, their successors & assignr, the difference between the £600 & the amount ordinarily charged on the traffic actually carried. By the Foss agreement the firm covenanted to pay the corpn. £200 per annum for twenty years as a composition for the ordinary tolls, & the corpn. covenanted to allow the firm, their successors & assigns, the free use of the Foss navigation, on payment of £200 per annum in lieu of tolls, for such further term or terms as the firm, their successors or assigns, might from time to time desire. Defts. were the successors of H. L. & Sons:—Held: the agreements were ultra vires, because during their currency, which depended on the wishes of defts., the corpn., no matter what emergency might arise, had disabled itself from exercising its statutory powers to increase the tolls so far as might be necessary; & being ultra vires at the date of their execution, the agreements did not become intra vires by reason of estoppel, lapse of time, ratification, acquiescence or delay.—*YORK CORPN. v. 71a. Question of repairs—Under Increase of Rent & Mortgage Interest (Restrictions) Act, 1920 (c. 17).—Deft. was the tenant of a tied public-house with living accommodation, of which pltf. were the landlords. In 1910, the house was let to deft. at a rent of £75 per annum for three years. At all material times the ratable value was £68. After certain intermediate tenancies at rents less than two-thirds of the ratable value, deft. in Dec. 1920, took from pltf. a new lease: “To hold the said premises with the appurtenances unto the tenant from Mar. 25, 1920, for the term of seven years . . . at the yearly rent of £120.” The reason for the increased rent was a trade revival which had caused a great improvement in the licensed trade of the house. The conditions of the new lease as to repairs were more onerous for the tenant than those of the old. In an action by the landlords for rent, the tenant contended that the repairing clause amounted to a prohibited increase:—Held: the question as to repairs could only be decided by the county ct., & the High Ct. had no jurisdiction on this point.—*BRAKSPEAR (W. 139a. — — — Issue of summons before leave obtained—Irregularity.—On Jan. 30, 1924, a tenant of a dwelling-house within the Rent Restrictions Acts lodged two complaints in the West London county ct., the one under sect. 12 (3) of the Act of 1920 for apportionment of rent, & the other under sect. 14 (1) of the same Act for certain sums paid by him in respect of rent which, as he alleged, was irrecoverable by his landlord. These sums were, by sect. 8 (2) of the Act of 1923, recoverable on or before Jan. 31, 1924, but not afterwards. The claim for apportionment could regularly be brought in the West London ct., but the claim for repayment could not be brought in that ct. without the leave of the judge or registrar on an application supported by an affidavit. No affidavit was sworn until Feb. 5, 1924. Notwithstanding this the complaint was entered, a complaint note under the seal of the ct. was given to pltf., & a summons was issued, all bearing the date Jan. 30, 1924. By Ord. 7, r. 2, a summons to appear to a complaint shall be dated of the day on which the complaint was entered, & the date thereof shall be the commencement of the action:—Held: (1) the irregular entry of the complaint & issue of the summons before the necessary leave had been obtained did not deprive the county ct. of jurisdiction to hear the action, but the irregularity could be waived by deft.; (2) as deft. had appeared to the summons & raised a defence in no way challenging the jurisdiction of the ct., he had waived the irregularity; the action must therefore be taken to have commenced on

Jan. 30, & pltf. was entitled to recover.—PRINGLE v. HALES, [1925] 1 K. B. 573; 94 L. J. K. B. 458; 132 L. T. 785, C. A.

Upon a contract for the sale of real property at a price exceeding £500 the vendor brought an action in the county ct. against the purchaser, claiming a declaration that deft. had forfeited the deposit paid under the contract by deft. to stake-holders, who were not parties to the action, & that he was entitled to receive payment of the deposit from the stake-holders. No other claim appeared in the plaint or the summons or the particulars of claim:—Held: the county ct. had no jurisdiction to entertain the claim, (1) on the above ground, & (2) on the further ground that the claim was for partial specific performance of an agreement for the sale of property within 1888 Act, s. 67, where the purchase-money exceeded £500, the amount limited by that sect.—DE VRIES v. SMALLRIDGE, [1928] 1 K. B. 482; 97 L. J. K. B. 244; 138 L. T. 497, C. A.

- 373a. On jurisdiction of county court—Reduction of claim for damages—Alternative claim for injunction.]—Where an action, commenced in the High Ct., has been transferred to a county ct. under 1919 Act, s. 1, the effect of sect. 4 of that Act is to give the county ct. jurisdiction to deal with the matter equal to or the same as that of the High Ct.

Pltf. & deft. entered into an agreement, which provided that in the event of any breach thereof by deft. he should pay to pltf. in respect of each such breach a sum of £150 by way of agreed & liquidated damages. Pltf. alleged that deft. had broken the agreement, & he brought an action in the High Ct. claiming the sum of £150 & an injunction. Pltf. afterwards applied, under 1919 Act, s. 1, to have the action remitted to a county ct., reducing the money claim to £90, & claiming an injunction in the alternative. The master made an order for remittal. Pltf. then delivered particulars of claim, asking for £90 damages or in the alternative an injunction. He admitted, however, that the real object of the action was to obtain an injunction. On the action coming on for trial the county ct. judge declined jurisdiction on the ground that in substance the action was for an injunction alone. On appeal to a Div. Ct., that ct. held that the county ct. judge had jurisdiction to entertain the action, & sent it back to him for trial:—Held: the decision of the Div. Ct. was correct.—DAVEY v. ROBINSON, [1923] 1 K. B. 563; 92 L. J. K. B. 336; 128 L. T. 513; 39 T. L. R. 163; 67 Sol. Jo. 246, C. A.

404a. Duty of county court judge to specify scale of costs.]—In an action remitted from the High Ct. to the county ct., it is advisable that the county ct. judge should specify the scale on which costs are to be taxed. Semble: in the absence of any direction by him as to scale, the costs must be taxed in accordance with the scale applicable to the amount recovered.—GOLD BROTHERS & NASH, LTD. v. DAVIES, [1928] 1 K. B. 364; 96 L. J. K. B. 1066; 137 L. T. 567, D. C.

410a. Discretion of county court judge—To deprive successful party of costs.]—Where a pltf. has begun an action in the High Ct. & within twenty-one days from issue of the writ has obtained, under R. S. C., Ord. 14, an order in respect of part of his claim whereby he may sign judgment for £20 or upwards either unconditionally or unless that sum is paid into ct. or to pltf.'s solr., & the remainder of pltf.'s claim is remitted to a county ct. with leave to defend, the judge of the county ct. has the same jurisdiction as a judge of the High Ct. over the costs of the whole proceedings, & he may order them to be taxed on the High Ct. or on the county ct. scale. But in deciding the scale on which they are to be taxed he must exercise his discretion judicially, & he is not entitled to deprive pltf. of the High Ct. costs of the High Ct. proceedings unless pltf. has been guilty of some misconduct.—JENKINS & CO. v. SIMON, [1926] 1 K. B. 111; 95 L. J. K. B. 97; 134 L. T. 88; 42 T. L. R. 39; 70 Sol. Jo. 162, D. C.

497a. — Application under Administration of Justice Act, 1920 (c. 81), s. 3—Discretion of judge to order trial without jury.]—On May 10, 1923, pltf. commenced proceedings claiming from defts. damages for personal injuries caused by the alleged negligence of defts.' servants. Defts. filed a defence denying negligence & afterwards gave pltf. notice of an application to dispense with a jury. The application for trial without a jury was made under the above sect. The county ct. judge, without giving any reasons for his decision, ordered the trial of the action without a jury, & pltf. appealed against that order & alleged that the learned judge had not properly exercised his discretion:—Held: the above sect. did not give the county ct. judge an absolute power to order the trial of an action without a jury; the sect. gave him a discretion which must be exercised judicially; in this case there were no proper materials on which the learned judge could exercise his discretion judicially; it would not be a proper exercise of the learned judge's judicial discretion to dispense with a jury merely because it was inconvenient: on the other hand it is not necessary for the judge to give his reasons for dispensing with a jury, but there must be some grounds for so exercising his discretion.—WINN v. LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL (1923), 130 L. T. 350; 88 J. P. 31; 40 T. L. R. 106; 68 Sol. Jo. 502, D. C.

497b. — — — Onus on party objecting to jury.]—On an application in the county ct. for an order that an action be tried with a jury the county ct. judge is bound in law to make the order asked for, unless the party desiring to dispense with a jury under the above sect. establishes to his satisfaction that the action could be as conveniently tried without a jury. Further, the fact that the lists are congested is not a ground on which the county ct. judge is entitled to suspend a litigant's right to trial by jury.—CALCRAFT v. The execution creditor did not admit the claim & claimant deposited with the bailiff under 1888 Act, s. 156, the sum of £26 which was considerably less than the value of the goods claimed, but was more than sufficient to cover the judgment debt & costs of the execution. The money was paid into ct. by the bailiff, who remained in possession of the goods, & an interpleader summons was issued. Before the return day of the interpleader summons the execution creditor gave notice that he admitted the title of claimant to the goods, & the bailiff withdrew from possession. Upon the taxation of the costs the bailiff claimed possession fees up to the date when the execution creditor admitted claimant's title, upon the ground that under sect. 156 he was bound to remain in possession until the amount of the value of the goods was deposited with him:—Held: as the £26 was deposited with & taken by the bailiff under sect. 156 of the Act, he must be deemed to have taken it upon the assumption that it represented the amount of the value of the goods, & therefore he had no right to remain in possession or to possession fees after the date of the deposit.—*NEWSUM, SONS & CO., LTD. v. On appeal on the question of costs:—Held: on the facts found at the trial there had been negligence on the part of pltf.'s wife, & therefore pltf. could not have succeeded whether there had or had not been negligence on the part of defts., & the county ct. judge had no discretion to deprive the successful defts. of their costs.—JACKSON v. ANGLO-AMERICAN OIL Co., [1923] 2 K. B. 601; 92 L. J. K. B. 1000; 129 L. T. 792; 67 Sol. Jo. 640, D. C.

783a. Order for payment of possession fees of high bailiff—Under Ord. 27, r. 1 (2).]—(1) A Div. Ct. has jurisdiction to hear an appeal from the decision of a county ct. judge who, under the above sub-rule has, on the application of the high bailiff, made an order against the execution creditors, who have directed the high bailiff to withdraw, for the payment of his fees.

On May 15, 1924, the high bailiff of a county ct. under a warrant of execution purported to levy upon the goods of judgment debtors at their premises, & put a man in possession. The sheriff was then in possession of the goods under process of an earlier date, but not to the knowledge of the high bailiff, as the county ct. judge found. The high bailiff on taking possession received from judgment debtors a document which stated that in consideration of his withdrawing from possession they authorised him at any time to re-enter & undertook not to remove any of the goods. On June 12, 1924, the high bailiff on the instruction of the judgment creditors withdrew from possession. The execution was ineffective, except in so far as it brought the parties into negotiation with a view to a settlement. The high bailiff made an application to the county ct. judge under the above rule, for an order for payment by the judgment creditors of his fees for keeping possession from May 15 to June 12. The county ct. judge found that the high bailiff did not withdraw from possession, but was in actual possession & not in mere walking possession of the goods, & made an order for payment of the fees claimed:—Held: (2) the possession of the sheriff did not in the circumstances prevent the high bailiff from taking & keeping such possession as would entitle him to claim fees; (3) there was evidence to support the finding of the county ct. judge that the high bailiff did not withdraw from possession, but kept actual as distinct from walking possession; & therefore the order of the county ct. was right.—A. W., LTD. v. COOPER & HALL, LTD., [1925] 2 K. B. 816; 94 L. J. K. B. 831; 133 L. T. 508.

—.]—A person on board one of His Majesty's ships, which was then in commission & lying in the tidal waters of the Firth of Forth above the Forth Bridge, was alleged to have committed larceny as a clerk or servant to the Navy, Army & Air Force Institutes. He was placed under arrest by an executive officer of the ship, & some days later, by which time the vessel had arrived in Torbay, he was apprehended by the Devon police & charged before the justices, who committed him for trial at the Devon quarter sessions. The indictment charged an offence contrary to Larceny Act, 1916 (c. 50), s. 17 (1) (a), committed on the high seas. Prisoner was arraigned & pleaded not guilty & a jury was impanelled, but quarter sessions declined to proceed with the indictment upon the ground that Larceny Act, 1861 (c. 96), s. 115, which was said to give them jurisdiction, did not extend to offences committed in estuaries or rivers in Scotland, & that the offence charged was properly triable only by the Scottish cts.:—Held: quarter sessions had jurisdiction to try the indictment inasmuch as it alleged an offence which, by virtue of Naval Discipline Act, 1866 (c. 109), was committed within the jurisdiction of the Admty. of England, & therefore, being an offence mentioned in Larceny Act, 1861, it was triable, under sect. 115 of that Act, in the county where the offender was apprehended.—R. v. 2219a. — — —.]—Applt. was accused of having obtained sums of money by way of deposit from persons, who desired to be employed as managers of public-houses, by representing to them that he would appoint them to those positions. The indictment contained eighteen counts, relating to nine distinct offences, which were charged alternatively as obtaining sums of money by false pretences, & as larceny by a trick of the same sums. In every one of the counts relating to false pretences, the indictment as originally framed ran: “by falsely pretending that he would appoint . . . as manager.” At the close of the case for the prosecution the judge thought it right to amend the counts relating to false pretences so as to read “by falsely pretending that he was in a position to appoint,” etc. The jury convicted applt. on all counts:—Held: (1) the conviction for false pretences must be quashed, as the amendment of an indictment allowed by Indictments Act, 1915 (c. 90), s. 5 (1), is an amendment of a defect in form, & not the alteration & revision of the substance of a charge, such as had taken place in this case, which must necessarily prejudice accused; (2) the conviction for larceny must be quashed, because there was no evidence of larceny, as the persons seeking employment had in each case intended to part with their money; (3) Larceny Act, 1916 (c. 50), s. 44 (3), could not apply where the indictment had charged false pretences & was up to the last moment wrong in substance.—*R. v. He was also found to be a habitual criminal on the ground that he had been convicted on three previous occasions & that he was leading persistently a dishonest or criminal life, & he was sentenced to five years' preventive detention. In Sept. 1923 applt. was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment as a suspected person, & he was released on July 23, 1924. From Sept. to Dec. 1924 he was in honest employment. He committed the shopbreaking for which he had now been sentenced on Jan. 2, 1925:—Held: it was questionable whether, on these facts, the jury could properly have found applt. to be a habitual criminal, but if they had done so it must be on a direction to them that the burden of proof always rested on the prosecution to

His house was well conducted, & this was his first offence. The magistrate having given deft. the benefit of the above Act:—Held: as there was nothing in the evidence as to character to bring the case within sect. 1, & the offence was not a trivial one, & there were no extenuating circumstances, the magistrate was not correct in law in giving deft. the benefit of the Act. Before a magistrate deals with a case under the above Act, he should be satisfied that the case falls under one of the specific heads of sect. 1, & should state explicitly on which of the grounds he relies if he exercises the discretion conferred on him by the Act.

5361a. ———.]—Before a sentence of preventive detention can be passed three things are requisite: first, that prisoner shall have been convicted of being a habitual criminal; secondly, that the ct. shall have taken such a view of the substantive crime of which prisoner has then been convicted as to think it right, by reason of that crime & not for any other reason, to pass a sentence of penal servitude; & thirdly, that the ct., in the exercise of its independent discretion, shall be of opinion that by reason of the criminal habits & mode of life of prisoner it is expedient for the protection of the public that he should be kept in detention for a lengthened period of years. Sentence of preventive detention quashed where the judge at the trial had not exercised such independent discretion, but had treated the sentence as necessarily following the conviction as a habitual criminal.—*R. v. 6066a. Direction that corroboration exists not warranted on facts.]—(1) It is a ground for quashing a conviction, if the jury is directed that there is corroboration of an accomplice's evidence, when the ct. thinks there is none.

(2) In dealing with the defence of an alibi, the ct. of trial ought to direct the jury on any part of the period of time which is relevant.

(3) Without saying that in every case it is proper to sentence an accomplice pleading guilty before he gives evidence for the Crown, it is obvious that where he is not sentenced it is more than ever necessary to warn the jury about accepting his testimony, because his object is to mitigate his own punishment (AVORY, J.).—*R. v. In such a case, the judge should follow the rule laid down in R. v. Baskerville, No. 6056; the judge should warn the jury of the danger of convicting prisoner on the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice &, in his discretion, may advise them not to convict upon such evidence, but he should point out to the jury that it is within their legal province to convict upon such unconfirmed evidence.—*GOVIN v. Part V.—Contempt in Procedure.

429a. ——— Consent order—Breach of scheduled terms.—There is a distinction between a case where there is in the body of an order an express direction or undertaking, & a case where the ct. is merely staying an action on terms which the parties have agreed, & only keeping the action alive for the purpose of enforcing those terms. In the latter case the terms are not an order of the ct. capable of being enforced by proceedings for contempt, but must be enforced by an action for specific performance of the terms or for an injunction to restrain breach of the terms, followed by proceedings for contempt in the event of further breach, while in the former case contempt proceedings can be launched forthwith on breach.—DASHWOOD v. DASHWOOD (1927), 71 Sol. Jo. 911.

321 i. Status of Judicial Committee—Advisers of Crown.]—The Judicial Committee sit in the capacity of judges; their report is acted on by the Sovereign in full Privy Council, so that proceedings before the Committee are in substance strictly judicial. The Judicial Committee is not an English body in any exclusive sense; it is not a body with any location. The Sovereign is everywhere throughout the Empire in the contemplation of the law. He may as well sit in Dublin, or at Ottawa or in South Africa, or in Australia, or in India, as in London, & it is only for convenience & because the members of the Privy Council are conveniently in London that the Judicial Committee — Immaterial documents—Inclusion disapproved.—Documents not material to an appeal should not be included in the record. If one party wishes a document to be included, but the other party considers it unnecessary, the matter should be referred to the High Ct. or its registrar. It does not follow that because unnecessary documents have been printed in India they should be included in the books for the Judicial Committee. It is the duty of the solr. in England to make a selection of the necessary documents, the other papers being ready in case they are required. In cases of doubt, the solr. should take counsel's advice, for which purpose, on application being made, a fee will be allowed. —SONATON PAL v. GALSTAN (1927), 54 L. R. Ind. App. 118; 43 T. L. 535a. —.—It is no part of the functions of the Judicial Committee, generally speaking, to interpret an Order in Council unless it be brought before them in the ordinary way of appeal. In the present case, however, in which a suit had been remitted to the High Ct. to assess damages & that ct. had adjourned an appeal in order that the parties might apply to the Board to ascertain the intention & effect of the Order made, their Lordships entertained a petition by resp. with that object, though upon the facts the declaration prayed for was refused with costs.—HURNANDRAI FULCHAND v. 578a. —.—Applt. obtained leave to appeal conditionally upon entering into a bond, & the native agent of applt., who had conducted the litigation, executed a bond on his behalf in the presence of the chief registrar of the ct., who accepted it without objection. Upon the appeal coming on for hearing, the appellate ct. dismissed it, upon a preliminary objection that the authority of the agent to execute the bond should have been strictly proved. Under the rules of the ct. there was power to make any order which was considered necessary for doing justice:—Held: there had been a failure to do justice between the parties, & the case should be remitted to be heard, the appellate ct. giving an opportunity to prove the authority, if that was deemed necessary in the circumstances.—KOJO PON v. 585a. —.—A Chinese resident in Penang executed a deed settling a fund upon his "sons & grandsons" equally. Applt. having claimed that his father, T., was a "son" of the settlor entitled to share in the gift, an inquiry whether T. was legitimate, as being a son by a "t'sip," or secondary wife, was remitted for rehearing, applt. not having had an opportunity of adducing certain evidence upon which he relied, & because the view of the lower ct. that a Christian woman could not be a "t'sip" required reconsideration, seeing that no ceremony was needed to constitute that status. Further consideration was also needed of the possible jural conceptions: (a) that a child might be legitimate, although its parents were not, & could not be, legitimately married; & (b) that a father might legitimatise his natural child by a mother free to contract a legitimate union.—KHOO HOOI LEONG v. - 956a. ——— To make declaration as to validity of divorce—Granted on grounds not authorised by English law.]—Resp. & his wife, applt., who were British subjects of the Jewish religion & resident in Egypt, were divorced by the Grand Rabbinate at Alexandria in accordance with the Jewish religion, but upon grounds which would not have supported a decree for divorce according to English law. Applt. brought an action against resp. in the Supreme Ct. for Egypt for a declaration that the divorce was effectual to dissolve the marriage. The Order in Council of 1910, by which civil jurisdiction over British subjects was conferred, provided by art. 90 that “in all matters relating to marriage, inheritance, or other questions involving religious law or custom the ct. shall, in the case of persons belonging to non-Christian communities, recognise & apply the religious law or custom of the persons concerned.” Art. 103 conferred “all such jurisdiction in matrimonial causes, except the jurisdiction relative to dissolution or nullity or jactitation of marriage, as for the time being belongs to the High Ct. in England”:—Held: applt. was entitled to the declaratory decree which she sought.—SASSON v. SASSON, [1924] A. - 956b. ——— To try action for damages for breach of contract—Breach in England.]—By the Ottoman Order, 1910, the jurisdiction of the Supreme Ct. thereby established extends, as regards Egypt, to, so far as material: “(i) British subjects, as herein defined, within the limits of this Order.

(ii) The property & all personal & proprietary rights & liabilities within the said limits of British subjects, whether the said subjects are within the said limits or not.” Rules of ct. made under the order contain a provision for substituted service, but none for service out of the jurisdiction. Applt., a British subject resident in England, contracted in England to buy from resp., who was resident in Egypt, a concession granted by the Egyptian Govt. in connection with irrigation, & for the employment of resp. in Egypt. Applt. repudiated the contracts by a cable despatched from England. Resp. issued a writ in the Supreme Ct. for Egypt claiming damages from applt. for breach of the contracts, & obtained an order for substituted service in Egypt:—Held: the cable repudiating the contracts having been despatched in England, the breach took place there, & the Supreme Ct. had no jurisdiction in the case.—MARTIN v. STOUT, [1925] A. From order declaring prisoner's right to liberty—Order not directing discharge—Order of Court of Appeal—No appeal to House of Lords.]—No appeal lies from an order of a competent ct. for the issue of a writ of habeas corpus where the ct. determines the illegality of appct.'s detention & his right to liberty, although the order does not direct his discharge.

Upon the application of a man whom the Home Secretary had caused to be arrested & deported to Dublin, where he was interned by the Govt. of the Irish Free State, the Ct. of Appeal, reversing the decision of the Div. Ct., granted an order nisi, which they subsequently made absolute, for the issue of a writ of habeas corpus directed to the Home Secretary, the ct. holding that the detention was illegal as the Home Secretary had no power to order a person to be interned in the Irish Free State; &, owing to a doubt whether the Home Secretary had control of the body, the order allowed him a week within which to make his return to the writ. Before the week had elapsed an appeal by the Home Secretary to the House of Lords was heard on the question of competency:—Held: notwithstanding the generality of the language of Appellate Jurisdiction Act, 1876 (c. 59), s. 3, the House had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal.—SECRETARY OF STATE FOR HOME AFFAIRS v. - 1141a. Income Tax Act, 1918 (c. 40), s. 125, Sched. A., No. V., rr. 7, 8—Remedy by way of appeal.]—As a result of information disclosed in connection with a claim to relief for the year 1920–21 under the above r. 8 the Inspector of Taxes discovered that the rents of certain properties had been increased during that year & that, by the above r. 7 (2), the owners were not entitled to the deductions in respect of repairs which had previously been granted from the Sched. A. assessments on the properties for that year. Additional assessments to income tax, Sched. A., were accordingly made in respect of the tax undercharged, & the Inspector of Taxes refused to certify the claim under r. 8 on the ground that relief under that rule applied only to assessments which were reduced for purposes of collection under r. 7. Notice of appeal was given by the owners against the additional assessments & against the refusal of the Inspector to certify the claim under r. 8, but at the owners' request the hearing of the appeals was postponed pending the decision of the ct. on rules nisi, which the owners had applied for & obtained, calling upon (a) the General Comrs. & the Inspector of Taxes to show cause why a writ of prohibition should not issue, prohibiting them from proceeding with the additional assessments; & (b) the Inspector of Taxes to show cause why writs of certiorari & mandamus should not issue, quashing his refusal to certify the claim under r. 8, & commanding him to furnish the requisite certificate in connection with the claim:—Held: discharging the rules nisi, the General Comrs. & the Inspector of Taxes had acted within their jurisdiction, & as the statute prescribed procedure for appealing against the additional assessments & against the Inspector's refusal to certify the claim under r. 8, prohibition, certiorari & mandamus would not lie.—*R. v. 2736a. ——— Certificate of Post Office medical officer—Workmen's Compensation Act, 1925 (c. 84).—Appct., a telegraphist in the employment of the Postmaster-General, complained to the Post Office medical officer at G. that she was suffering from telegraphist's cramp. In accordance with the regulations of the Post Office medical service, the case was referred to the chief medical officer, who had special knowledge of telegraphist's cramp, & he certified that appct. was not suffering from it:—Held: (1) the giving of a certificate was a judicial act, in respect of which certiorari would lie; (2) it issued ex debito justitiae at the instance of an aggrieved person; (3) an appeal to a medical referee under sect. 43 (1) (f) of the above Act was not equally beneficial, since he could only deal with the medical correctness of the cer-

sn. ———.]—Where deft. had been summarily convicted by a magistrate, who had been informed by a sworn interpreter that deft. pleaded guilty:—Held: certiorari was not available, unless the presumption that the proceedings were regular was rebutted.—R. v. LEE WAH DAI (1923), 41 Can. Crim. Cas. 152.—CAN.

sp. ———.]—The ct. on certiorari will quash a conviction by a magistrate, made without evidence being taken but on the statement of the sworn interpreter that accused pleaded guilty, where it appears to the ct. that accused did not really understand what offence he was charged with. In such a case, accused cannot be taken to have pleaded guilty & the magistrate had no jurisdiction to convict.—R. v. MLAKER, [1923] 3 W. W. R. 988; 40 Can. Crim. Cas. 287.—CAN.

PART IX. SECT. 6, SUB-SECT. 2.—B. (b) i.

2801 i. General rule.—Want of jurisdiction in a magistrate & irregularities in procedure which touch the substantial rights of appct. constitute those exceptional circumstances which justify relief by way of certiorari, even though appct. has a right of appeal.—OKREY v. SPANGLER, [1925] 1 D. L. R. 859; [1925] 1 W. W. R. 518; 19 Sask. L. R. 256.—CAN.

- 544a. .]—Pltfs., shipowners, chartered a steamer to defts. to carry a cargo of timber from the Baltic to Hull. The charterparty contained a clause as follows: "Cargo to be loaded & discharged with customary steamship dispatch according to the custom of the respective ports. The cargo to be brought to & taken from alongside the steamer at charterer's risk & expense as customary." The steamer discharged the cargo at Hull in due course, but disputes arose between pltfs. & defts. as to the division of the cost of discharging the cargo. Pltfs. brought an action to recover a sum which they had paid in effecting the discharge which they said should have been paid by defts. Defts. refused to pay on the ground that by the custom of the port of Hull the expense in question should be borne by the shipowners:—Held: the custom relied on by defts. was inconsistent with the language of the charterparty & was not admissible in order to decide upon whom the expense in question

- 146a. ——— As result of shock.—Defts.' servant had a motor lorry at the top of an incline in a street, with the handbrake on, the engine running, & the wheels straight. The lorry began to run down the incline & it struck & injured pltf.'s daughter, a child, & pltf.'s wife suffered a severe shock & died in hospital about ten days later. Pltf. claimed damages under Fatal Accidents Act, 1846 (c. 93), for negligence causing the death of his wife:—Held: pltf. would establish a cause of action if he established that the death of his wife resulted from the shock occasioned by negligence involved in the running away of the lorry, that the shock resulted from what pltf.'s wife either saw or realised by her unaided senses & not from something which some one told her, & that the shock was due to a reasonable fear of immediate personal injury either to herself or to her children.—HAMBROOK v. 83 i. Damages caused the gist of the action—Prospective damage—Whether recoverable.—A married woman having suffered from nervous shock as the result of an accident, but not so as to deprive her husband of her services or society:—Held: that he might be put to expense in the future was a consideration too remote to entitle him to damages.—HOGAN v. MUNSELL, [1926] 4 D. L. R. 690; [1926] S. C. R. 603.—CAN.

97 i. Ascertainment difficult—No ground for refusal to award.—H. passed a mtge. bond over his farm, a condition being that H. would, on demand by the mtgee., pass a collateral bond over his movable property on the farm. In breach of this condition, H. sold & delivered such movables to a third party:—Held: although the damages, if any, were difficult to assess, the mtgee. was entitled to some damages

On the first instalment falling due, applt. negotiated for an extension of time for payment, which was granted by resp. on condition that applt. should do certain development work not mentioned in the option. Applt. failed to pay, & subsequently relinquished possession of the mine & surrendered the option without having done the work:—Held: resp. entitled to recover damages amounting to the cost of the work.—CUNNINGHAM v. INSINGER, [1924] 2 D. L. R. 433; [1924] S. C. R. 8.—CAN.

PART III. SECT. 2, SUB-SECT. 3.

147 i. Pain & suffering.—In an action for damages for personal injuries arising from negligence:—Held: items which should go to make up pltf.'s damages were (inter alia) a sum, not to compensate for, but to represent the inconvenience of his condition, & his pain & suffering, past & future.—COSGROVE v. CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS, [1923] 4 D. L. R. 818; 3 W. W. R. 1152.—CAN.

149 i. ——— Nervous shock—Actual impact.—Damages claimed for nervous shock, as a result of an accident arising from negligence, cannot be recovered where the nervous shock produces only a mental disturbance unaccompanied by any actual physical injury. If impact is not necessary, it is a question of fact in each case whether or not pltf. sustained physical injury & whether such injury was the natural & reasonable result of deft.'s negligence.—HOGAN v. 181a. ———.]—Pltf., an actress, was engaged by defts. to play in a play for the period of rehearsal & for the run of the play, & there was a collateral agreement that defts. would advertise her in a prominent position. Defts. refused to allow pltf. to play, but they paid her the whole of her salary down to the end of the run of the play. In an action for breach of contract the jury awarded to pltf., over & above her salary already paid, damages for loss of reputation through her not being employed to play the part:—Held: as there was an express agreement to advertise pltf. this necessarily implied an obligation to give pltf. an opportunity of acting, & pltf. was entitled, in addition to her salary already paid, to the damages awarded by the jury for loss of reputation.—MARBÉ v. GEORGE EDWARDES (DALY'S THEATRE), LTD., [1928] 1 K. B. 269; 96 L. J. K. B. 980; 138 L. T. 51; 43 T. L. R. 809, C. A.

149 iv. ———.]—A man & a woman to whom he was engaged were knocked down by a motor omnibus. The man was struck by the omnibus & received considerable physical injury. The woman did not appear to have been actually struck, & she received no direct physical injury, but she suffered severely from shock. In an action of damages at her instance the judge directed the jury that, if by the fault of defts. pursuer had suffered nervous shock through apprehension for her own safety, they were entitled, in assessing damages, to include any aggravation of that shock occasioned by the fact that her companion was involved in the catastrophe. The jury found that pursuer had suffered personal injury resulting in nervous shock involving apprehension for her own safety, aggravated by anxiety for the safety of her companion, & awarded damages.—Held: in the circumstances the jury could not be asked to discriminate between the amount of shock suffered by pursuer due to apprehension for her own safety & the amount due to anxiety for her companion.—CURRIE v. WARDROP, [1927] S. C. 538.—SCOT.

162 i. Loss of or injury to property—Collision at sea—Loss of musical manuscripts.—In an action of damages against steamship owners, arising out of the sinking of one of their ships, pursuer claimed £15,000 in respect of the loss of certain music & orchestral settings in manuscript used by a concert party of which she was manager. She averred that the lost manuscripts were the sole copies of the compositions in question, & that she had the sole right to publish, perform, or issue mechanical reproductions, & to obtain copyright thereof. The compositions had cost pursuer about £2,000, but she averred that, through her concert party, they had acquired a reputation among the public which had greatly enhanced their value, & she further averred that she would have made substantial profits from the lost music in respect of copyright royalties, publication & sale, & disposal of performing & mechanical rights, apart from the use of it by her concert party.—Held: (1) pursuer's averments as to loss of contingent profits from copyright royalties, publication & sale, & disposal of performing & mechanical rights, were irrelevant; (2) the measure of her damages in respect of the lost music was the cost of its replacement as nearly as might be, ascertained either by the market price of actual replacement, or by consideration of the commission which would have to be paid to composers of music of the class to which the lost compositions belonged.—REAVIS v. CLAN LINE STEAMERS, LTD., [1926] S. C. 215.—SCOT.

ad. CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS*, [1923] 4 D. L. R. 818; 3 W. W. R. 1152.—CAN.

st. MCKENZIE*, [1923] 1 D. L. R. 1189.—CAN.

PART III. SECT. 3, SUB-SECT. 2.

sk. Depreciation in price—Machinery components purchased by vendor to perform contract.—Held: the vendor was not entitled, as damages for breach of contract to purchase an ammonia gas compressing outfit, to a sum for loss through decrease in price of the parts purchased for the purpose of the contract, this not being a loss "directly & naturally resulting in the ordinary course of events from the buyer's breach of contract," as there was nothing in the negotiations for the contract to give the purchaser to understand that the vendor would have to go into the market & buy the various parts to make up the plant.—GENERAL SUPPLY CO. OF CANADA v. O'NEILL MORKIN MACHINERY Co., [1923] 2 W. W. R. 928.—CAN.

st. Loss of custom—Defective goods sold but replaced.—Certain goods supplied under contract not complying with the warranted description.—Held: it could not reasonably be supposed to have been in the contemplation of the parties, at the time they made the contract, that pltf. were to compensate defts. for such loss of business as defts. might incur by the withdrawal of their customers on account of a few of the articles resold being defective, such articles being replaced when complaint was made.—HAMILTON GEAR & MACHINE Co. v. He had previously made a contract with M., who agreed to deliver certain pulpwood at a lower price & who was informed of the first-mentioned contract, though not of all its terms. At the end of the season M. was short of the quantity he agreed to deliver.—Held: W. was entitled to recover damages from M. for non-performance of his contract, & the measure of those damages was the profit W. would have made under his contract with the paper co.—*MONDOR v. 215a. —.]—Pltfs. bought a coat with fur collar attached, for re-sale, from deft. & sold it to a customer. Owing to the colouring matter with which the fur was dyed, the customer contracted a skin disease & brought an action against pltfs., claiming damages. Pltfs. informed deft. thereof & requested him to undertake the defence of the action. Deft. denied liability but never suggested that pltfs. had no answer to the action, with the result that pltfs. defended the action & a jury awarded the customer damages for her suffering, & pltfs. had to pay the costs of the action:—Held: pltfs. were entitled to recover from deft. the damages so awarded, together with the customer's taxed costs of the action & their own costs of defending the action as between solr. & client.—*BENNETT (SIDNEY) LTD. v. 227a. — Several sub-sales.]—Defts. sold skins to pltfs., who resold to a sub-vendee. That sub-vendee sold to a second sub-vendee, who sold one of the skins, which had been made into the collar of a fur coat, to a third sub-vendee. The third sub-vendee sold to a woman who wore the coat & developed dermatitis on the face in consequence of antimony contained in the skin. In each sale the vendor knew the particular purpose for which the goods were required by the purchaser, & there was an implied warranty that the goods were reasonably fit for such purpose. The ultimate purchaser brought an action for breach of contract against her supplier, the third sub-vendee. The third sub-vendee defended the action, & in so doing acted reasonably; but in the result the ultimate purchaser recovered damages & costs against him. The third sub-vendee, who had incurred certain additional costs in connection with the action, claimed to be reimbursed by the second sub-vendee, & after some resistance, incurring further costs, the second sub-vendee paid. The second sub-vendee then claimed against the first sub-vendee, who after some dispute incurring further costs, also paid. The first sub-vendee claimed against pltfs., who, after taking advice, occasioning further costs, paid. Pltfs. sued defts. for breach of contract, claiming as damages the damages recovered by the ultimate purchaser, the costs on both sides in that action, & the costs of the intermediate actions:—Held: pltfs. were entitled to recover the damages which might reasonably be supposed to have been in the contemplation of the parties at the time of the contract; the parties must have contemplated that damages would be claimed, if there were a breach of contract of the kind that had occurred, by parties separated by several contractual steps from each of the immediate parties to each of the contracts along the line; pltfs.' damages should include (1) the damages recovered by the ultimate purchaser, (2) the costs on both sides in that action, inasmuch as it was reasonably defended, & (3) the costs of the intermediate actions, in so far as they were reasonably incurred.—KASLER & COHEN v. SLAVOUSKI, [1928] 1 K. B. 78; 96 L. J. K. B. 850; 137 L. T. 641; subsequent proceedings, sub nom. SLAVONSKI v. LA PELLETERIE DE ROUBAIX SOCIETE ANONYME (1927), 137 L. T. 645.

235a. — Costs awarded in previous proceedings, but not recovered.]—Pltfs. sought to recover from defts., as special damage, the costs which they themselves had incurred in previous litigation in which they were defts. Pltfs. in the present action sent a motor lorry to be overhauled by defts. The repairs were carried out & the lorry was returned. Very shortly afterwards, while the lorry was in use on the highway, one of the wheels came off & damaged the van of pltf. in the previous litigation, who brought an action in the county ct. to recover damages against present pltfs. He won the action at the hearing, but the decision was reversed on appeal. He was a man of straw & unable to pay the costs incurred. Present pltfs. sued present defts. for damages for alleged breach of contract & negligence, & a common jury found in pltfs.' favour. After argument as to the right of pltfs. to recover as special damage against defts., on account of their breach of contract & negligence, the costs of all previous litigation:—Held: such damage was not too remote.—*BRITANNIA HYGIENIC LAUNDRY CO. v. against deft. for damages for personal injuries. Deft. was found guilty of negligence, but the action by S. was dismissed on account of contributory negligence. The ct. awarded damages to the wife against deft. It was sought to give in evidence the wife's medical & hospital bills:—Held: the bills had been contracted by the wife marine engineers. At the head of defts.' letter was a printed notice, "All offers are subject to our usual strike & guarantee clauses, accidents, etc." Pltfs. ordered the cylinder, but after it had been delivered & fitted it was found to be defective. A new cylinder was subsequently supplied by defts., but owing to the delay pltfs. were not able to complete the repairs in accordance with their contract with the shipowners & had to pay them damages. In an action to recover the amount of the damages defts. alleged that the contract for the supply of the cylinder was made subject to "our usual" guarantee clause & that their guarantee clause provided (inter alia) that "the contractors shall not in any case be liable for any detention of the vessel or other consequential damages howsoever arising":—Held: as it was not clear what guarantee clause was incorporated, since the clause suggested by defts. was the clause in their usual engine agreement which was drawn to meet the case of engines being supplied to a shipowner & not to meet such a case as the present, & as it was not proved that defts. had made it clear that they intended to limit their liability, pltfs. were entitled to recover.—ALISON (J. GORDON) & Co., LTD. v. WALLSEND SLIPWAY & ENGINEERING Co., LTD. (1927), 43 T. L. R. 323, O. A.

10a. ———.]—An extension of British jurisdiction in a British protectorate by Orders in Council may be referred to an exercise of power by an act of State, unchallengeable in any British ct., or to statutory powers given by Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890 (c. 37), under which the jurisdiction acquired by the Crown in a protected country is indistinguishable in legal effect from that acquired by conquest. The Crown cannot, except by statute, deprive itself of freedom to make Orders in Council, even such as are inconsistent with previous Orders.

Before the conquest & annexation of the South African Republic Swaziland was an independent native State, treated as a protected dependency of that Republic, by which it was administered under a Convention made in 1894 between Great Britain & the Republic. The Convention provided for the preservation of native law, & the agricultural & grazing rights of the natives. The annexation did not extend to Swaziland. Subsequently under Orders in Council certain lands in Swaziland were expropriated to the Crown, to the extinguishment of the use & occupation of them by natives under native law, certain lands being allotted exclusively to the natives:—Held: the Orders in Council were effective, even if they were not within the powers recognised by the Convention.—SOBHUZA II. v. MILLER, [1926] A. C. 518; 95 L. J. P. C. 137; 135 L. T. 215; 42 T. L. R. 446, P. C.

20a. Power of expropriation in mandated territory. —By the Mandate for Palestine, dated July 24, 1922, the Council of the League of Nations, acting under art. 22 of the Covenant of the League, entrusted to Great Britain the administration of Palestine. Art. 2 of the Mandate provided that Great Britain should be responsible for "safeguarding the civil & religious rights of the inhabitants of Palestine irrespective of race & religion." In 1923 an Order in Council authorised the High Comr. for Palestine to promulgate such ordinances as might be necessary for the peace, good order, & government of the country, & were not inconsistent with the Mandate. The High Comr. promulgated an ordinance expropriating certain springs for the purpose of supplying water to Jerusalem, with certain provisions for compensation. In an action by the owners of the springs the Supreme Ct., sitting as a ct. of first instance, held that the ordinance was ultra vires, on the ground that it was inconsistent with the Mandate in that the provisions for compensation were inadequate. Special leave to appeal was granted, all questions of jurisdiction being left open. An Order in Council had made provision for appeals to the Privy Council, but only from orders of the Supreme Ct. sitting as a Ct. of Appeal:—Held: (1) the appeal was competent, since the jurisdiction under the Mandate was jurisdiction in a foreign country within the description in the preamble to Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890 (c. 37); (2) it was the right & duty of the ct. to consider whether the ordinance was consistent with the Mandate, but art. 2 had been misconstrued, & the ordinance was valid; (3) art. 2 did not mean that in every case of expropriation for a public purpose full compensation must be given. Natural justice required that in the absence of exceptional circumstances, fair provision should be made for compensation, but that depended not upon civil right, but upon the principles of sound administration, & it was not within the province of the ct. to consider whether an ordinance was within those principles. Further, the ordinance did make adequate provision for compensation.—JERUSALEM-JAFFA DISTRICT GOVERNOR v. SULEIMAN

In 1923 applts. not having then constructed any works, the provincial Govt. granted to resps. a lease of the water power & bed of the river within limits which overlapped those referred to in applts.' letters patent. Applts. brought an action against resps., claiming a declaration that applts. had a vested right in the river to construct dams, & an injunction:—Held: the action failed, since the letters patent contained no grant of a proprietary right in, or power to take possession of, any part of the river or its bed.—*UNITED MANUFACTURING CO. v. - 91a. Enactment preventing King in Council from granting leave to appeal—Criminal case.]—Sect. 1025 of the Criminal Code of Canada, if & so far as it is intended to prevent the King in Council from giving effective leave to appeal against an order of a Canadian ct. in a criminal case, is invalid. The legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada as to criminal law & procedure, under British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), s. 91, is confined to action to be taken in Canada. Further, an enactment annulling the royal prerogative to grant special leave to appeal would be inconsistent with Judicial Committee Acts, 1833 (c. 41) & 1844 (c. 69), & would be invalid under Colonial Laws Validity Act, 1865 (c. 63), s. 2. The royal assent to the Criminal Code could not give validity to an enactment which was void by Imperial statute; exclusion of the prerogative could be accomplished only by an Imperial statute.
- According to the well-settled practice of the Judicial Committee His Majesty is advised to intervene in a criminal case only if it is shown that, by a disregard of the power of legal process, or by some violation of natural justice, or otherwise, substantial & grave injustice has been done.
- Applt. was convicted in Alberta of an offence under Govt. Liquor Control Act of Alberta, which did not incorporate sect. 1025 of the Criminal Code of Canada, & of an offence under Canada Temperance Act, R. S. Can., 1906 (c. 152). For each offence he was sentenced to a fine, & in default imprisonment. The Supreme Ct. of Alberta, rejecting contentions as to the construction & invalidity of the material sects., affirmed the convictions, but gave leave to appeal to the Privy Council. The Crown petitioned the Judicial Committee to quash the appeals as incompetent, having regard to sect. 1025. Applt. petitioned for special leave to appeal. The petitions were heard with the appeals:—Held: (1) each appeal was in a "criminal case" to which sect. 1025 applied, so far as it was valid; (2) in the absence of argument to the contrary, sect. 1025 prevented the Appellate Div. from giving effective leave to appeal; (3) sect. 1025 did not exclude the prerogative right to give leave to appeal; (4) the cases

Reciprocal Insurance Act 1922, of Ontario, authorised any person to exchange, through the medium of an attorney, with persons, whether in Ontario or elsewhere, reciprocal contracts of insurance, subject to provisions as to licences & other conditions; & it was provided that actions in respect of such contracts might be maintained in the cts. of the province. answer to questions referred by the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario to the Appellate Div.:—Held: (2) the Act of 1922 was intra vires the province, since (a) its provisions were capable of receiving a meaning according to which, whether enabling or prohibitive, they applied only to persons & acts within the territorial jurisdiction of the province, & (b) although it might incidentally affect aliens & dominion cos., it did not deal with them as such, but was an Act dealing with contracts of insurance; (3) the making & carrying out of contracts licensed pursuant to the Act were not rendered illegal, or otherwise affected, by Criminal Code, s. 508c; that sect. was invalid, since, in substance though not in form, it was in regulation of contracts of insurance, subjects not within the legislative competence of the Dominion; (4) the answers under (2) & (3) would be the same if any of the persons subscribing to a reciprocal insurance contract was (a) a British subject not resident in Canada immigrating into Canada, or (b) an alien. In so answering this question no opinion was expressed as to the competence of the Dominion Legislature to enact Insurance Act, 1917, ss. 11 & 12 (1), whereby restrictions were placed upon aliens & British cos. in the matter of carrying on insurance business in Canada; but sect. 12 (2) was held to be invalid in relation to the subject of immigration.—A.-G. number of important industries in Canada the Minister for Labour for the Dominion might appoint a board of investigation & conciliation. The board was to make investigations, with power to summon witnesses & inspect documents & premises, & was to try to bring about a settlement; if no settlement resulted, they were to make a report with recommendations as to fair terms, but the report was not to be binding upon the parties. After a reference to a board, a lock-out or strike was to be unlawful & subject to penalties:—Held: the Act was not within the competence of the Parliament of Canada under British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3); it clearly was in relation to property & civil rights in the provinces, a subject reserved to the provincial legislatures by sect. 92 (13), & was not within any of the overriding powers of the Dominion Legislature specifically set out in sect. 91; the Act could not be justified under the general power in sect. 91 to make laws "for the peace, order, & good government of Canada," as it was not established that there existed in the matter any emergency which put the national life of Canada in anticipated peril.—*TORONTO ELECTRIC COMRS. v. 234a. Court of civil judge of Secunderabad—Limitation of action.]—Applt. sued resps. in the ct. of the civil judge at Secunderabad to recover money lent to a deceased relative. Both the borrower & the alleged surety & their representatives were residents in Hyderabad, in which the civil judge's ct. had no jurisdiction. If the suit had been brought in the Nizam's ct.—at Hyderabad, it would have been barred by Stat. Limitations, but, in the Secunderabad ct. foreign residence could be claimed by way of exemption from limitation. Judgment of the Resident at Hyderabad dismissing the suit affirmed, no part of the cause of action having arisen within the local limits of the ct. of the civil judge at Secunderabad.—RAI BAHADUR BANSILAL ABIRCHAND v. GHULAN KHAN (1925), 42 T. L. R. 5, P. C.

Part III.—Laws of the Colonies.

238a. Rule of English law as to parliamentary control of revenue—Application in New Zealand.]—It is a principle of the British constitution, inherited in the constitution of New Zealand, that no money can be taken out of the Consolidated Fund into which the revenues of the State have been paid, except under a distinct authorisation by Parliament itself; a payment made without that authority is illegal & ultra vires, & the money, if it can be traced, can be recovered by the Govt.

An agreement made in 1913 provided (inter alia) that the Minister of Railways of New Zealand, representing the Crown, should pay to applts. £7,500 when applts. granted a lease to B. & Co. The making of the agreement had been authorised by an Act of 1912, which empowered the Minister, without further appropriation, to pay to applts. out of the Public Works Fund such sum as might be payable in accordance with the agreement. Owing to an alteration in the scheme to which the agreement related, the Minister did not require applts. to grant the lease, & it was not granted. Nevertheless the £7,500 was paid by the Minister of Railways to applts. in 1914 out of a vote included in the Public Works Schedule to the Appropriation Act for the year, & the Controller & Auditor-General passed the sum as being so payable:—Held: as the lease had not been granted the payment of the £7,500 was not authorised by the Act of 1912, & it was recoverable by the Govt. & could be deducted from a larger sum admittedly due to applts.—AUCKLAND HARBOUR BOARD v. R., [1924] A. C. 318; 93 L. J. P. C. 126; 130 L. T. 621, P. C.

265a. Recognition of existing proprietary rights—Effect of proclamation.]—After a sovereign State has acquired territory, either by consent, or by cession under treaty, or by the occupation of territory theretofore unoccupied by a recognised ruler, or otherwise, an inhabitant of the territory can enforce in the municipal cts. only such proprietary rights as the Sovereign has conferred or recognised. Even if a treaty of cession stipulates that certain inhabitants shall enjoy certain rights that gives them no right which they can so enforce. The meaning of a general statement in a proclamation that existing rights will be recognised is that the Govt. will recognise such rights as upon investigation it finds existed. The Govt. does not thereby renounce its right to recognise only such titles as it considers should be recognised, nor confer upon the municipal cts. any power to adjudicate in the matter.

Appls. brought a suit for a declaration that they were proprietors of certain lands situated within territory which in 1860 had been ceded to the British Govt. under a treaty:—Held: upon the facts, & applying the above principles, the suit failed.—*VAJESINGJI JORAVARSINGJI v. 485a. — Directly or indirectly involved—Successful appeal rendering possible prosecution of claim for larger sum.]—Upon a dispute as to a contract for the sale of goods, arbitrators awarded Rs. 18,000 to petitioner & Rs. 3,900 to resps. The award in favour of petitioner having been set aside, he brought a suit to set aside the award in favour of resps. The appellate ct. in India made a decree dismissing the suit & refused to certify under Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, s. 110, that the case was a fit one for appeal to the Privy Council in that it would "involve, directly or indirectly, some claim or question to or respecting property" of Rs. 10,000, or upwards. Petitioner contended that he had a right of appeal under the above words of sect. 110, since if the appeal succeeded he could proceed with a suit, which had been stayed, claiming Rs. 81,000 damages under the contract:—Held: without defining the meaning of "property" as used in sect. 110 petitioner's claim upon the contract was too remote to be considered as being property indirectly involved, & his petition should be dismissed.—UDOYCHAND PANNALAL v. The fact that no rules have been made as to the issue of a mandamus in a criminal matter does not preclude the Supreme Ct. from exercising its full powers.

Special leave to appeal to the Privy Council was granted upon a petition alleging two grounds: (1) that the Supreme Ct. had not jurisdiction to issue a mandamus in the circumstances above referred to, & (2) that under the Criminal Code the persons indicted had not the option given by sect. 827 to be tried without a jury. Special leave was granted on the first ground; the question whether the appeal could be entertained was reserved:—Held: the appeal should be dismissed, since the ground upon which special leave was given failed, & the second ground was merely a question of procedure & was not one upon which an appeal would be entertained.—A.-G. - 336a. ———.]—A lunatic, at the date of her death in 1798, was entitled to certain funds in ct. representing the residuary estate of her father. In 1794 the master had reported that the lunatic had no heir-at-law or next of kin. In 1798 & 1801 the Crown made ex gratia grants of the funds to certain persons & obtained an indemnity in respect of the grants. In 1926 a petition was presented by persons claiming to be the next of kin of the lunatic for the payment to them of the whole of her personal estate. The parties sought a determination of the following questions: (1) whether the petition was maintainable on the assumption that no part of the funds ever came into the hands of or was dealt with by his present Majesty or his nominees or grantees or was carried to the Consolidated Fund; (2) whether the petition was barred by any Statute of Limitations; (3) whether in view of Petitions of Right Act, 1860 (c. 34), s. 5, suppliants could proceed without serving the petition upon the successors in title of the persons to whom the ex gratia grants had been made:—Held: the first question must be answered in favour of suppliants.—Re MASON, [1928] Ch. 385; 97 L. - 127a. ———.]—By an underlease lands & works were demised to the first defts. for the term of twenty-one years less one day. The underlease contained a covenant by these defts. that they would not assign, transfer or part with possession of the demised premises or any part thereof without the consent of the underlessor, & that in case of the breach of such covenant it should be lawful for the underlessor to re-enter upon the demised premises, & that thereupon the demise should absolutely determine. Pltf., the purchaser of the reversion on the underlease, brought an action to recover possession of the premises. By his statement of claim he alleged that the first defts., in breach of their covenant, had transferred, underlet or parted with the possession of the premises to the second defts., &/or the third defts. By their respective defences defts. traversed the allegations in the statement of claim. On a summons taken out by pltf. asking that the second defts. might be ordered to file a full & sufficient affidavit of documents, the judge, considering himself bound by Powis (Earl) v. Negus, No. 127, made the order asked for:—Held: there was one issue only between pltf. & the three defts., namely, whether the underlease, subject to which pltf. as he alleged derived his title to the possession of the land in question, was still subsisting or had been determined by the exercise by pltf. of his right of re-entry, & that being so, the well-established rule that the ct. would not assist a forfeiture by ordering discovery of documents applied, & the order made against the second defts. must be discharged. *Powis (Earl) v. Pltf. was the holder of 10,000 partly paid cumulative preference shares of £1 each in the co., & in Dec. 1925, executed a transfer of 8,000 of these shares to a transferee. Registration of the transfer was refused, & pltf. brought an action claiming a declaration that deft. co. was not entitled to refuse registration of the transfer & rectification of the co.'s register accordingly. Earlier in 1925 the co. had issued debentures secured by a debenture trust deed, in which the co. covenanted with the trustees that it would not in regard to 100,000 preference shares register until the shares were fully paid any transfer of any of them to any proposed transferee not approved by the trustees, & would not, except with the previous written consent of the trustees, release any of the holders of these shares from any money payable or which might become payable in respect of such shares. Pltf. alleged by his statement of claim that deft. co. had wrongfully refused to register the transfer, that the directors did not exercise any proper discretion under the arts., & that they had abdicated their discretion by entering into the above covenant with the trustees. Defts. by their defence claimed to have exercised the discretion under the art. bond fide. Pltf. sought to interrogate deft. co. by asking: (1) Whether the co. said that the 1419a. ———.]—The poor rate payable in respect of a dwelling-house of which pltf. was weekly tenant was £5 10s. a year. A demand note for a half-year's rate, namely £2 15s., was served on pltf., but he failed to pay the money & a summons was issued against him. Pltf. did not appear before the justices, who refused to hear his landlord's daughter on his behalf. Evidence having been given on the part of the overseers, the justices issued a distress warrant against pltf.'s goods, although, before they signed the warrant, the landlord's daughter had addressed them again & intimated that pltf. was a weekly tenant, a fact of which one of the justices was aware:—Held: although, if the full facts had been proved, it would have been apparent to the justices that they had no jurisdiction to issue the warrant, they

k i. — — —.]—Where under Stray Animals Act, 1915, s. 27 (1), the posting of notices of sale of impounded animals were not complied with:—Held: the sale amounted to a conversion & the pound-keeper, & the municipality employing him, were liable in damages, as (1) the posting of two notices within the municipality & one outside it was not a compliance with the Act; (2) where animals are branded, the pound-keeper is guilty of negligence in failing to mention the brands in the notices.—LEACH v. MANTARIO RURAL MUNICIPALITY No. 262 & MOIR, [1921] 1 W. W. R. 132; 56 D. L. R. 735; 14 Sask. L. R. 25.—CAN.

k ii. — — —.]—Where there is nothing indicating the presence of a brand on an impounded animal the poundkeeper is not obliged to feel all over its body in search of a possible brand, in order properly to describe the animal in the prescribed advertisement.

The sale of an impounded horse by a poundkeeper:—Held: defective because notices of the impounding & of the sale had not been properly posted, & both the pound-keeper & the municipality which employed him were liable in conversion for the value of the horse at the time of sale.—BROWN v. RURAL MUNICIPALITY OF ST. FRANCOIS XAVIER & BRELAND (Man.), [1925] 1 W. W. R. 42.—CAN.

sd. Payment of residue to owner—Domestic Animals Act, 1921 (c. 50)—Municipal District Act, 1911 (c. 3).—The effect of the amendment made by ss. 27, 28 of the former Act extends the period of twelve months provided by s. 213 of the latter Act, for application for payment to the owner of the residue of the proceeds of sale of an impounded animal, to twenty-four months from the date of sale.—GOLLAN v. STERLING, [1924] 3 W. W. R. 209.—CAN.

PART VII. SECT. 9.

sf. Conviction — Under Stray Animals Act, 1920 (c. 124).—Where the evidence showed that accused had been wrongfully convicted of an offence of unlawfully rescuing cattle under a provincial Act, in that he had merely made an attempt:—Held: (1) the offence, not being an indictable offence, could not be remitted to the magistrate to convict of an attempt under Criminal Code, s. 949; (2) s. 49 (d) of the above

Act did not apply to the portion of the province within which the offence was charged to have been committed.—R. v. GURSKI (1922), 69 D. L. R. 191; 38 Can. Crim. Cas. 139; [1922] 3 W. W. R. 540.—CAN.

PART VII. SECT. 12.

g i. — — — Measure of damages.]—Damages were fixed on the basis of prices obtained at auction sales, for while it may be that prices paid at auction sales are not as large as are usually obtained at private sales, still the prices obtained at auction sales very often have a great deal to do with fixing the price of an animal in the community.—SINWICK v. ELFROS, [1924] 2 W. W. R. 755.—CAN.

g ii. — — — Allowance for pound-keeper's fees & expenses.]—In an action for damages for the conversion of animals illegally sold at a pound-sale, debts have no right to an allowance for the pound-keeper's fees or expenses.—LEACH v. MANTARIO RURAL MUNICIPALITY No. 262 & MOIR, [1921] 1 W. W. R. 132; 56 D. L. R. 735; 14 Sask. L. R. 25.—CAN.

k i. — — —.]—Pltf. impounded with a poundkeeper cattle which had come on to his land through a wire fence & claimed damages. The poundkeeper, without obtaining payment of the damages or security therefor, released the cattle to the owner on receipt of the latter's cheque, payment of which was stopped. On appeal by the owner the council of the municipality decided that the fence was not a lawful fence & that pltf. was not entitled to damages. Pltf. sued the poundkeeper & the municipality for the damages:—Held: pltf. was entitled as against both debts to the damages claimed.—JOHNSON v. MUNICIPAL DISTRICT OF BEAVER DAM, [1925] 4 D. L. R. 299; [1925] 3 W. W. R. 369.—CAN.

- 186a. ———.]—In the conveyance to pltf. of a house & land there was an express grant to her of a way described as coloured green on the plan indorsed on the deed. The part coloured green was four feet wide & formed part of a wider roadway running along the back of the adjoining houses to the back premises of pltf.'s house. At the time of the conveyance a right of access for vehicles to pltf.'s back premises over the whole roadway was enjoyed with the house conveyed. The habendum in the conveyance was "to hold same with the benefit of all such easements & privileges in the nature of easements as are now subsisting in respect of the property hereby conveyed." Pltf. claimed that the right to use the whole width of the roadway for the purpose of access of vehicles to her back premises passed to her under her conveyance:—Held: that the right claimed passed to pltf. by virtue of sect. 6 (2) of the above Act, there being no unequivocal "contrary intention" expressed in the deed within sect. 6 (4), sufficient to negative the passing of such right.—GREGG v. RICHARDS, [1926] Ch. 521; 95 L. J. Ch. 209; 135 L. T. 75; 70 Sol. Jo. 443, C. A.

- 204a. ——— Intention of parties—No evidence of intention to determine status quo.]—Two adjoining houses, originally belonging to one person, subsequently became vested in pltf. & deft. respectively. For some years before the severance of ownership, a creeper had been growing in what was now deft.'s garden with its foliage spreading along the wall of pltf.'s house. Also, again before the severance of ownership, the post of a gate leading from what was now deft.'s garden had been fastened by plugs & nails into pltf.'s wall. The growth of the creeper had from time to time reached pltf.'s gutter, & he had been obliged to cut it back. Pltf. brought an action for trespass in respect of the two above-mentioned acts, & the county ct. judge found both acts to be trespasses:—Held: both the growth of the creeper on pltf.'s wall & the fastening of the gate to pltf.'s wall would amount to trespasses, unless they could be justified by the existence of an easement; the implied reservation of
